A Letter From the Co-Chairs of the U.S.-Canada Partnership for Growth

Dear Friend:

The United States and Canada are neighbors, friends and allies. They also enjoy the largest trading relationship in the world. Canada buys more U.S. goods and services than any other nation. And the U.S. buys more from Canada than we buy from anyone else.

Many people are surprised to learn Canada is the single largest supplier of oil and natural gas to the U.S. Yet, our Canadian neighbors play a critical role in the energy and economic security of the United States.

Today, however, this relationship is in need of repair. A U.S. tax imposed on imported Canadian lumber has damaged relations, distorted the free market and threatened jobs on both sides of the border.

We urgently need to find a long-term solution to the lumber issue in order to keep this great relationship growing. Join us in seeking a solution that will get the U.S.-Canada relationship back on track.

Sincerely,

Bill Brock

Former Senator and U.S. Trade Representative

Jim Blanchard

Former Governor and U.S. Ambassador to Canada

U.S. Exports of Goods
2000, in billions of U.S. dollars

The Issue in a Nutshell

After intense lobbying by a few U.S. lumber companies, the United States has imposed a 27% tax on imports of Canadian lumber. International trade panels have repeatedly found no justification for U.S. tariffs on Canadian lumber, and Canada has appealed this new tax to the World Trade Organization and NAFTA.

Still, this unfair tax remains in place and is a threat to:

- Millions of Americans who sell products and services to Canadian customers
- Everyone who cares about maintaining a strong relationship with Canada
- Thousands of U.S. businesses that sell lumber and lumber products
- Millions of American consumers

"A long-term solution on the lumber trade issue will get the government out of the business of interfering with the free markets, lower taxes for U.S. consumers, and ensure that Canadian consumers continue to buy American goods."

FORMER SENATOR AND
U.S. TRADE REPRESENTATIVE BILL BROCK
Co-Chair, U.S.-Canada Partnership for Growth
Oped, Washington Times - December 12, 2002

"[the 27% tariff is]...an example of how trade policy can sometimes backfire and produce results that defy classic economic theory, especially in a global economy that is producing a glut of industrial and commodity products."

Wall Street Journal – October 21, 2002

The Basic Facts

- The United States and Canada have the largest trading partnership in the world. Trade between the countries generates almost $500 billion every year or more than $1.3 billion each day. In 2000, Canada bought more U.S. goods than all 15 European Union countries combined, 3 times as much as Japan, and 61% more than Mexico.
- Canada is the number one customer for goods and services produced in 37 of the 50 states.
- In 2001, the U.S. imported more crude oil and petroleum products from Canada than from any other country, including Saudi Arabia. Of the 11 billion barrels of oil the U.S. imports each day, almost two billion come from Canada.
- The United States imports lumber from a number of countries. Over the years, Canada has supplied about one-third of the lumber the U.S. needs.
- The two countries have been able to work out disputes over lumber in the past. However, the U.S. imposed its unfair 27% import tax after the expiration of a lumber agreement the two countries negotiated in 1996.
- The lumber tax has not worked out as its supporters intended. Mill workers on both sides of the border have lost their jobs.

About the U.S.-Canada Partnership for Growth

The U.S.-Canada Partnership for Growth is an alliance of individuals and organizations that share a common desire to maintain and strengthen the largest trading relationship in the world. The Partnership is focused on raising awareness of the severe strain and significant economic risks our two countries face as a result of America's 27% tax on softwood lumber imported from Canada.

The Partnership is inviting participation and support from anyone concerned with these issues, including the millions of American workers who produce goods and services sold to Canada or who depend on Canadian products and services.

To learn how you can help get the U.S.-Canada relationship back on track, please call 1-888-999-3200 or visit www.partnershipforgrowth.org.

"With the ties to the United States here [Canada] so tight, disruptions in relations with the United States can hit as hard as a family squabble. And relations now are pretty raw. The squabble is over a 27 percent American tariff levied on Canadian softwood lumber..."

The United States and Canada are more than good neighbors. Together, we've grown to become the world's largest trading partners — almost $500 billion each year, providing millions of jobs. In fact, Canada is the number one customer for the goods and services from 37 U.S. states.

*A 27% import tax on

But a new 27% import tax has been imposed on Canadian lumber, creating a trade barrier that is damaging this relationship.

If left in place, this 27% tax will cause economic harm on both sides of the border — because if a weakens America's biggest customer, it's only a matter of time before it undermines American interests as well.

ROTARY CLUB OF SPRINGFIELD

Former Senator Bill Brock Addresses Group on Business with Canada

Springfield, MO – May 18, 2004 – Senator Bill Brock, Co-Chair of the U.S.-Canada Partnership for Growth, former U.S. Trade Representative and Senator from Tennessee, today addressed the Rotary Club of Springfield, Missouri, underscoring the importance of the U.S. - Canada trade relationship to Missouri.

