Experience the Dutch Countryside on a Luxury Floating Hotel

Matt Sulem, The Daily Meal • May 13, 2016

It's morning and the crew of the Panache, one of the fleet of European Waterways' luxury barges, has just departed Amsterdam on its way to Alkmaar. This will be the first stop on its slow-moving voyage through the Dutch countryside along Holland's canals. On board, guests revel in the experience as they enjoy great food, fine wines, and million-dollar views along the way.

The Panache is a floating luxury hotel and completely redefines the term "barge." It includes 12 comfortable guest cabins with in-room double sinks and oversized showers, a lounge with large panoramic windows, a sun deck with a spa pool, and a dozen bicycles for exploring. Add to that a crew of six attending to your every need, daily excursions, wine and cheese presentations, and a chef who delights in preparing delicious, international cuisine, and you begin to understand why these sorts of vacations are widely popular.
