Delegation from Republic of China on Taiwan to Visit Idaho on Wheat Procurement Mission

A ten member delegation from the Republic of China on Taiwan will visit Boise, Idaho August 22-23 on a wheat procurement mission. The mission is part of Taiwan's "Buy American" program that will see Taiwan spend US$100 million on 660 thousand metric tons of wheat throughout seven U.S. states

The "Buy American" program began in 1978 as an effort to redress the trade imbalance between the U.S. and Taiwan.

In its 15 previous missions Taiwan has spent over 10 billion U.S. dollars acquiring U.S. manufactured industrial goods as well as agricultural products. As part of the "Buy American" program, Taiwan has arranged seminars to direct exporters towards the consumer needs of a growing Taiwan market. These ROC- sponsored seminars informed U.S. exporters of an export financing program through which EXIM, Taiwan's export/import bank provides U.S. commercial banks with low-cost fixed-rate funds to lend again to U.S. manufacturers exporting to the Republic of China. The Program has facilitated trade exchanges beneficial to both countries.

According to recent statistics, Taiwan imported 92 percent of its wheat from the United States. Taiwan now consumes an average of $650 of U.S. goods per capita, nearly twice as much as Japan ($308).

This year in Boise, the government-sponsored delegation will sign a contract for 88 thousand metric tons of wheat valued at approximately US$10 million. The group is scheduled to meet with Governor Cecil D. Andrus at 8:30 am in the governor's office August 23 before the wheat tender at 9:00 am in the Gold room of the Capitol building. A press conference will follow shortly thereafter.

From Idaho the mission will continue on to Wyoming, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Minnesota.

A tax-exempt public policy research Institute

You are cordially invited to a reception celebrating the 92nd birthday of Dr. Walter Judd, and the publication of the recently released biography,
Missionary For Freedom: The Life and Times of Walter Judd
by Dr. Lee Edwards

September 25, 1990

5:30 - 7:00 P.M.

The Heritage Foundation's Lehrman Auditorium
214 Massachusetts Ave., N.E.
Washington, D.C.

Dr. Judd, a member of the U.S. House of Representatives from 1943 to 1962, served as a medical missionary to China in the twenties and thirties. A recipient of the Presidential Medal of Freedom, Judd is the founder of Aid for Refugee Chinese Intellectuals, and co-founder of World Neighbors, World Youth Crusade for Freedom, the American-Asian Educational Exchange, and the Committee for a Free China.

William F. Buckley, Jr. writes of Dr. Judd:

"I registered it as my opinion twenty-five years ago that I admired Walter Judd over any living American. I reiterate this, and rejoice that his life is now between hard covers, a splendid job of research and writing by Lee Edwards, a tribute to a great doctor, missionary, legislator, teacher and orator."

Dr. Edwards, who teaches at Catholic University of America and is a Senior Editor at The World And I, will be present to autograph copies of the book.

September 18, 1990

Dear Radio Telephone Interviewer:

On the occasion of his 92nd birthday, Walter Judd, the 20-year Congressman from Minnesota, co-author of legislation creating the United Nations, NATO, the Marshall Plan, Voice of America, the Truman Doctrine and the World Health Organization, will celebrate the day with a new, highly acclaimed, definitive biography.

Missionary for Freedom: the Life and Times of Walter Judd by Lee Edwards will be published on September 25 by Paragon House.

Author Lee Edwards is President of the Center for International Relations, a private think tank in Washington, D.C. A former fellow at the Institute of Politics at the Kennedy School of Government, Dr. Edwards is currently director of public and international communications at The Catholic University of America. His curriculum vitae is enclosed, together with a "tip sheet" of suggested questions for interviewers and advance reviews of the book.

At this time of international crisis, a look back at the foreign affairs agenda and achievements of this great legislator from America's heartland will offer your listeners an inspiring and informative overview of recent American history. Extensive knowledge of China gained while Judd was a medical missionary there made him a key foreign affairs advisor to Presidents Truman, Johnson, Nixon, Ford and Reagan. This engrossing political biography provides a better understanding of the people and culture of China as we shape today's policies toward mainland China.

Dr. Judd received the Presidential Medal of Freedom from President Reagan in 1981. Voted one of the most admired members of Congress by his colleagues, he was twice considered as a vice-presidential candidate by the Republican party.

Author Lee Edwards will be available for telephone interviews from September 24 on. To arrange a date and time for this telephone interview, or if you need a copy of the book or have any further questions, please call me at 202/638-4600.

We promise you a candid inside look at one of the most prominent figures in American history.

Sincerely,

Nancy Hart Keever

"Tip Sheet" of suggested questions for interviewers of Lee Edwards, author of
MISSIONARY FOR FREEDOM: The Life and Times of Walter Judd

1. As a man who personally knew every American president from Roosevelt to Reagan, every Secretary of State from Acheson to Kissinger, Dr. Walter Judd must have his own thoughts about President Bush and Secretaries Baker and Cheney. What advice do you feel he would give them in managing the present crisis in the Persian Gulf?
2. Reading about Dr. Judd's remarkable dedication to humanity and the country, and the strength of his convictions and courage, we wonder if you know what produced his unusual character? Was it his church-going parents and religious background? His need to work his way through college and medical school in a series of menial, low-paying jobs? To what do you attribute his zeal in both missionary medicine and as a crusading congressman?
3. In your chapters on Dr. Judd's hair-raising experiences in China in remote medical missions before and during the Sino-Japanese War, and his miraculous escapes from torture, detention and death, you give us a few of the nightmares he endured before his return to the United States and eventual decision to run for Congress. Can you fill in some of the events and motivations that led him to make the leap from curing the ills of his patients to those of the world?
4. Can you tell us briefly about Dr. Judd's work in the Congress in helping to establish the United Nations, the Voice of America and the World Health Organization, as well as his role in the removal of the racial discrimination clauses from the U.S. immigration laws -- all highly controversial causes at the time.
5. With Judd's personal acquaintanceship with General Chiang Kai-shek and his first-hand knowledge of modern Chinese history, including the establishment of the Republic of China on Taiwan, his view of the current situation there would interest us. What role does he see now for the Republic of China in relation to mainland China, the other Pacific Rim countries and the world community in general?
6. In your final chapter, you mention that President Nixon's note of congratulations to Walter Judd on his 90th birthday said, "It is no reflection on Cabot, incidentally, that had you gone on the ticket we might have won." Do you agree? Do you feel Judd missed out on becoming a vice presidential candidate on several occasions because of the problem he had with facial cancer? It seemed so.
7. What were Dr. Judd's most trying moments in his political career?
8. Could we ask you to sum up for us Walter Judd's most important contributions to the Congress and to the country in his many decades of public service?
9. As an author, journalist and columnist, you write mainly about current events. What led you to the discovery of Walter Judd as a great American and as a subject for this definitive biography?

The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia

Economy

Before the discovery of oil, Saudi Arabia's economy was based primarily on agriculture and trade. In the Hijaz, where the Holy Cities of Makkah and Madinah are located, revenues from the annual pilgrimage of Muslims provided an additional source of income.

The foundation of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and the discovery of vast amounts of oil made the 1930s a momentous decade. These events coalesced the nation and provided the resources necessary for economic development and the base for a solid infrastructure. Operating a free enterprise system, the Kingdom has experienced unprecedented economic growth in the past 29 years.

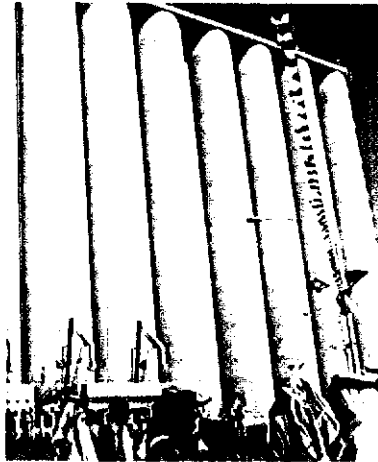

Saudi Arabia is developing a broader and more diversified economic base to reduce its reliance on oil revenues. In 1985, when the fourth five-year development plan was announced, less than 43 percent of the Kingdom's revenue was derived from the sale of crude oil. Increases in petrochemical production and growing private sector involvement reveal the success of Saudi Arabia's economic diversification.

Saudi Arabia is committed to the development of its agricultural and industrial sectors. Self-sufficiency in wheat production was achieved in 1984. Today, Saudi Arabia is a major wheat exporter. Industrialization efforts include fertilizers, steel, cement, glass, and plastics.

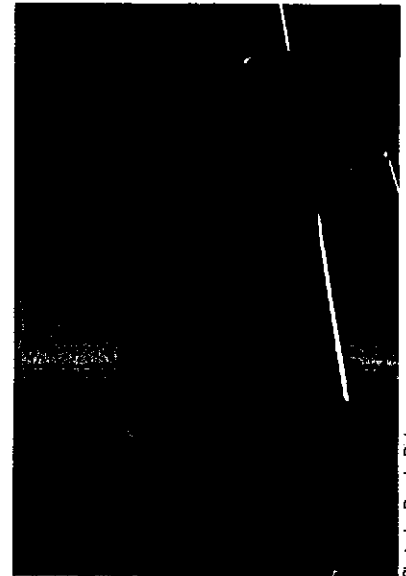

Saudi Arabia has developed a comprehensive health care and social services system. The Kingdom provides all Saudis, even in the most remote communities of the country, as well as pilgrims visiting the Holy Cities of Makkah and Madinah, with free medical treatment. New hospitals and clinics are continually under construction and the incorporation of updated technology remains a priority of the government. Specialized medical treatment is available within the Kingdom.

