Baseball Tourney Update

Four weeks down, four to go for Perfect Game Super25 tournaments. Catch some of the highest-quality youth baseball in the country — FREE for Vineland residents. { BY MIKE EPIFANIO }

Vineland High School's varsity field is home to most of the championship games for the Perfect Game Super25 tournaments being played in Vineland, including this one on June 8 between Gallagher Mizuno and 9ers Prime (winners).

There's some exceptionally good baseball being played in Vineland this summer and admission is free to city residents. All you need is proof of residency and a love of the nation's favorite pastime. The folks at Perfect Game Super25 will take care of the rest.

Perfect Game produces baseball tournaments all over the country and their Super 25 division has made Vineland their home base for the Mid-Atlantic region this summer. Starting with Memorial Day weekend, there have been four tournaments bringing in more than 130 of the top youth baseball teams from all over the region to play here. According to Coleen Greene, co-owner of the PG Super25 Mid-Atlantic organization, it's a great start with some of the biggest tournaments of the summer remaining to be played in Vineland.

"Things are going really well in Vineland and we're so appreciative of the City," Greene says. "People have raved about the fields in Vineland, saying that they're better than a lot of college fields. We never could have imagined the way the city has embraced us."

There are tournaments scheduled here for June 20-22, June 27-30 and July 4-7 and Aug. 29-Sept. 1. For those weekends, one can catch games starting Friday nights (weather permitting) and running through Sunday nights at Vineland High School, East Vineland Senior League (Fiocchi Field), Romano Park and Morie Field.

Dale Elbeuf, Vineland's Superintendent of Recreation, has been integrally involved in preparing the fields and coordinating between various city entities and the PG Super25 staff. He's a baseball enthusiast and says area residents are definitely missing out if they aren't coming out to watch the tournaments. "Why wouldn't a parent of a young kid playing little league or travel ball want to take their child out to see these games? It's the best baseball available. A lot of people think it's better than watching the Phillies."

HEALTH AND FITNESS

The Skinny on Getting Fit and Healthy For Summer

Local experts weigh in on ways to succeed. { BY MARY JANE KINKADE }

Editor's Note: This is the first of a two-part series on the Vineland area's fitness and health landscape – the challenges, local options and exciting new developments. Part one will focus on mind and body fitness – why it's important, local programs and resources, and tips for success.

As James Leigh Hunt, a 19th century writer and poet, so eloquently said, "The groundwork of all happiness is health." If you're thinking it's easier said than done, you're probably correct, but with the right mindset and support, it doesn't have to be hard—and may even be fun.

While gym memberships may swell at the beginning of the year and during bathing suit season, it's not always indicative of people being ready to make the commitment to getting healthy. "The key is being ready," said Lisa Scheetz, Chief Operating Officer for the Cumberland Cape Atlantic YMCA. "Decisions like losing weight or getting in shape are very

Does and Don'ts

{ BY PAUL J. DOE, FORMER EDITOR, CUMBERLAND NEWS }

Sandwiches I Have Loved

I'm a sandwich guy. Have been for years and years. It's one of the things my wife appreciates about me. A bowl of soup and a sandwich is a perfectly acceptable meal, particularly in the winter.

Summertime, I simply replace the soup with a salad and life goes on. Part of the reason I'm a sandwich guy is, of course, my upbringing. My Mom, God bless her, was an okay cook but a wonderful baker. Growing up, we had the same six or seven meals pretty much every week.

Mom's saving grace, foodwise, was that she was a wonderful baker. There was something fresh baked, still warm from the oven, almost every day.

Most days it was some sort of dessert but at least once, and usually twice a week, it was fresh baked bread.

We always ate dinner at 5:30.

No variations.

Dad got home and immediately went down in the basement to dump his overalls and take a second shower.

He worked in a plant that made auto parts from powdered metal, so the second shower was a necessity if he wanted to be allowed upstairs.

Mom had it timed so the fresh bread always came out of the oven just before he got home.

As kids' we'd line up for a slice to hold us over until dinner (about 20 minutes).

Is there anything better than fresh made bread, still warm from the oven.

My brother and I always fought over the heel, because Mom's bread always had a nice crispy crust.

My sister didn't care for crusts.

Guess it's a girl thing because, these days, all of the girl grandchildren want the crusts cut off their bread.

