Waver is the first and only social and dating app created for people with mental health issues. It was specifically designed for people dealing with anxiety, depression, bipolar disorder, schizophrenia, OCD, PTSD and other disorders, who are looking to find friends or romantic relationships. Sign up today to find the love of your life or make lifelong friends who can relate to your personal mental health struggles.

Although they don't usually cause physical pain, mental health issues can be an obstacle on a path to happiness and fulfilled life. Many of us are no strangers to social anxiety, depression or panic attacks. We often struggle even with the most basic everyday tasks and just making it through the day is difficult and draining. And not just that. We may feel like there is an invisible wall separating us from the rest of the world and other people. But it does not have to be like this. What if the wall between us and the others is not actually that tall and what if there are many people just like us on the other side?

Why we designed Waver

We designed Waver to show you that you don't need to feel alone or isolated just because you suffer from ocd, schizophrenia, social anxiety or other mental health issues. If you think you could use new friends to chat with online or face to face, give Waver a try and sign up!

With Waver you can

- Share experiences with those dealing with similar mental health challenges
- Receive and give practical, tried and tested tips on coping with mental health issues
- Lead honest conversations in a safe judgment free space
- Create genuine friendships and relationships with like-minded people in your local area

Using Waver

Signing-up is super easy.
Just enter your basic details and location and you're all set!

Connect with others

You can browse other members' profiles and DM them when you want to chat. There's lots of people out there experiencing similar mental health struggles. Why not connect with them?

Meet people nearby

Waver is the first and only app specifically designed for people with mental health issues that takes online socializing and dating to a new level by making face to face meetings possible. Use the Near By Me feature to see interesting people who live in your area, browse their profiles and get in touch with them.

Post & Comment

Join in discussions about mental health related topics. Comment on what other people posted and feel free to create your own posts, receive comments, useful advice and feedback from others.

Important: Please note that this is a social and dating app and serves in no way as an alternative to therapy or treatments by a mental health professional. If you have any doubts about joining the Waver community being concerning your mental health, be sure to discuss it with a professional.