The Kingdom's social services network is dedicated to improving the quality of life of the population. The government has invested heavily in construction and in the necessary infrastructure to permit and promote housing development. The 1985-1990 development plan allocates about $1 billion for government spending on housing. Other major government programs provide support for workers or their families in cases of disability, retirement, or death; as well as social security pensions, benefits, and relief assistance to the disadvantaged or disabled such as the elderly and orphans.

Saudi Arabia is now benefitting from its sophisticated infrastructure which includes 95,350 kilometers (59,117 miles) of urban and rural roads, the only rail system on the Arabian peninsula, the largest airline in the Middle East, an extensive and efficient postal system, and one of the world's most modern telecommunications networks.

The Kingdom has emerged as a major wheat exporter.

Energy

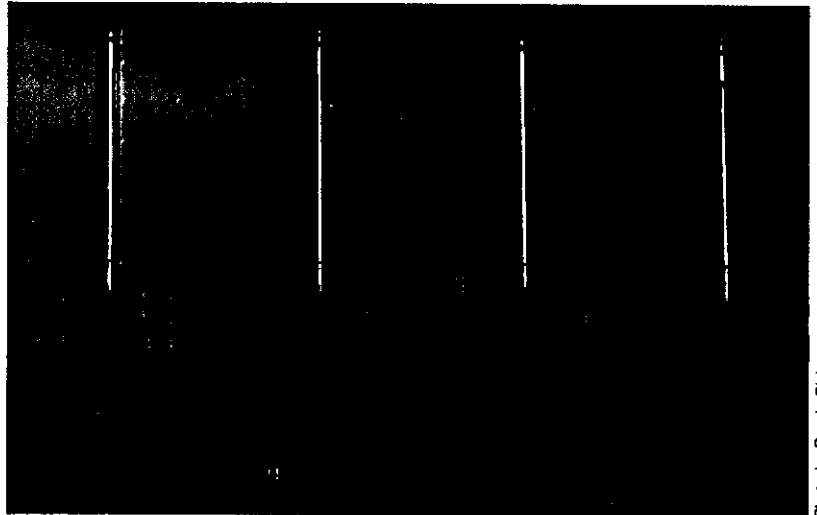

Beneath the sands and offshore waters of Saudi Arabia lie the largest oil reserves of any country—more than one-quarter of the proven oil reserves in the world.

In 1933, Saudi Arabia's founder, King Abdul Aziz, granted the Standard Oil Company of California (SOCAL) the right to prospect for oil in the Kingdom. In 1938, geologists discovered commercially-exploitable quantities of oil at Dammam Oil Well #7, which is still producing today. The Arabian American Oil Company (ARAMCO) was founded in 1944 and thereafter held the right to search for oil in Saudi Arabia. By 1949, ARAMCO was producing 500,000 barrels of crude oil a day, up from 20,000 before 1944. Crude oil production increased by an average of 19 percent a year from 1945 through 1974—reaching 8.2 million barrels a day in 1974.

The Saudi government assumed full ownership of ARAMCO in 1980. Both the public and private sectors have cooperated in the development of oil and gas in Saudi Arabia. The Saudi Arabian Oil Company (Saudi-ARAMCO), the Arabian Oil Company, and the Getty Oil Company manage crude oil production, while a wider range of institutions are responsible for refining, blending, and exporting, including the General Petroleum and Minerals Organization (PETROMIN) and the Saudi Arabian Marketing and Refining Company (SAMAREC), multinational oil companies, and the domestic private sector.

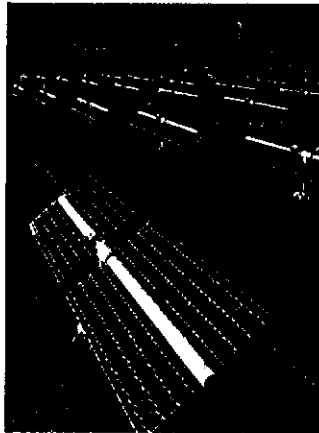

Most of the Kingdom's oil reserves are located in the Eastern Province. By 1985, 59 commercial oil fields had been discovered in the country. The largest onshore field is Ghawar, which has produced over 25 billion barrels, and the largest offshore field is Safaniya. In 1980, Saudi Arabia's production hit a record 10 million barrels a day. In the mid-1980s, however, the world recession, among other factors, caused Saudi Arabia to reduce its production, although it maintained its rank as the third-largest crude oil producer in the world. In 1989, Saudi-ARAMCO's remaining reserves totalled about 252 billion barrels of oil. The Kingdom's reserves could be as high as 315 billion barrels, given expanded exploration and further development of oil fields.

Oil wealth has allowed the Kingdom to undertake major five-year development plans, beginning in 1970, developing the country into a modern, technologically-advanced nation. At the same time, Saudi Arabia has shouldered the responsibility for managing its petroleum production to maintain a stable international supply.

Population

Saudi Arabia has a population of approximately 12 million, all of whom are Muslims. Most native Saudi Arabians are descended from the country's indigenous Arab tribes. Today's Saudi Arabian combines the Bedouin virtues of discipline, perseverance, and strength with determination to meet modern challenges through adherence to Islamic values, education, and ingenuity.

Saudi Arabia's sheer size dictates a diversity in local customs and characteristics of the people from its various provinces: Central Arabia, the Najd; the Western Region, the Hijaz; the Southwest, Asir; and the Eastern Province. Despite these differences, however, all Saudis share a very strong sense of national identity.

Stamps and Money

The Saudi riyal is the basic monetary unit in Saudi Arabia. It consists of 100 halalahs and is issued in notes and coins of various denominations.

The first stamps issued for use in what is now Saudi Arabia date back to 1916. Saudi Arabia has been a member of the Universal Postal Union since 1927 and of the Arab Postal Union since 1948.

Saudi bank notes are engraved in Arabic and English.

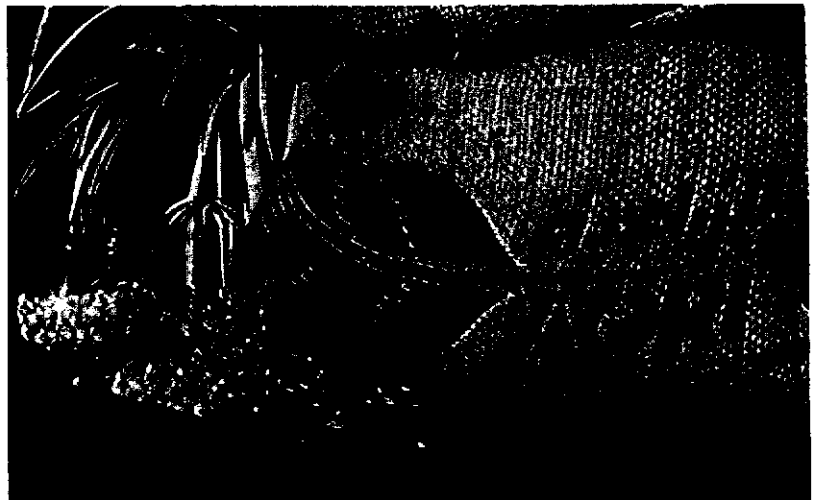

Agriculture

Over the past decade, Saudi Arabia has fundamentally transformed its agricultural landscape, converting desert into fertile farmland. The country's spectacular increase in wheat production is now considered one of the major accomplishments of modern agriculture in the Middle East.

In recent years, Saudi Arabia has become self-sufficient in most basic foods. It has even begun to export wheat, dates, dairy products, vegetables, eggs, fish, and poultry to markets around the world. The area of farmland cultivated with wheat has increased phenomenally in the past decade from 150,000 hectares to 2.5 million hectares. Today, the agricultural sector employs a significant number of people, and agriculture's share of the Kingdom's gross domestic product has risen rapidly since the mid-1970s.

Oasis farmers rely on irrigation, normally with groundwater from underground aquifers. Surveys have shown that Saudi Arabia's underground water resources are vaster than was believed in the mid-1970s. In the southwest, where rainfall is occasionally heavy, dams have been constructed to facilitate water control. The relatively small but intensively cultivated agricultural areas in the southwest, and other areas such as Qatif, Al-Qasim, Al-Kharj, and Al-Hasa, are among the most productive in the Middle East.

Each year, the country continues to meet an increasing percentage of its food needs with local production. It is also dedicated to using its precious water resources wisely, so that today's agricultural successes will continue to secure the food supply for future generations.