My brother and I often would experiment with sandwiches. Our least original was the smasher. That's where we'd take a slice of Wonder Bread (it helped build strong bodies eight ways), and a hunk of cheese and smash it all together until it resembled a small baseball.

Mom's favorite sandwich for us kids was peanut butter and cucumber.

Sounds awful, but it's really pretty good and really, really easy. Spread the peanut butter on both slices of bread and cover with slices of cucumber. No butter. Maybe a little salt, if you like.

And I grew up in Detroit, home of one of the nation's most iconic sandwiches—the Coney Island hot dog.

Over the years, I've tried a few other iconic sandwiches—The French Dip in California, the Po'Boy and Muffuletta in New Orleans, the Beef on Weck in Buffalo.

All great sandwiches.

When my neighbor back in Detroit learned we were moving to the Philadelphia area, she had us over for cheesesteaks and Tastykake Krimpets.

I'd already taken the job, but if I hadn't, that cheesesteak (and it was a Steak-umms) probably would have made up my mind.

Every year when we vacation in Sea Isle, I make it a point to have a liverwurst on rye with a slice of onion and yellow mustard at McGettigan's.

I used to get them at Larry's II in Vineland, but they discontinued them on the menu because I may have been the only one who ever ordered it.

Point is, I'm pretty serious when it comes to sandwiches.

Last week on the way home from the shore we stopped at a local farmstand for some fruits and veggies. We were having sandwiches, so I suggested the wife grab a tomato just to add a little color.

Tomatoes these days don't add much other than color. Turned out it was a old time Jersey tomato.

So good in fact, that the sandwich I ended up with that night was a Jersey tomato special. Toasted bread, an unhealthy slathering of butter, some very thick slices of tomato and a little coarse sea salt.

South Jersey doesn't have a signature sandwich but I would suggest that if you can find real Jersey tomatoes, that sandwich is as good as any, anywhere .

A number of readers have e-mailed me with suggestions for stories, but I don't do requests.

However, I do have breakfast with friends every Thursday at Larry's II.

You're welcome to join us and we can talk about it. 🍷

Sign of the Times

A clearer message to keep Vineland beautiful has been installed on Landis Avenue.

To see credibility in the old adage that “a picture is worth a thousand words,” let’s take the example of a sign that has overhung an alleyway on the 500 block of Landis Avenue for many years.

The sign, bearing the message “Keep Vineland Beautiful,” must have been quite attractive in its day. As it dated from the beginning of the anti-litter campaign in this country, the message was very relevant and showed pride in the appearance of our downtown.

With the passage of time, harsh weather, and wear-and-tear, the sign began to deteriorate and, soon, whole pieces of the sign began to fall off—to the point where it was, for too long, a sign bearing only a small portion of its original message. Rather than conveying a strong positive message, it conveyed the opposite message—one of blight and decay.

About a year ago, my predecessor as Main Street Vineland Executive Director, Todd Noon, with our Design Committee, took up the matter of this sign and the mixed message it sent. A new sign was definitely needed and the only challenge was to find out how to make a replacement sign in a way that made it a true community project.

Todd took the matter to John Procopio. John is a member of Vineland City Council, but he’s also a business teacher at Vineland High School and a longtime friend of Main Street Vineland—an organizer of the Holiday Tree Project and, at one time, active in our public speakers bureau.

John took the idea to Vineland High School Computer Aided Drafting students who worked on the design for the new sign. Business/Marketing students from the school contacted local businesses for in-kind donations of construction materials, Salem County Vo-Tech Computer Aided Drafting & Design (CADD) students jumped at the chance to construct the sign—a true schools-to-community based project.

The new illuminated sign, which stands four feet high and 20 feet long and weighs 2,000 pounds, was installed last Friday. It was an all-day project. The Vineland Municipal Electric Utility assisted in the mounting and electrical attachment of the sign. Field work also consisted of installation of the Plexiglass that illuminates the sign in the evenings to create a colorful, Vineland High School students worked with Business Education teacher John Procopio and (now retired) CADD teacher John Schneider to design the new sign and to solicit donations of materials from area businesses.

The official unveiling and lighting of the sign will take place this week on Thursday at 6 p.m. We join along with John in hoping that as many people will come out to celebrate the new sign that gives a clearer meaning to “Keep Vineland Beautiful.”

