

YOUTUBE DRAMA IS NOW BEING BROKEN DOWN BY TWO OF THE BIGGEST DRAMA-STARTERS

YouTube stars, brothers, and sometime enemies Logan and Jake Paul, are putting their past beefs behind them to team up with a YouTube channel, Jake 'n Logan. With the new platform, the controversy-prone duo are embracing their messy status to talk about something they know a lot about: YouTube drama.

In the first episode, Logan and Jake dived straight into the juiciest YouTuber story of the year so far, James Charles. The brothers also touched on their own conflicts, with Jake delivering a play-by-play on this thought process behind calling out “cyberbully” Cody Ko — a callout that backfired on Jake, when others pointed to his less-than-perfect online track record.

Fans of the Pauls might be surprised that they've joined forces, given their competitive relationship. In 2017, Jake's then-love interest (whether or not they were official is a sore subject) Alissa Violet hooked up with Logan, and Jake kicked her out of the Team 10 house. "This is weird," the brothers said in unison in their latest video.