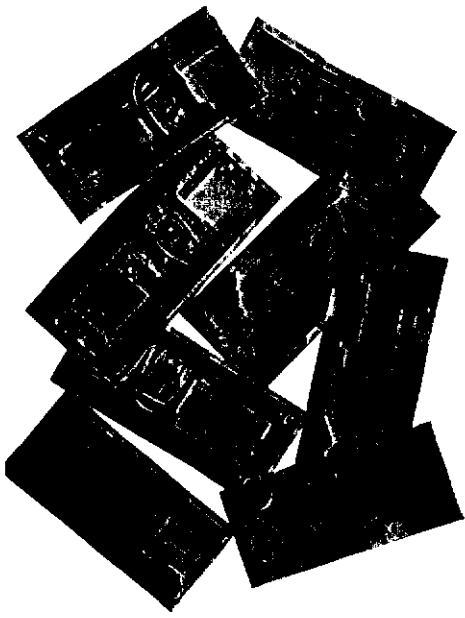

With modern farming technology, Saudi farmers have boosted agricultural production and now supply a diversity of local foods.

Dress

Men traditionally wear the thobe, a white, ankle-length, loose-fitting garment resembling a robe. It is often covered by a mishlah, a flowing floor-length cloak of light wool. Worn on the head are the ghutra and iqal, the headcloth and double ring of black cord used to hold it. These, along with sandals, are comfortable dress for desert sun and heat. Western clothes and hard hats are worn for safety at industrial sites.

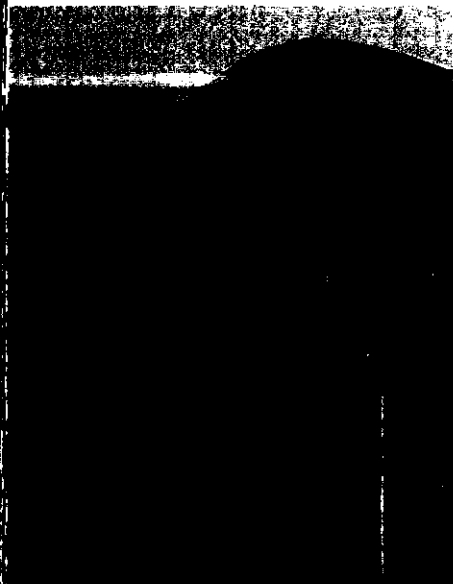

Women in the larger towns wear Western fashions. When out-of-doors and outside the immediate family circle, they wear an outer garment called an abaya, a black, floor-length cloak.

Stunning colors and elaborate workmanship stamp the traditional dress of Saudi women.

Arabic Writing and Art

Arabic is written and read from right to left. The script has been used since at least 300 A.D., and is often used for ornamentation in the form of calligraphy. While not forbidden by the Qur'an, the depiction of human forms has generally been avoided for fear that it may lead to hero or saint worship. Arabesques (designs based on geometric forms or patterns of leaves and flowers) are also used for decoration.

Objects of Islamic art, which are frequently utilitarian as well as beautiful, are often adorned with graceful Arabic calligraphy.

The flag of Saudi Arabia (shown at left) bears the Muslim creed: There is no god but God; Muhammad is the messenger of God.

The official emblem of the Kingdom (shown at right) is a date palm and crossed swords. The date palm represents vitality and growth. The swords symbolize justice and strength rooted in faith.

History

The Arabian peninsula has supported agricultural, herding, and hunting cultures for thousands of years. Living on important ancient trade routes, the ancestors of the Saudi Arabians were touched by diverse civilizations, including those of Mesopotamia, Egypt, Greece, Rome, Byzantium, India, Persia, and China.

The Qur'an (Koran), the holy book of Islam, was revealed to the Prophet Muhammad in the western Arabian cities of Makkah (Mecca) and Madinah (Medina) beginning about 610 A.D. The birth of the new faith of Islam was one of the most momentous events in history.

Inspired by Islam, the Arabs expanded out of Arabia spreading Islam and the Arabic language. Their vast empire soon stretched from the Atlantic Ocean in the west to central Asia in the east, embracing today's southern Italy, Spain, and parts of France.

The Muslim Arab civilization remained vigorous for centuries, providing stability and advancing human knowledge while Western civilization was in eclipse during the Middle Ages.

The Arabs made extensive and original contributions to chemistry, physics, optics, astronomy, medicine, mathematics, literature, and philosophy. They invented algebra, whose name derives from an Arabic word. They also transmitted the number system, called Arabic numerals, to the West.

In the 13th century, the Mongol invasions dealt a devastating blow to the Arabs' eastern lands, and their empire began to decline.

The history of modern Saudi Arabia begins with Abdul Aziz Al-Saud, known in the West as Ibn Saud. The Al-Saud family had reigned over much of Arabia in the early 19th century. It lost part of its territory to the Turks later in the century, however, and was driven from its capital, Riyadh, by the rival House of Rashid.

In 1902 Abdul Aziz recaptured the city and began to reconquer and reunify the country, which he completed some three decades later. In 1927, Abdul Aziz was officially proclaimed king, and the country was named the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia in 1932.

From the discovery of oil in commercial quantities in 1938, rapid economic development and rising prominence in world affairs have dominated the most recent chapter of Saudi Arabia's history.

Geography

Saudi Arabia, with an area of about 865,000 square miles, occupies the bulk of the Arabian peninsula. It is roughly one-third the size of the continental United States, and the same size as all of Western Europe.

Saudi Arabia lies at the crossroads of three continents—Europe, Asia, and Africa. It extends from the Red Sea on the west to the Arabian Gulf in the east. To the north it borders on Jordan, Iraq, and Kuwait, and to the south, on the Yemen Arab Republic (North Yemen), the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen (South Yemen), and the Sultanate of Oman. To the east lie the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, and the island state of Bahrain.

Saudi Arabia's terrain is varied but on the whole fairly barren and harsh, with salt flats, gravel plains, and sand dunes but few lakes or permanent streams. In the south is the Rub Al-Khali (Empty Quarter), the largest sand desert in the world. In the southwest, the mountain ranges of Asir Province rise to over 9,000 feet.

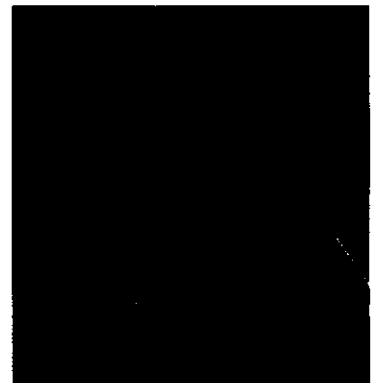

Cultivated fields and green pastures are part of the Saudi landscape.

Law and Government

The Shari'a, the Islamic code of law based on the Qur'an and the sunnah, is the foundation of the legal system of Saudi Arabia. The Qur'an itself is considered the constitution of the country and provides ethical values and guidance.

Saudi Arabia is an Islamic state. Executive and legislative authority are exercised by the King and the Council of Ministers within the framework of Islamic law. The Kingdom's ministries and all other government agencies are ultimately responsible to the King.

The Qur'an, the holy book of Islam, has illuminated the lives of Muslims for close to 1,400 years.

Calendar

Saudi Arabia officially uses the Islamic calendar based on a lunar year rather than the Gregorian calendar based on a solar year used in the West. A lunar month is the time between two successive new moons. Although containing 12 months, the lunar year is 11 days shorter than the solar year, hence the holy days and other occasions gradually shift from one season to another.

Dates are reckoned from the year of the Prophet Muhammad's hijra (emigration) from Makkah to Madinah (622 A.D.). The Western method of designating Islamic dates is A.H. (Anno Hegirae). 1989 A.D. roughly corresponds to 1409 A.H.

Friday is the Islamic holy day, and the work week begins on Saturday.

Religion

Islam is one of the world's great monotheistic religions. The followers of Islam, called Muslims, believe in one God—Allah in Arabic—and that Muhammad is His Prophet. Today, the worldwide community of Muslims, which embraces the people of many races and cultures, numbers nearly one billion. There are approximately two million Muslims in the United States.

Historically, Saudi Arabia has occupied a special place in the Islamic world as the very heartland of Islam. Indeed, it is toward the sacred Ka'abah in Makkah that Muslims turn devoutly in prayer five times a day.

The Qur'an, the sacred scripture of Islam, was revealed and is universally recited in Arabic.

A Muslim has five obligations, called the Five Pillars of Islam. First is the profession of faith: "There is no god but God; Muhammad is the messenger of God." Second is praying five times a day, facing the holy city of Makkah. Third is zakat, almsgiving. Zakat prescribes payment of fixed proportions of a Muslim's possessions for the welfare of the entire community and, in particular, for its neediest members. Fourth is fasting during Ramadan, the ninth month of the Muslim calendar, at which time Muslims abstain from food and drink from dawn to sunset. The fifth pillar is performing the hajj, or pilgrimage, to Makkah at least once in a lifetime. The hajj is a gathering of millions of Muslims from around the world.