I want to thank all those who helped to make last weekend’s Cruise Down Memory Lane another success. This includes all of you who came out to enjoy the fins and chrome of the classic cars, the organizers of the event who put in a lot of hard work, all those who helped out—our volunteers and the others. It’s another example of the kind of teamwork that gets the job done and makes for successful events.

Sheridan honored with Humanitarian Award

Elizabeth Sheridan, R.N., M.A., chief operating officer of Inspira Medical Center Vineland, was recently honored by The College of New Jersey with its prestigious Humanitarian Award. The award recognizes an alumnus or alumna who has shown exceptional public spiritedness or concern for human welfare through philanthropic activities.

"It is such an honor to be recognized by the school that has provided my professional education," said Sheridan. "This award is designed to recognize a single individual, but it is the great work of so many people that I have been privileged to work with over the years, that truly deserves the recognition."

Sheridan joined Inspira Health Network 15 years ago and in addition to her role as chief operating officer of the Vineland-based medical center, she serves as chief nursing executive for the system's Bridgeton, Elmer and Vineland facilities. Over her tenure with Inspira, Sheridan has led the development and implementation of various programs benefitting community members across Cumberland and Salem counties.

personal. Different people are ready at different times and for different reasons.”

Statistics show that the need is real. According to a recent study conducted by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the University of Wisconsin Population Health Institute, Cumberland is the unhealthiest county in the state. There are many factors that contribute to this, including unemployment rate, poverty level, and lack of exercise.

Scheetz explained that things such as where a person lives or whether or not they have a support system also play a role.

“At the Y, families are at the heart of everything we do,” she said. “Children as young as 11 years old can work out in our Family Fitness Center. We believe that families who exercise together stay together, which is key to success.”

Unfortunately, many of Vineland’s inner city families don’t have a car, which makes it difficult to get to a regular grocery store with a wide variety of choices and access to fresh produce. Getting exercise can also be challenging, as people often feel unsafe walking or biking on busy neighborhood streets.

The good news is that progress is being made thanks to initiatives like the brand new two-mile bike lane that now exists on Wood and Elmer streets between West and East avenues. It’s a first for inner-city Vineland and the bike lane includes with painted lines, crosswalks and signage. It was funded by a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the New Jersey Partnership for Healthy Kids (NJPHK).

“Families now have a safe place to ride and walk,” said Scheetz. “It’s all about meeting people where they are, which in this case, is in their neighborhoods.”

Another program that’s making strides is Vineland’s Corner Store Initiative. With help from the NJPHK’s Vineland team from the YMCA and Vineland Health Department, many of the city’s corner stores are literally turning a corner when it comes to providing healthy food choices for their customers. Also participating are local restaurants like Tony Soprano’s pizza.

“Store and restaurant owners are working with us to implement the Healthy Corner Store Tool Kit, which was created by the Food Trust of Philadelphia,” says Scheetz. “This program is really taking off as owners want to help. We’re even testing the sale of healthy options like fruit smoothies in some stores. By working together, we’re making eating healthy an easy choice.”

What’s not always easy is getting started even when you have access to healthy food choices and exercise facilities. For many people, it’s the lack of energy and clarity of mind that stands in the way. “Things like depression, unhappiness and negativity can be huge barriers to healthfulness,” says Shirley Burke, owner of Serene Touch Center in Vineland, which offers Reiki, life coaching and mediation services. “Everything in the universe is made of energy. The universe vibrates, as do we. The higher our levels of energy and vibration, the happier and healthier we feel.”

In 2011, Burke added Reiki therapy to her repertoire of services. What began as a spur-of-the-minute class during a Gilda’s Club meeting, has turned into a thriving business that’s making a difference in people’s lives. Reiki is a safe, gentle, non-invasive holistic energy therapy that helps to restore depleted energy, reduce pain and lower stress. It can also aid conventional health care during patient recovery. “Often, fixing one part of a person’s life can lead to fixes in many other areas, like getting healthy and fit,” said Burke. Therapies like Reiki, meditation and life coaching can help us learn to take our oars out of the water and go with the flow.”

