SCOTUS Repeal of PASPA Opens Door for WagerAlarm.com
FA Media LLC Announces It is Bringing Back Its Sports Wagering Information Site

Long Beach, CA (May 14, 2018) – FA Media LLC, a burgeoning sports media company and the owners of the fantasy sports company Fantasy Alarm, announced today the reboot of WagerAlarm.com for sports bettors. FA Media LLC founded WagerAlarm.com in 2011 as a Sportsbook line movement tracking service. With the explosive growth of daily fantasy sports and gambling legislation moving at a snail's pace the company chose to table the project. Starting in July, WagerAlarm.com will be relaunched as a full-featured stat-supported customizable website for sports bettors and team enthusiasts alike. Wager Alarm will have the same dedication to quality and top-notch service that makes Fantasy Alarm a leader in the fantasy sports industry.

FA Media is one of the only sports companies that has a custom written content management system that can combine content and tools in the same articles and now extends that system to provide more personalized content and technology solutions within the sports wagering arena.

“Four years ago, we began building an infrastructure and assembling the right team to make all verticals in sports possible. Sports betting will be our first vertical on the new platform with deep content, data-driven personalization and strong interactivity,” said Rick Wolf, President of Fantasy Alarm. “With today’s Supreme Court ruling, we decided to announce the re-launch of WagerAlarm.com, a subscription site to help the sports bettor learn, play and win just like FantasyAlarm.com helps the seasonal and daily fantasy sports player.”

“We founded Wager Alarm in 2011 as an alerts service for odds. We were lucky to be able to license it to major brands for years,” said Co-Founder Dan Williams. “Fantasy sports is different, but with our custom CMS, detailed sports-related statistical tools and highly analytical team, we will super serve the sports bettor like we do the fantasy player.”

Look for WagerAlarm.com to launch by July 1, 2018.