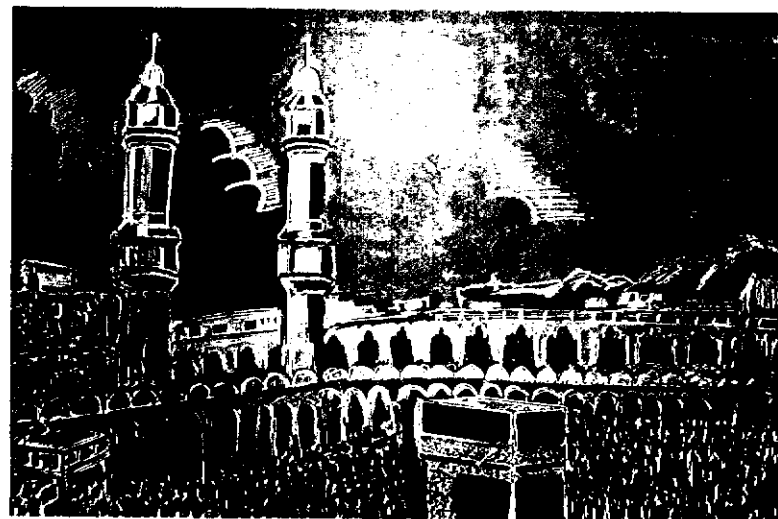

The Kingdom continues to dedicate considerable financial and human resources to enable even more pilgrims to perform the hajj in comfort and safety.

To Saudi Arabia, the holy cities of Makkah, the birthplace of Islam and the Prophet Muhammad, and Madinah, the Prophet's burial place, are a sacred trust exercised on behalf of all Muslims. Recognizing the unique and historic tradition these holy sites represent, King Fahd adopted the official title of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques as an expression of his deep sense of responsibility toward Islam.

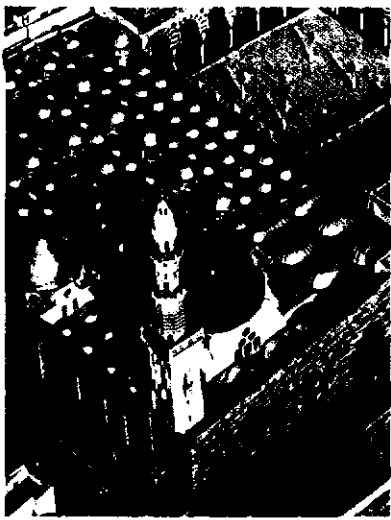

Muslim pilgrims surround the Ka'abah at the Holy Mosque in Makkah. The Ka'abah is the physical center of Islam toward which nearly one billion Muslims turn devoutly in prayer five times a day.

Climate

From June through August, midday temperatures in the desert can soar to over 100° F. Humidity in the coastal regions may approach 100 percent at times. In contrast, weather in other areas of the country may be mild throughout the year. Winter temperatures in the northern and central regions may drop to below freezing.

The shamal, sand-laden winds from the northern deserts, is most frequent in early summer and can blow for days at 25-30 miles an hour. Rainfall ranges from none at all for up to 10 years in the Rub Al-Khali, to 20 inches a year in the mountains of Asir Province.

Saudi Arabia occupies a leading position in world date production.

Education

There are 15,000 schools and educational institutions with over 2.5 million students in Saudi Arabia. Education is free for boys and girls from the elementary through university levels. There are seven universities as well as other institutions of higher learning, such as colleges of education for girls, teachers' institutes, and vocational and technical institutes.

Scouting, youth clubs, and sports activities are encouraged and supported by the government. Soccer is the most popular sport.

Oil Money Provides Base For Saudi Diversification

Nation Far From One-Product Economy

By Thomas W. Lippman
Washington Post Staff Writer

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia—Life offers many opportunities to the ambitious young people who are being educated in this country's new universities and technical schools, but surprisingly few of them are in the oil business. Saudi Arabia is no longer a one-product economy.

Two decades into the great oil boom that transformed Saudi Arabia from a primitive backwater into a modernizing state, less than 1 percent of the labor force is employed in the production or export of crude oil. In what may be the biggest pump-priming operation ever undertaken, the government has used its oil revenue to finance the development of public utilities, communications, agriculture, manufacturing and construction industries that now dominate the domestic economy.

Oil money paid for the land, no-interest loans, tax holidays, cheap electricity, low-cost housing, desalinated water and other incentives that lured foreign investors to build factories here. Oil money financed the fertilizer plants, water pipes and land-development subsidies that made agriculture the fastest-growing sector of the economy. Oil revenue paid for the schools, hospitals and libraries that employ 1.8 million people. Oil money paid for the enormous gas-gathering system that captures and turns into chemical feedstocks the natural gas byproducts that formerly were wasted.

In a laissez-faire environment that presents few obstacles to private investment, these state-financed projects stimulated a thriving private-sector economy in which Saudi citizens are making money in businesses that range from fast-food ventures to maritime insurance.

Statistics compiled by the Ministry of Planning and confirmed by independent analysts show that crude oil production accounts for less than 25 percent of Saudi Arabia's gross domestic product. In an estimated population of 15.2 million—about half Saudi citizens, the rest expatriates and foreign contract laborers—only 47,000 workers, or 0.8 percent of the labor force, are engaged in the production and export of crude oil and natural gas.

By contrast, agriculture employs 570,000 workers; trade, hotels and restaurants, 900,000; manufacturing, including oil refining, 375,000; transportation and communications, 262,000; finance and real estate, 100,000; and government agencies—including schools but excluding the armed forces—625,000.

It was staggeringly expensive to modernize and diversify an economy dominated a generation ago by nomadic herdsman and primitive farmers, but Saudis say it was worth it, politically as well as economically. Government officials, academics and corporate executives interviewed recently said the country wanted to avoid the creation of a restless generation excluded from economic power.

"Now everybody in this country has a personal stake in it—a house, a job, a school, a secure and safe living and the liberty to do whatever he wants personally," said Hisham Nazer, Saudi Arabia's oil minister and former minister of planning. Western analysts say it goes too far to assert that "everyone" has reached the comfort level described by Nazer—especially among the Shiite religious minority—but there is no doubt that Saudi citizens in general are prosperous. The mud-walled oasis villages where today's older generation grew up are deserted now.

But government planners are aware that they have not solved the problem of finding politically acceptable outlets for young Saudis who now take education for granted. The current five-year development plan notes that jobs will be needed for 433,900 Saudis entering the labor force, when overall employment is expected to grow by only 213,500.

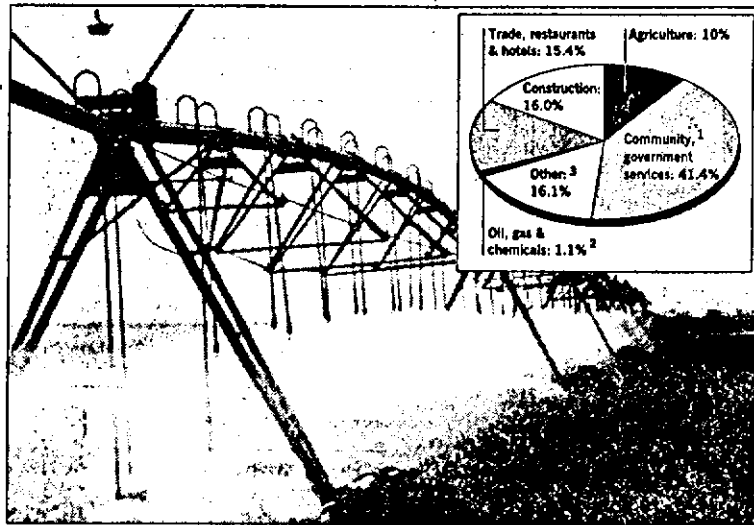

Those figures include the armies of imported workers who do the country's dirty work, such as cleaning hotel rooms and slaughtering chickens. Saudi citizens are clustered in government jobs and top management positions. The five-year plan calls for reducing the wage gap between Saudi and non-Saudi workers, calling it "a serious barrier to the employment of Saudis in the private sector, especially in low-skill occupations."

The oil industry alone cannot meet the demand for jobs that pay well enough to attract Saudi labor—hence the emphasis on diversifying the economy and stimulating new investment by the private sector.

"We're serious about diversification," said Mahmoud Fayez, an official in the Ministry of Planning.

The most visible signs of it are the petrochemical plants proliferating in the government-built new cities of Jubail and Yanbu, he said, but "we have everything here," from jewelry making to food processing.

The biggest weapon in the diversification campaign has been SABIC, the state-owned Saudi Basic Industries Corp.

SABIC was established by a royal decree in 1976. Its mission was to use Saudi Arabia's vast reserves of natural gas, previously a wasted byproduct of crude oil production, as the raw material for a petrochemical industry that would be the foundation of diversification.

SABIC's method was to negotiate joint-venture agreements with foreign partners. SABIC contributed capital, land and raw materials; the foreigners contributed technical knowledge and access to world markets.

By the end of 1989, according to the company's annual report, SABIC and its partners owned and operated 15 plants in Saudi Arabia and three in Bahrain, turning out methanol, caustic soda, ethylene dichloride, ethylene glycol, polyvinyl chloride, urea, ammonia, steel and aluminum. It had 9,000 employees, including 5,300 Saudis, and assets of 30 billion riyals, or $8 billion. SABIC reported net income for 1989 of $952 million.