Master Chuck Vertolli at Yi’s Karate. Located on Lincoln Avenue in Vineland, Yi’s Karate provides a great option for people who want to become physically fit. What’s more, Yi’s also provides a healthy dose of self-discipline, self-control, focus, and respect.

“We address both the physical and mental aspects of health,” says Vertolli, who began his training 28 years ago. “Our students include both children and adults, and sometimes whole families,” he said. We work with children as young as five and with adults of all ages. Anyone can do it and it’s never too late to start.”

Like Sheetz, Vertolli agrees that a commitment is necessary. “This isn’t something you master in one month,” he said. “We start slowly, usually with a private lesson, and then continue from there. Everyone progresses at a different pace, and that’s okay. What’s important is that you don’t give up. It takes time but remember, no one was born a black belt.”

While there are many forms of Martial Arts, Tang Soo Do is the type practiced at Yi’s. Tang Soo Do is a relatively modern Korean martial art that dates back to the 6th century. “It challenges both the body and the mind and teaches self-discipline,”

So, are you ready? If so, everything you need to get both your mind and body fit and healthy is ready and waiting for you—right here in Vineland. Next week in part two of this series, we will explore some of the area’s most recent advances in health care, both traditional and alternative. ☯

Here are some health and fitness tips from area health care providers:

BODY BENEFITS VINELAND’s premier Pilates studio has been providing quality Pilates programs to Cumberland County and the surrounding area since 2006. Since opening the studio, Pilates has been their main focus, as they offer private, semi-private and small group mat and springboard classes.

Body Benefits offers a calm, pleasant atmosphere with a positive energy flow. They are dedicated to providing quality Pilates taught by certified instructors, who have hundreds of hours of education behind them. Pilates can be beneficial to most anyone. From athletes looking to improve their game; to those rehabilitating neck, back and joint injuries as well as those with arthritis and osteoporosis. They provide a personalized Pilates experience, whether you choose a private, semi-private or join a group class, the focus is on you. In group classes, the instructors have the ability to modify and/or create variations, so that each client can feel a sense of accomplishment and well being.

In the summer of 2012, Body Benefits added BarreAmped fitness to the studio, also being taught in small-group classes (no more than 10). BarreAmped is influenced by classical and modern dance (though it is not a dance class) and utilizes pharmacists and other healthcare providers practicing in Southern New Jersey. This program allows these healthcare professional to collect, access and securely share a patient's vital medical information in real-time.

THE CENTER FOR DIAGNOSTIC IMAGING (CDI) has adopted HEALTHEC's comprehensive Health Information Exchange (HIE) platform. HEALTHEC is working with the region's leading independent radiology practice to develop a new HIE to service more than 4,000 physicians, nurses,

The HIE empowers physicians to make patient-centered decisions quickly and accurately. Access to a single, all-encompassing database of vital patient information provides cooperating healthcare providers, like CDI, a comprehensive guide to patient care on a patient-by-patient basis. These integrated systems can also be used to evaluate physician performance, act on key quality indicators and measure and report on compliance requirements.

Involvement in this program allows CDI to both contribute to and benefit from the collaboration of healthcare providers throughout the region. The ability to instantly and accurately access patient records through HEALTHEC's HIE platform will ensure that CDI is capable of providing exceptional patient care that is efficient and effective.

Since opening in Vineland in 2002 and Upper Deerfield in 2005, CDI has been committed to providing state-of-the-art imaging services. CDI is a partnership between five board-certified physicians: Shailendra Desai M.D.; Ernesto Go, M.D.;

Ace Plumbing's Bath Showroom

By John Sperratore

New technology is abound and has taken over so many aspects of our lives. There's no question that products once depicted only in cartoons and sci-fi movies have become everyday objects that we seemingly cannot live without. If you grew up in the 1960s and 1970s like I did, you have probably seen episodes of the Jetson's cartoon. Almost every episode showed them communicating on the "video phone," much like our Skype and FaceTime of today. They were also ahead of their time when it came to bathroom technology. In some episodes you can see a shower with multiple showerheads and even a tanning bed in the bath. While these items seem like everyday products to us today, you have to remember the Jetson's was developed over 50 years ago, long before this technology actually existed.

