

'Lying about surgery is really horrible!'

Katherine Ryan tells new! about her love of reality TV and why having work done is fine as long as you admit it...

here are many reasons to love Katherine Ryan. For a start, the Canadian comedian is absolutely hilarious. Then there's the fact she's breathed new life into noughties game show Your Face Or Mine alongside Jimmy Carr. Oh, and she's also incredibly honest about the cosmetic work she's had – unlike a few other celebs we could mention!

Sitting down with new! for a natter, Katherine, 34, who's previously had filler in her lips and Botox, explains she doesn't mind people having procedures, but she does mind if they're not open about it.

Here the single star, who caused a stir online last year when she pretended she'd had a botched Brazilian butt lift, tells us about her love of reality TV and whether she'd like to have a sibling for her eight-year-old daughter Violet...

Chris Hughes and Olivia Attwood split after their appearance on Your Face Or Mine...

We sort of got a sense that they weren't getting along so well... I really hope it wasn't us that broke them up!

Did they seem tense?

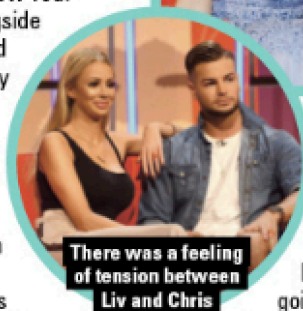

We could definitely feel tension, but it was tricky to judge. I was a huge fan of Love Island and they were always arguing, so I thought it was their foreplay.

Why do you think your fake Brazilian butt lift snap caused such controversy?

There are celebrities who admit to it, there are celebrities who don't, and there are all these

With her Your Face Or Mine co-host Jimmy Carr

There was a feeling of tension between Liv and Chris

Instagram models out there and I think, "Is that her organic bum? What is going on?!" I think the mystery is what makes it so fascinating.

You've spoken openly about having had work done...

Yeah! When I've had fillers in my face or Botox, I've always been really transparent about it. I'll be like, "Oh, I've had my lips done today," because I think what's really horrible isn't getting that stuff done, it's lying about it and then people don't even know what a real body or a real face looks like any more.

Fair enough!

If we could all have Kim Kardashian's body I think a lot of us would. I mean, a lot of people would not want that because they need to fit into economy plane seats, but I like it.

So you love reality TV, then?

I'm very nosy and love to be let into people's lives. There are loads of British shows I watch. Love Island is a big part of my life, Geordie Shore was in the beginning, and then

I just got too old, I think. I watch TOWIE, Made In Chelsea...

And the Kardashians get your vote?

They're really relaxing for me. They've always got a really clean house.

What's the weirdest thing that's ever happened to you at a gig?

I was on stage in Brighton and a man was like, "Who is that on the screen behind you?" so I said, "That's me!" and he said, "No it isn't – she's way better looking than you are."

Nice!

Before I'd even spoken, that's what this man chose to say! I was like, "Oh, well, that's because it's Photoshopped." I just explained what catfishing is and then I just carried on.

Do you get a lot of people sliding into your DMs?

Unfortunately, I do. I have open DMs on Instagram and every once in a while I look at the lottery of shit that I've procured. I think the dick pics seem to have gone out of fashion.

What do you get instead?

Now it just seems to be some lewd invitations because guys have clocked that you will screenshot their dick pic and share it. Or find them on Facebook and send it back to their wife.

Do you want any more children?

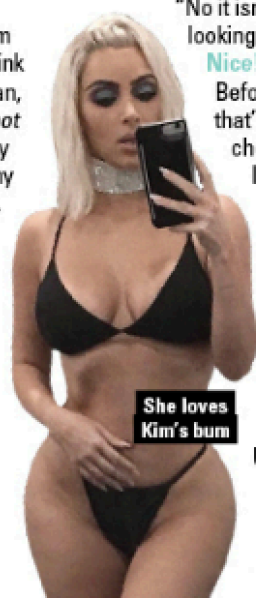

I am thinking about it, but it's such a lottery. You could get a really good kid and then you could get a really bad one. I think I nailed it the first time – Violet is so patient and loving and generous and kind and emotionally mature.

That's sweet!

But who knows? I think it would be good to have two more. But I would definitely do it like Cardi B – I would hide it for a while and then, all of a sudden, wham-bam with the bump!