Its partners include Mobil Oil Corp., Exxon Corp., Kaiser Aluminum Co. and companies in Finland, Japan, Germany and South Korea.

"We are an aggressive competitor in the world," said Ibrahim A. Ibn Salamah, SABIC's chief executive officer. "Demand is increasing worldwide, and we intend to keep and expand our share of international markets."

Some European petrochemical manufacturers have complained that SABIC has an unfair advantage because of its access to low-priced gas and government incentives, but Ibn Salamah denied it.

Other skeptics question whether petrochemical industries represent true diversification away from oil or are just the same industry in a different form. Government economists have little patience with this argument.

"Oil and gas are what we have. Why not build on them?" asked one official. "That's our biggest base and we should diversify within it. We aren't going to go into textiles or other industries just so we can say we have them."

He and every other official here said that SABIC and the government do not undertake any venture or enter any partnership unless they are convinced it can make money.

The fundamental problem, it seems to me, is that this is the most blatant case of 1930's-style aggression in the entire postwar period. In the middle of peace, without any particular provocation except the desire for more territory, Iraq has annexed Kuwait. If that is permitted to stand it will lead to a whole series of conflicts and revolutions in the region.

I referred to Germany in the 30's and not to Soviet expansionism in the 1950's because the Soviet Union did not actually annex those countries. Rather, it insisted on its right to impose puppet governments on unwilling populations. Saddam Hussein is actually abolishing a state and a dynasty that has ruled Kuwait for 250 years.

If Saddam Hussein succeeds, in particular on the basis of the arguments he has used—that Iraq has an implicit right to supplant Arab states by military action—all the principalities in the gulf will be put at risk because virtually every country in the area, including Jordan, fits Hussein's criteria for justifying the overthrow of Kuwait, with the possible exception of Egypt.

If Hussein succeeds, a cycle of conflicts in the Middle East is absolutely inevitable, probably culminating in an Arab-Israeli war.

If Saddam Hussein can make his coup stick, in the face of unanimous opposition from the United Nations, a worldwide embargo and a U.S. military deployment, we will enter a period of growing chaos.

Edward W. Said

The Old Dominion Foundation Professor in the Humanities, Columbia University; a member of the Palestine National Council.

As an Arab and an American, the awful events unfolding in the gulf fill me with dread and sorrow. I have grown up with the spectacle of Arab and American interests in the Middle East for the most part in conflict. My assessment of American interests today as they have been acted upon and spoken about by President Bush now and in the past is that these interests are the unimpeded flow of relatively inexpensive and abundant Arab oil, the compliance of one or several Arab leaders with U.S. interests basically in protecting the flow of oil and not standing in the way of America's other major interest: Israel.

Beyond that, I have felt that the aspirations, the attempt to deal with a difficult historical legacy, the desire to achieve development and independence which have characterized the best of Arab nationalism—all these have never been considered to have entered the pursuit of American interests in the region. It is true that the Arab world today presents a sorry spectacle, with all sorts of inequities, tyrannies and mediocrities to make us all feel ashamed. Saddam is one of the results of the difficulties the Arab world faces—a tyrant and an aggressor, who seems nevertheless to speak to hidden emotions and frustrations in the collective Arab soul.

I am also angered as to why an illegal Iraqi occupation of Kuwait has aroused far more American force and passion than the brutalities and callousness of Israel's 23-year-old occupation of Arab land.

John C. West

University of South Carolina; Governor of South Carolina, 1971-75; Ambassador to Saudi Arabia, 1977-81.

We do have a tremendous economic stake in the Mideast. We cannot afford to have Saddam Hussein or anyone else who is unfriendly to the United States control nearly half of the world's oil supplies. The fact is that we are far more dependent on imported Mideast oil than we want to admit. For example, in 1973, when we had the first oil embargo, we were importing less than 30 per cent of our oil. President Nixon declared Operation Independence, saying we would be free of imported oil in seven years. . . . The crisis ended, Mr. Nixon's plans were shelved, the next crisis came in '79, and at that time we were importing 40 per cent of our oil.

In the late 70's, the Congress appropriated $88 billion for alternate energy sources and to meet the problem of dependence upon foreign oil. Again, the crisis ended, and there is at most only one small part of that program still alive; I believe it is a shale oil project of very minimal size.

Today . . . the person who controls half of the world's oil resources determines the world economic outlook, inflation, and whether we have a depression or whether we have prosperity.

The United States has some difficult times ahead. The history of boycotts' working is not good. But the hope must be maintained that the boycott of Iraq, including a shutting off of the oil supplies, will cause Saddam Hussein to retreat. If that does not work, we are faced with a long stalemate with our soldiers and airmen in a combat status in a hostile foreign environment, not unlike Vietnam.

Rep. Ted Weiss

Democrat of New York, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

For those of us who remember World War II, and know how it happened, what Saddam Hussein is doing bears a startling resemblance to how Hitler behaved. There were terrible consequences then, when the international community did not stand up—it just encouraged aggression.

I have had no reluctance whatsoever to speak out against American military action when it was illegal or improper, but I support U.S. policy when it stands up to illegal and improper behavior in other nations. . . . Secondly, what is happening in the Middle East is important because of the oil—it is of terribly important concern to our economy.

If you allow someone like Saddam Hussein to get a stranglehold on oil production, it gives him control of our economy. The price of oil operates on the basis of availability.

If you give that kind of control to a person such as Saddam Hussein, who is very, very ruthless, the consequences would be very, very dire.

We've been touring Saudi Arabia as a moderate force in the region, one we had the capacity to rely on, so it is nice to know that in fact, they are willing to let us help them defend themselves. . . .

Also, the crisis demonstrated that when Israel expresses its concern for its security, it is not being paranoid. There are nations surrounding her which are in fact very aggressive and very powerful. The safety and security of Israel has to be one of the top priorities for Israel and her friends.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder

Democrat of Colorado and a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

Basically, our main interest in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait comes down to a three-letter word, oil. It is oil, oil and oil. Regrettably, we have diverted all our attention away from an energy program, and alternate sources of energy. We don't seem to have any capacity as a nation to think long-term: anyone who looked at the region could tell it has not gotten any more stable, and we certainly know the entire industrialized world relies heavily on oil. The world economy is quirky enough without a massive oil shock.

That's why we didn't have time to play around in dealing with this crisis. . . . Saddam Hussein had to be told that if he crossed the border into Saudi Arabia, he would be picking a fight with a force that is far bigger than just Saudi Arabia. We had to do that to convey our seriousness.

The thing I wish is that we had gone in under a United Nations flag. We did it the last time—reflagging the Kuwaiti tankers. We have become the 911 for the world. This time, we obviously had international support. . . . and the Soviets also sided with us. As a military exercise, this is going to be very costly, and I wish we didn't have to bear all of the cost by ourselves.

The tragedy of this is that some will use the crisis to insist that we need an MX missile and a B-2 bomber and S.D.I. If we had spent the billions of dollars those weapons systems cost on building up our energy independence, we would have something to sell to the rest of the world, we would be like Saddam Hussein.

Jesse Jackson

Ran for the Democratic nomination for President in 1984 and 1988.

My position has been that we must defend our allies, protect our national interests, and contribute to world stability. . . .

Kuwait and Saudi Arabia are our allies and whenever the free passage of traffic in the gulf has been threatened, they have allied with us. In the cold war, they have been our trading partners, and have played a factor in the price stability of petroleum, which affects us and the Western world. They have done things to support us, when we needed it, and they had no place else to go.

Saudi Arabia is more of an asset to us than Grenada was a threat. Kuwait is more of an asset to us than Noriega was a threat. . . .

We went to Saudi Arabia with an invitation, so it was not an invasion as it was in Panama and Grenada. In Panama and Grenada, we violated international law and put in our own governments and the world scorned us for doing so. In this case Hussein broke international law. He said he would not invade, and he did. He said he would withdraw from Kuwait, and then he annexed. And then he began moving toward Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia asked for our help. It seems to me that we were obliged to respond.

Hopefully, our military presence there will serve as a deterrent to Hussein's expansion, and our diplomatic and economic initiatives will be a factor in getting him back to his borders and getting all parties around a table for a negotiated settlement. . . . Our military presence must be temporary, for the longer they are there, the more hostilities they will engender. And that's why we must put at least as much energy into helping the Arab nations' summit succeed, led by Mubarak, as any other tactic.

James R. Schlesinger

Richard M. Nixon's Secretary of Defense, 1973-1975, and Jimmy Carter's Secretary of Energy, 1977-79. Now a counselor at the Center for Strategic and International Affairs in Washington.

Why is Saudi Arabia so important? Because it is the largest producer of oil, and the U.S. is becoming increasingly dependent on foreign sources of supply.

Could we survive without Saudi Arabia? Sure. We would find ourselves more subject to the whims of those who control the supply, but the U.S. is a large and powerful country, and could survive.

Oil prices would be higher, and probably more erratic; there would be conservation, fuel-switching, and there would be a tendency to turn to other sources of supply for oil itself. Even if Venezuela and Mexico could meet the U.S.'s oil needs, they could not compensate for the oil dependence of Europe and Japan.