Today, necessity is responsible for many new product innovations in the bath, especially when it comes to those that are physically challenged. Those with physical disabilities, who have trouble getting in and out of a bathtub, stepping over a shower threshold, or cannot stand for any length of time, now have options in the bathroom. Manufacturers have developed shower bases and walls that are a direct replacement for an existing bathtub in addition to sectional showers that are ADA approved with optional seats and grab bars.

The term "comfort height" is now used for toilets that are two inches higher to aid those who have back or knee issues. If you don't want to change the entire toilet you can also use a plastic lift seat, some even have grab rails attached, to get the same results. Walk-in tubs and whirlpools that have an entry door, which opens like a car door, is available for those who cannot use a traditional tub. The use of a hand held shower, with or without an adjustable slide bar, will aid in the correct positioning of the shower head. There are also many available options when it comes to faucets. From models that turn the faucet on when you place your hands in the path of a sensor to those that have lever handles that you traditionally see in a health care facility, there is a faucet to fit every need or lifestyle.

If you or someone you know has been troubled with a disability or injury, making every day bath or kitchen functions a challenge, you can stop in to a Bath Showroom to see the many options available that may make your life easier. The good news is you won't have to wait another fifty years for them to be invented.

Lilliston Auto Group Presents $50,000 Donation to Susan G. Komen Central & South Jersey

The Lilliston Auto Group's three locations in Vineland and Millville have reached their goal of selling 500 vehicles during the Lilliston 500 (4/1-5/31), and of donating $50,000 to Susan G. Komen Central & South Jersey to help fight breast cancer. The stores involved in this drive for the cure include Lilliston Ford in Vineland, Lilliston Honda in Vineland and Lilliston Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram in Millville.

On June 6, the Lilliston Auto Group presented the $50,000 donation to Susan G. Komen Central & South Jersey. This presentation took place at Lilliston Ford, 833 North Delsea Drive, Vineland. It included speeches from Lilliston Auto Group ownership and management, as well as the Directors of Susan G. Komen Central & South Jersey.

"This $50,000 donation from Lilliston Auto Group will provide enormous help for the women of Central and South Jersey," said Alicia Barbieri, Komen Community Resource Manager. "Seventy-five percent of our affiliate proceeds support local programs, and 25 percent supports national breast cancer research programs. The amount of this donation that will stay local will be enough to provide over 300 life-saving mammograms right here in our community."

County Sheriff Intervenes

The manager of the Minotola glassworks favored a county judge who was sympathetic to non-union men.

The violence and bloodshed that had erupted on the streets of Minotola in 1902 as a result of the strike involving workers at the Jonas Glass Company would soon escalate into a political battle that would draw concerned residents into the fray and eventually explode into tragedy.

The October 9 shooting of Ralph Rambo, a union member, and subsequent charges against Jonas factory manager David Applegate and Harry Dare, a Jonas security guard, brought Assemblyman L.H. Miller, union councilor, to the next day's hearing. To his surprise, Applegate had waived the hearing, paid his bail and returned to the factory where, according to the Evening Journal, he ordered rifles and ammunition from Bridgeton. Miller secured another warrant charging the Jonas manager with attempted murder and Dare with "murderous assault in shooting at men outside the factory lines."

Two attempts were made to arrest the overly confident Applegate, who was surrounded by 60 to 70 factory men and proclaimed he would rather die than submit to the officers dispatched to retrieve him. Both attempts failed. Miller then decided to appeal to Atlantic County authorities. He contacted County Sheriff Smith E. Johnson, father of future Atlantic City political boss "Nucky" Johnson, the inspiration for Steve Buscemi's character in HBO's Boardwalk Empire.

In the meantime, residents of Buena Vista Township felt it necessary to take action. On October 11, they arranged a meeting in Minotola to, according to the New York Times, "devise means for stopping the lawlessness. The meeting resolved to appeal to the Atlantic County authorities for protection, and then adjourned to reconvene Monday evening [October 13] when a petition will be signed by the farmers of the township and forwarded to Sheriff Johnson at May's Landing."

The New York Times reported that individuals who travel through Minotola claim "their lives are in great danger from stray bullets from both the strikers and the squad of factory guards." It also offered a recent account of a bicyclist who "narrowly escaped death" when he rode by Jonas Glass Works at night and a factory guard began "blazing away with his rifle through the fence pickets."

