Dear reader,

Of tops, marbles and zero-point, of Warcraft and Starcraft and of soccer and hockey, this issue introduces you to the world of games.

We explore how some games have failed to stand the test of time and how some sportsmen have failed the test of life; how children's toys are beyond just child's play and how online games make some go beyond just play.

You will reminisce about the memories of childhood possessions and be awed by how true human strength can make the impossible, possible.

Tickle your brains with our pictorial idioms and our astounding (and even comical) information bites; and get some tips from our fashion guru on the wardrobe must-haves for tweens.

With all this and more, this issue promises to leave you wanting. Enjoy the read!

Warmly,

Shoba Nair