But the U.S. would then lose its position as the leader of the world in the post-cold war atmosphere. This would be a serious setback to our prestige. . . . After Vietnam, we lost face for an extended period.

We were right to provide troops in Saudi Arabia as a deterrent to dissuade Iraq from attacking Saudi Arabia. We had a commitment, which has been stated and restated since the late 1970's. . . . For us to stand aside and watch Saudi Arabia be swept away would be the equivalent of standing by and watching Berlin be swept away in the 1940's.

I'm not sure Mr. Bush's political objectives of immediate and total and unequivocal withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait and the restoration of its legitimate rulers, are achievable. We may have prematurely set our feet in concrete over this.

George W. Ball

Lawyer; Under Secretary of State, 1961-66; United States Representative to the United Nations, 1968; a senior partner, Lehman Brothers, 1969-1982.

President Bush basically had no serious option but the one he is pursuing. I think it is very important, however, that he not fall into the habit of talking about this as though this were an American operation. . . . The legitimacy of what the United States is doing depends now on the Security Council's resolution. It's a United Nations action; he's got to keep that firmly now in the forefront.

Even in the most moderate Arab countries, the Arabs privately have a considerable admiration for Saddam Hussein because they have such contempt for the Kuwaitis, who have been the beneficiaries of enormous wealth and. . . have behaved in an extremely self-indulgent way.

One of the major reasons that the Saudis are not better equipped than they were to resist this aggression is because the American Congress has bowed to the pressure of the Israeli lobby and denied the Saudis the military hardware that they have tried to buy.

While the United States a few years ago was the greatest creditor nation in the world, we are now the greatest debtor nation, and we are able to maintain ourselves in substantial part because of the flow of investment money from the oil-producing countries. . . . Should Saddam Hussein be permitted to roll over on the Saudis, then with his Iraqi-Kuwaiti-Saudi production, he would have a stranglehold on the world oil market—and he would be the last person who would be inclined to use his money to . . . mitigate our position as a debtor.

Richard Helms

Former Director of Central Intelligence and former Ambassador to Iran, now an international consultant in Washington.

The vital interest of the United States in Saudi Arabia is oil. With a capital O. Any interest that we have in Kuwait is the same: oil.

When I use the term "oil," I am referring of course to crude oil production. It is the movement of this crude oil to refineries around the world which keeps the wheels of industry humming and the wheels of automobiles turning. Also oil, as the Shah used to say, is a precious commodity, because it provides the basis for a whole series of plastic byproducts as well as petrochemicals of different kinds.

The current crisis in the Middle East indicates once again how important it is for the United States to establish an energy policy. We have made various passes at this difficult activity, but each time whatever crisis has arisen, it has passed over, and the American public has forgotten the vital importance of crude oil to our economy, if not our very existence.

In recently years our import of crude oil has steadily risen until it is now almost 50 per cent of our needs. This is a dramatic change from the days when Texas oil dominated the American domestic scene. It is incumbent upon the country—the President and the Congress—to wrestle with this difficult problem of an energy policy. Otherwise the United States, in fact the free world, will become increasingly hostage to unpredictable events in the Persian Gulf area.

Bernard Lewis

Cleveland E. Dodge Professor of Near Eastern Studies Emeritus at Princeton University.

I can understand the irritation of people who ask why on earth should we get involved with all these difficult and troublesome people in far places. . . . Nevertheless I feel that irritation is misplaced.

It seems to me that there are two major reasons why we should be concerned about the Middle East to the point of doing something about it—and even incurring some risks. The first point is oil, which is necessary not only for this country, which now imports almost half its oil, but also for the free world generally.

There is a real danger that one country, one government, you might almost say one man, would control so large a proportion of the world's oil that he would have power over not only pricing but also supply. He could allocate and price as he chose, and thereby exercise a degree of control which is more than unacceptable—which is positively dangerous. Ultimately the only way to escape from this dilemma is to escape from oil, which pollutes the sea, the land, the air, politics, the economy, and much else besides.

The second point, which I think is even more important, is that if in this year 1990 a country may simply invade and annex a neighbor while the world merely says, tut, tut and does nothing effective about it, then this is the first step to the breakdown of the international order. . . . If we let this pass, we shall be back in the international jungle of the 1930's, and we know where that led.

for Intervention in the Middle East Crisis and Assisting in the Defense of Saudi Arabia*

THE DEFENSE OF SAUDI ARABIA

Delivered by GEORGE BUSH, President of the United States
The White House, Washington, D.C., August 8, 1990

In the life of a nation, we're called upon to define who we are and what we believe. Sometimes these choices are not easy. But today as President, I ask for your support in a decision I've made to stand up for what's right and condemn what's wrong—all in the cause of peace.

At my direction, elements of the 82nd Airborne Division, as well as key units of the United States Air Force are arriving today to take up defensive positions in Saudi Arabia. I took this action to assist the Saudi Arabian government in the defense of its homeland.

No one commits America's Armed Forces to a dangerous mission lightly. But after perhaps unparalleled international consultation and exhausting every alternative, it became necessary to take this action. Let me tell you why.

Less than a week ago, in the early morning hours of August 2nd, Iraqi armed forces, without provocation or warning, invaded a peaceful Kuwait. Facing negligible resistance from its much smaller neighbor, Iraq's tanks stormed in blitzkrieg fashion through Kuwait in a few short hours. With more than 100,000 troops, along with tanks, artillery and surface-to-surface missiles, Iraq now occupies Kuwait.

This aggression came just hours after Saddam Hussein specifically assured numerous countries in the area that there would be no invasion. There is no justification whatsoever for this outrageous and brutal act of aggression.

A puppet regime imposed from the outside is unacceptable. The acquisition of territory by force is unacceptable. No one, friend or foe, should doubt our desire for peace, and no one should underestimate our determination to confront aggression.

Four simple principles guide our policy. First, we seek the immediate, unconditional and complete withdrawal of all Iraqi forces from Kuwait. Second, Kuwait's legitimate government must be restored to replace the puppet regime. And third, my administration, as has been the case with every President from President Roosevelt to President Reagan, is committed to the security and stability of the Persian Gulf. And fourth, I am determined to protect the lives of American citizens abroad.

Immediately after the Iraqi invasion, I ordered an embargo of all trade with Iraq and, together with many other nations, announced sanctions that both froze all Iraqi assets in this country and protected Kuwait's assets. The stakes are high. Iraq is already a rich and powerful country that possesses the world's second largest reserves of oil and over a million men under arms. It's the fourth largest military in the world.

Our country now imports nearly half the oil it consumes and could face a major threat to its economic independence. Much of the world is even more dependent upon imported oil and is even more vulnerable to Iraqi threats.

We succeeded in the struggle from freedom in Europe because we and our allies remain stalwart. Keeping the peace in the Middle East will require no less. We're beginning a new era. This new era can be full of promise. An age of freedom. A time of peace for all peoples. But if history teaches us anything, it is that we must resist aggression or it will destroy our freedoms. Appeasement does not work. As was the case in the 1930s, we see in Saddam Hussein an aggressive dictator threatening his neighbors. Only 14 days ago Saddam Hussein promised his friends he would not invade Kuwait. And four days ago he promised the world he would withdraw. And twice we have seen what his promises mean. His promises mean nothing.

In the last few days I've spoken with political leaders from the Middle East, Europe, Asia and the Americas, and I've met with Prime Minister Thatcher, Prime Minister Mulroney, and NATO Secretary General Woerner. And all agree that Iraq cannot be allowed to benefit from its invasion of Kuwait.

We agree that this is not an American problem or a European problem or a Middle East problem. It is the world's problem. And that's why, soon after the Iraqi invasion, the United Nations Security Council, without dissent, condemned Iraq, calling for the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of its troops from Kuwait. The Arab world, through both the Arab League and the Gulf Cooperation Council, courageously announced its opposition to Iraqi aggression. Japan, the United Kingdom, and France, and other governments around the world have imposed severe sanctions. The Soviet Union and China ended all arms sales to Iraq.

And this past Monday, the United Nations Security Council approved for the first time in 23 years mandatory sanctions under Chapter VII of the United Nations Charter. These sanctions, now enshrined in international law, have the potential to deny Iraq the fruits of aggression, while sharply limiting its ability to either import or export anything of value—especially oil.

I pledge here today that the United States will do its part to see that these sanctions are effective and to induce Iraq to withdraw without delay from Kuwait.

But we must recognize that Iraq may not stop using force to advance its ambitions. Iraq has massed an enormous war machine on the Saudi border, capable of initiating hostilities with little or no additional preparation. Given the Iraqi government's history of aggression against its own citizens as well as its neighbors, to assume Iraq will not attack again would be unwise and unrealistic.

And therefore, after consulting with King Fahd, I sent Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney to discuss cooperative measures we could take. Following those meetings the Saudi government requested our help. And I responded to that request by ordering U.S. air and ground forces to deploy to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Let me be clear. The sovereign independence of Saudi Arabia is of vital interest to the United States. This decision, which I shared with the congressional leadership, grows out of the longstanding friendship and security relationship between the United States and Saudi Arabia. U.S. forces will work together with those of Saudi Arabia and other nations to preserve the integrity of Saudi Arabia and to deter further Iraqi aggression.