It was reported that warrants had been issued for guards who had resisted arrest by local constables. The newspaper also wrote that a new move on the part of the union leaders, who had recently met to discuss the current situation, was expected "tomorrow when Sheriff Johnson is expected at Minotola with a warrant for factory manager Applegate, charged with shooting a striker with intent to kill."

Residents awaited a showdown when Johnson arrived. They expected he would receive the same treatment local police had encountered. Instead, Applegate offered no resistance and was taken into custody in a peaceful manner.

The move had been a ploy on the part of Applegate to secure the upper hand in his legal situation. According to the Evening Journal, the factory manager waited for the county to arrest him so he would have to face Justice Sims, who was sympathetic to non-union men. Had he allowed himself to be held in local custody, Applegate would have confronted Justice Aspinwall, whose political leanings favored the union. Fearing a jail sentence in the local political climate, he waited for the county to act and place him in a more favorable situation.

By October 21, Ralph Rambo, the victim of the October 9 shooting, sued Applegate and Dare for $10,000 each, while the Jonas Glass Works had warrants issued for several strikers who had violated the State Supreme Court order not to interfere with the factory's workers. Union head Dennis A. Hayes paid Minotola a visit before the end of the month, encouraging strikers to conduct themselves in an orderly fashion and obey the law so that they could win the public's support.

But the most revealing moves made during the month are found in the Annual Report of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industry of New Jersey. In the first, the Jonas Company installed glassblowing machines that could match the manual labor of eight skilled workmen. The second involved the creation of the Minotola Improvement Company "to look after and advance the industrial interests of that town." We'll examine what happened next when this series continues.

Students Explore Career Possibilities

To create enthusiasm for learning and allow grade six students an opportunity to explore various career choices, Veterans Memorial School held a Career Day on May 9, according to Donna DeLouise, one of the teachers.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

FRIDAY, JUNE 20

Third Friday: Art Exhibit Openings.

Riverfront Renaissance Center for the Arts, 22 N. High St., Millville. 6-9 p.m. Opening reception for four new exhibits. In the Main Gallery will be the Society of New Jersey Artists' "Memories" exhibition. Painters in this show have drawn from their memory bank a powerful remembrance to share with you. You may see still life, landscapes, days or moments gone by, or noteworthy people or places.

In the Witt Gallery there will be large body of art work created during the 2014 Plein Air day that was held on the Maurice River in May.

The Associate Artist Alcove at the art center will feature well-known studio artists Cheryl Knowles-Harrigan and Rita Michalenko. Both of the painters will display their most recent work.

The Atrium will have a display entitled "Random Charms" by South Jersey native Elisa Barretta, whose artwork is pictured. The artist resides in California and her work is greatly influenced from her time studying in Italy.

"I am a professional fashion designer but my first love is, always has been and will remain painting," says Barretta. I have had a passion for drawing/ painting ever since I was old enough to hold a pencil/paintbrush in my hand... My formal Fine Art training started with private lessons at age 7 and continued throughout my childhood/adolescent years. I attended Rhode Island School of Design and was so fortunate to have been selected to participate in their European Honors Program, which allowed me the amazing opportunity to spend precious time in Rome, Italy. This turned out to be a life-changing experience for me. My interests began to shift from my then current major, Illustration, to Fashion Design... After obtaining my BFA at RISD I returned to Rome and continued my education at KOEFIA Accademia d'Alta Moda e l'Arte del Costume. I studied fashion and eventually became a fashion designer in Italy... but I also absorbed the art, beauty, passion, culture, class, vitality... I hope you can feel my passion through my paintings...

Response from Four Corners Developer

After publishing a column by Paul Doe, which was critical of the second phase of the planned “Four Corners Project,” in last week’s issue, The Grapevine invited the project developer to submit a rebuttal, published below.

Where do I begin? I would think that someone who is in the news business would actually consider including, obtaining or establishing a factual basis for an “opinion.”

First of all, there was no recent decision to move forward with the second phase of this project. There exists a redevelopers’ agreement between the City of Vineland and Eastern Pacific that remains in effect. The funding announcement came after many years of diligent effort in participation with New Jersey Housing and Mortgage Finance Agency.

Secondly, the failure or lack of success for the operation of the theater has nothing whatsoever to do with my agreement, which required me to undertake the renovation in the first place. The renovation of the Landis Theater was not my idea and it was certainly not my idea to undertake this project first before the other corners were completed. My responsibility was to provide for the completion of the project and to include a local non profit in the extremely complicated financial structure that facilitated its construction.