Before an audience of business and civic leaders, Brock welcomed Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin's commitment to strengthen and improve relations between Canada and the U.S, and discussed the positive impact of NAFTA on its 10th anniversary. Brock also urged policymakers not to lose sight of the economic significance of the U.S and Canada trade relationship when approaching current international trade issues and disputes.

"The U.S. and Canada enjoy the largest trading relationship in the world, generating $500 billion in two-way trade each year – or almost $1.3 billion each day," stated Brock. "Canada buys more U.S. goods and services than any other country. In Missouri, Canada is the leading foreign market with exports totaling $3.5 billion – more than Missouri's next fourteen foreign trading partners combined."

Trade with Canada in 2002 was worth nearly $6 billion. Transportation – Missouri's leading export sector – accounted for $2.1 billion or 61% of total Canada-bound trade, followed by medicine and organic chemicals. On the import side, Missouri bought motor vehicle parts and engines, metal products, softwood lumber and newsprint from Canada.

Today, however, Brock noted the U.S.-Canada relationship is strained because of certain trade issues that are distorting the free market and threatening jobs on both sides of the border.

"The U.S. and Canada have a common economic outlook on the world and a mutual commitment to security," said Brock. "Therefore, as we approach trade issues, it is important to keep these common beliefs in mind so we can keep this valuable relationship on track. One way to do that is by reaffirming our position as a free trader and underscoring the vital role fair and open trade can play in our economic recovery and our economic destiny."

"Trade is a complex process with rules that call for constant interpretation," Brock went on to say. "We will make our mark as a trading partner with Canada and the world in how we work through that process so all sides to a dispute can live with the outcome."

Citing the current lumber dispute as an example, Brock said that "putting an end to the lumber dispute can get an important relationship back on track, reaffirm our position as a committed free trader, and give the economy of Missouri and the rest of the country a much-needed boost."

DENVER'S WORLD TRADE DAY AND UNIVERSITY OF DENVER

Former U.S. Trade Representative Bill Brock Addresses World Trade Day Attendees and University of Denver Students and Faculty on Business with Canada

Denver, CO – May 19, 2004 – Senator Bill Brock, Co-Chair of the U.S.-Canada Partnership for Growth, former U.S. Trade Representative and Senator from Tennessee, today addressed attendees at Denver's World Trade Day 2004, underscoring the importance of the U.S. - Canada trade relationship to Colorado. The Government of Canada currently has a Consulate office in Denver. Because Denver is one of the U.S.'s economic power centers, this office will be elevated to the level of Consulate General later this summer and will continue to serve an important role in fostering U.S. and Canada relations.

Before an audience of business and civic leaders, Brock welcomed Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin's commitment to strengthen and improve relations between Canada and the U.S., and discussed the positive impact of NAFTA on its 10th anniversary. Brock also urged policymakers not to lose sight of the economic significance of the U.S. and Canada trade relationship when approaching current international trade issues and disputes.

"The U.S. and Canada enjoy the largest trading relationship in the world, generating $500 billion in two-way trade each year – or almost $1.3 billion each day," stated Brock. "Canada buys more U.S. goods and services than any other country. In 2002, Colorado-Canada trade was worth nearly $2 billion. That year, the state exported $704 million in goods to Canada, or almost 26% of its total foreign bound exports.

Canada is Colorado's top export market, with computer related products serving as the state's largest export sector – totaling $255 million and more than doubling from 2001, followed by exports of agriculture and medical equipment. On the import side, Colorado, imported $155 million worth of Canadian agricultural products, as well as newsprint and softwood lumber.

Today, however, Brock noted the U.S.-Canada relationship is strained because of certain trade issues that are distorting the free market and threatening jobs on both sides of the border.

"The U.S. and Canada have a common economic outlook on the world and a mutual commitment to security," said Brock. "Therefore, as we approach trade issues, it is important to keep these common beliefs in mind so we can keep this valuable relationship on track. One way to do that is by reaffirming our position as a free trader and underscoring the vital role free trade can play in our economic recovery and our economic destiny."

"Trade is a complex process with rules that call for constant interpretation," Brock went on to say. "We will make our mark as a trading partner with Canada and the world in how we work through that process so all sides to a dispute can live with the outcome."

Citing the current lumber dispute as an example, Brock said that "putting an end to the lumber dispute can get an important relationship back on track, reaffirm our position as a committed free trader, and give the economy of Colorado and the rest of the country a much-needed boost."

In the afternoon at a public forum, Brock addressed students and faculty of the University of Denver Graduate School of International Studies, and underscored the importance of the friendship between the two nations and the State of Colorado.