Through their presence, as well as through training and exercises, these multinational forces will enhance the overall capability of Saudi armed forces to defend the Kingdom.

I want to be clear about what we are doing and why. America does not seek conflict, nor do we seek to chart the destiny of other nations. But America will stand by her friends. The mission of our troops is wholly defensive. Hopefully, they will not be needed long. They will not initiate hostilities, but they will defend themselves, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, and other friends in the Persian Gulf.

We are working around the clock to deter Iraqi aggression and to enforce U.N. sanctions. I'm continuing my conversations with world leaders. Secretary of Defense Cheney has just returned from valuable consultations with President Mubarak of Egypt and King Hassan of Morocco. Secretary of State Baker has consulted with his counterparts in many nations, including the Soviet Union. And today he heads for Europe to consult with President Ozal of Turkey, a staunch friend of the United States. And he'll then consult with the NATO Foreign Ministers.

I will ask oil-producing nations to do what they can to increase production in order to minimize any impact that oil flow reductions will have on the world economy. And I will explore whether we and our allies should draw down our strategic petroleum reserves. Conservation measures can also help. Americans everywhere must do their part. And one more thing. I'm asking the oil companies to do their fair share. They should show restraint and not abuse today's uncertainties to raise prices.

Standing up for our principles will not come easy. It may take time and possibly cost a great deal. But we are asking no more of anyone than of the brave young men and women of our Armed Forces and their families. And I ask that in the churches around the country prayers be said for those who are committed to protect and defend America's interests.

Standing up for our principle is an American tradition. As it has so many times before, it may take time and tremendous effort. But most of all, it will take unity of purpose.

As I've witnessed throughout my life in both war and peace, America has never wavered when her purpose is driven by principle. And in this August day, at home and abroad, I know she will do no less.

Thank you, and God bless the United States of America.

King Fahd Bin Abdul Aziz' Explanation to the Saudi People for Requesting American Assistance in Defending the Kingdom

DEFENDING THE KINGDOM

Delivered by FAHD BIN ABDUL AZIZ, King of Saudi Arabia
To the People of Saudi Arabia, August 9, 1990

In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. Thanks be to God, Master of the Universe and Prayers of Peace be upon the last Prophets Mohamad and all his kinfolk and companions.

Dear brother citizens, may God's peace and mercy be upon you.

You realize, no doubt, through following up the course of the regrettable events in the Arab Gulf region during the last few days the gravity of the situation the Arab Nation faces in the current circumstances. You undoubtedly know that the government of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia has exerted all possible efforts with the governments of the Iraqi Republic and the State of Kuwait to contain the dispute between the two countries.

In this context, I made numerous telephone calls and held fraternal talks with the brothers. As a result, a bilateral meeting was held between the Iraqi and Kuwaiti delegations in Saudi Arabia with the aim of bridging the gap and narrowing differences to avert any further escalation.

A number of brotherly Arab kings and presidents contributed, thankfully, in these efforts based on their belief in the unity of the Arab Nation and the cohesion of its solidarity and cooperation to achieve success in serving its fateful causes.

However, regrettably enough, events took an adverse course to our endeavors and the aspirations of the People's of the Islamic and Arab nation, as well as all peace-loving countries.

Nevertheless, these painful and regrettable events started in the pre-dawn hours of Thursday 11 Muharram 1411H., corresponding to 2nd August A.D. 1990. They took the whole world by surprise when the Iraqi forces stormed the brotherly state of Kuwait in the most sinister aggression witnessed by the Arab nation in its modern history. Such an invasion inflicted painful suffering on the Kuwaitis and rendered them homeless.

While expressing its deep displeasure at this aggression on the brotherly neighbor Kuwait, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia declares its categorical rejection of all ensuing measures and declarations that followed that aggression, which were rejected by all the statements issued by Arab leaderships, the Arab League, the Islamic Conference Organization, and the Gulf Cooperation Council, as well as all Arab and international bodies and organizations.

The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia reaffirms its demand to restore the situation in the brotherly state of Kuwait to its original status before the Iraqi storming as well as the return of the ruling family headed by H.H. Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, the Emir of Kuwait and his government.

We hope that the emergency Arab summit called by H.E. President Mohamad Hosni Mubarak of sisterly Egypt will lead to the achievement of the results that realize the aspirations of the Arab nation and bolster its march towards solidarity and unity of opinion.

In the aftermath of this regrettable event, Iraq massed huge forces on the borders of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. In view of these bitter realities and out of the eagerness of the Kingdom to safeguard its territory and protect its vital and economic potentials, and its wish to bolster its defensive capabilities and to raise the level of training of its armed forces—in addition to the keenness of the government of the Kingdom to resort to peace and non-recourse to force to solve disputes—the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia expressed its wish for the participation of fraternal Arab forces and other friendly forces.

Thus, the governments of the United States, Britain and other nations took the initiative, based on the friendly relations that link the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and these countries, to dispatch air and land forces to sustain the Saudi armed forces in performing their duty to defend the homeland and the citizens against any aggression with the full emphasis that this measure is not addressed to anybody. It is merely and purely for defensive purposes, imposed by the current circumstances faced by the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