There was a business plan prepared by a national expert that defined that at minimum $200,000 of contributed income was required in order for the annual operation of the completed theater to sustain itself. Contributed income is not ticket sales; neither this nor any other theater for that matter, can exist on ticket sales alone. Nationally, 20 to 40 percent of a theater’s operating revenue must come from “CONTRIBUTED” sources. The Landis Theater Foundation almost reached that goal in year one, however it was never able to achieve anything close to that subsequently, hence the reason for the closure. From before the beginning of the project, this was no secret to anyone including the City of Vineland. Again, this has nothing to do with my agreement to provide for the redevelopment including procuring the required financing.

Third, with respect to the audits, there were two audits and cost certifications completed for the Landis Theater renovation project. These audits established the following:

1. Total cost of the project,
2. Total amount paid to the general contractor,
3. Total construction costs paid by the general contractor.

These cost certifications have been available since 2010. The City of Vineland spent over $90,000 on its own audit and found nothing to show anything different than what was established by the first two audits. If there is an actual question, I would love to hear it because no one, including Mr. Doe, has ever asked one.

Finally, with respect to the Landis Square Senior project, I am delighted to help you understand the particulars. The project is a three-story structure with 8,000 square feet of commercial space on the ground floor along East Avenue. Fronting the commercial

Showers for the Homeless

While the cold winter months have passed, the plight of the homeless in the City of Bridgeton has not ended. For those who participated in the Code Blue Initiative, our lives have been changed as we looked into the eyes of those affected by homelessness and the host of issues associated with the homeless. They are no longer a category but are people with names, and they must not be forgotten.

An issue that was brought to our attention during the Code Blue initiative was the lack of access to a shower. A shower is important for a variety of reasons, including health and general well-being. Mayor Kelly and I have been brainstorming ways that we can provide a once-a-week shower to the homeless. Working with Assemblywoman Celeste Riley, we are making progress in trying to obtain a mobile shower unit.

Additionally, I have requested from the Bridgeton Board of Education (BOE) permission to use the shower facilities in the High School Stadium. This request was denied, even though we would secure funding for an insurance rider and work with the City to provide security. I hope that the BOE will reconsider and work with us to help our brothers and sisters to regain some of their basic human dignity. If you would like to join in asking the BOE to reconsider,

The Announcement Doe Wrote About:

On Tuesday, May 22, the N.J. Housing Mortgage Finance Agency approved the first step of tax credit funding for Landis Square Senior Project. The funding included construction, permanent financing and an allocation of 4% tax credits totalling $16,350,000.

Landis Square Senior Project is the second corner of the Landis Square Redevelopment project undertaken by Hans Lampart and Eastern Pacific Development. Landis Square Senior Project will contain 78 units for seniors and persons with special needs in a three-story building that will also contain approximately 8,000 square feet of retail space. The project will be located between Myrtle and East avenues along the 900 block of Landis Avenue.

The project architect is John Pedersen and the General Contractor is Brookfield Construction. It is expected to break ground the first quarter of 2015 with completion anticipated in early 2016.

section, there are 30 parking spaces available. The rest of the building contains 78 units of apartments and approximately 4,000 square feet of common space for the residents. Included in the 78 units will be 10 units for special needs persons that will also include five units reserved for folks from the Vineland Developmental Center. There are 68 parking spaces for the senior portion of the project. The senior project entrance and the front of the building is actually accessed off of Myrtle and East avenues. The rents are affordable—approximately $550 per month. The project will be owned by partnership between Eastern Pacific Development and Gateway Action Partnership.

I hope this helps clear up Mr. Doe’s “uncomfortable” issues. ❧ please sign our online petition (www.bethanyinbridgeton.com).

In the meantime, please join me in prayerfully brainstorming other ideas to provide showers to the homeless. You can e-mail me with your ideas at pastor@bethanyinbridgeton.com. Perhaps your Church or community group could help.

You might have noticed I use “we” and might wonder who “we” is—the Code Blue Initiative is not an organization, but a movement of concerned citizens who want to work toward a better future for all. The Initiative is people reaching out compassionately to serve the vulnerable in our community.