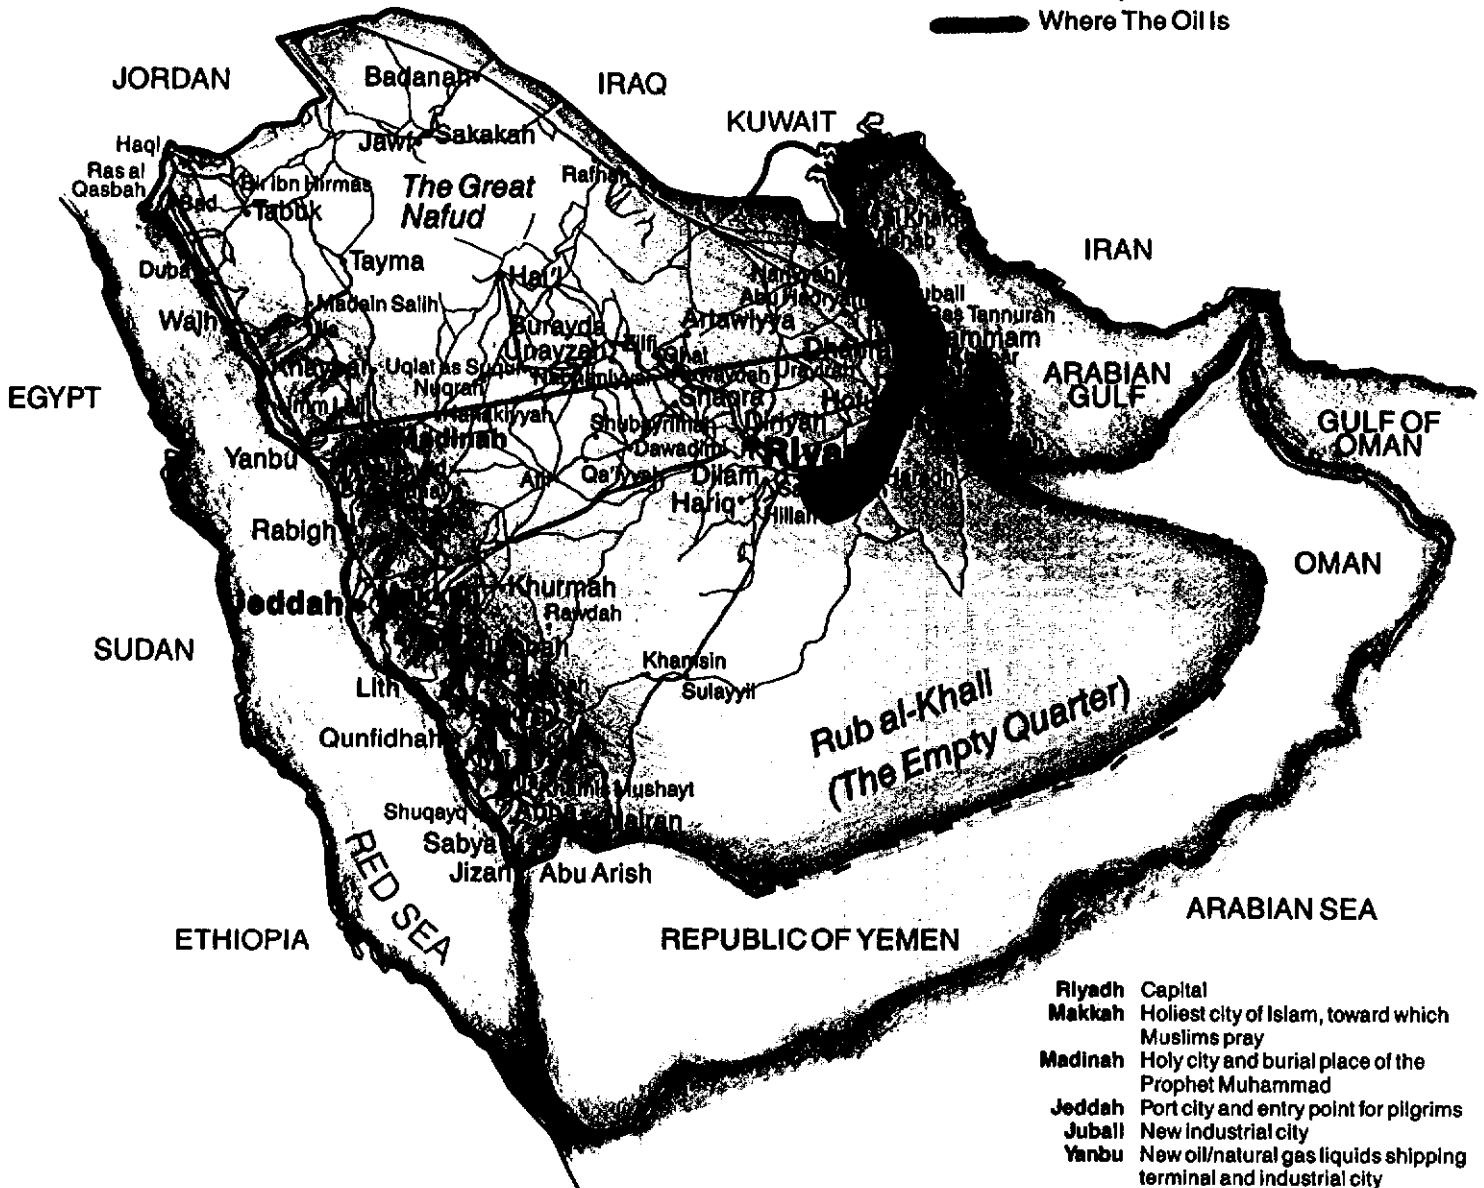

It is worth mentioning in this context that the forces which will participate in the joint training exercises with the Saudi armed forces are of a temporary nature. They will leave the Saudi territory immediately at the request of the Kingdom.

We pray to Almighty God to culminate our steps towards everything in which lie the good of our religion and safety of our homeland, and to guide us on the right path.

May God's peace and blessing be upon you.

King Khalid Bin Abdul Aziz, 1975-1982
King Fahd Bin Abdul Aziz, 1982-Present

Location: The Arabian Peninsula. Saudi Arabia is bounded to the west by the Red Sea; to the north by Jordan, Iraq and Kuwait; to the east by the Arabian Gulf, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Bahrain and Oman; and to the south by the Republic of Yemen.

Geography: The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia occupies four-fifths of the Arabian Peninsula—865,000 square miles. This is an area about the size of the United States east of the Mississippi River. Geography is varied. Forests, grasslands, rugged mountain ranges and vast deserts all characterize the Saudi landscape.

Climate: Weather conditions vary dramatically from one region of Saudi Arabia to the next. Very hot and dry conditions characterize the Rub' al-Khali (Empty Quarter), yet the verdant Asir highlands nearby are relatively cool and moist. The difference between daytime and nighttime temperatures can exceed 50 degrees (F) during the summer in many regions of the country. During winter months, overnight low temperatures approach the freezing mark at the higher elevations.

Principal Cities: Riyadh, the capital; the Holy Cities of Makkah and Madinah; Jeddah, a major seaport on the Red Sea; Dammam, Al-Khobar and Dhahran on the Arabian Gulf; major oil ports are Ras Tannurah and Al-Jumaymah, on the Arabian Gulf.

Language: Arabic, but English is widely spoken.

Calendar: The Hijra, or Islamic, calendar is the official calendar of Saudi Arabia.

Time Zones: All of the Kingdom is under one time zone, Eastern Standard Time (Washington, D.C.) plus eight hours. During Daylight Savings Time, add seven hours.

Exchange Rates: Approximately 3.75 Saudi riyals (SR) to the dollar.

Flag: Inscription and sword in white against a green background. The inscription is the Muslim profession of faith, the Shahada: "There is no God but God, and Muhammad is His Messenger." The sword symbolizes justice and strength rooted in faith.

People: Most native Saudi Arabians are descended from the land's indigenous Arab tribes. Saudi Arabia's population is estimated at twelve million.

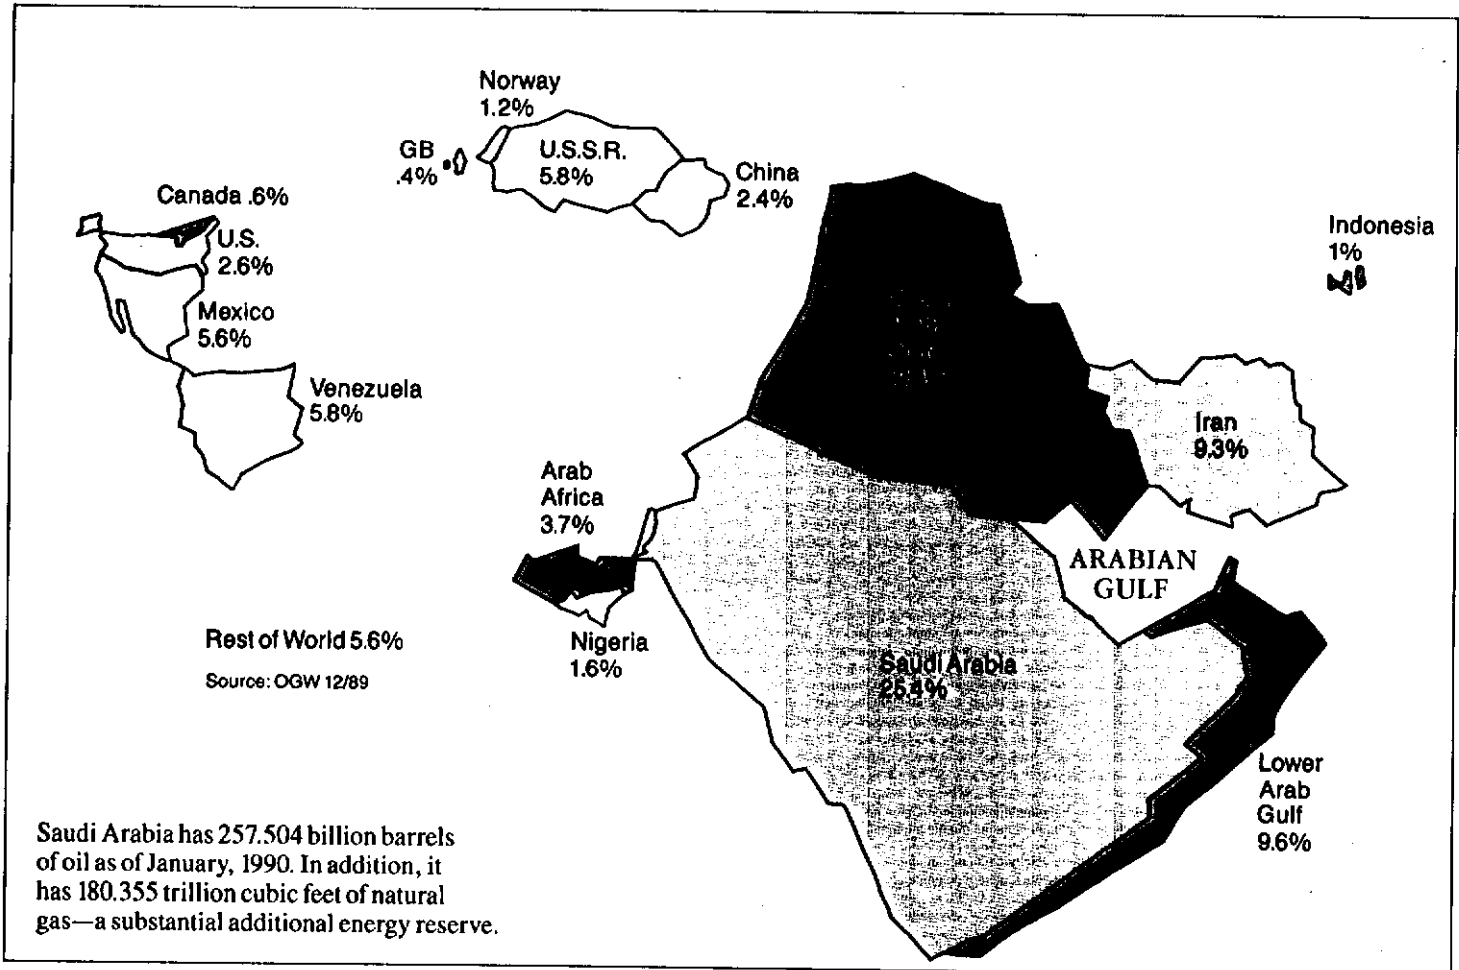

Religion: Saudi Arabia's official religion is Islam, which forms the basis of the nation's legal system. There are two major religious holidays: Eid Al-Fitr, celebrating the breaking of the annual Ramadan fast; and Eid Al-Adha, celebrating the pilgrimage to Makkah. Saudi Arabia follows the Islamic calendar, which is based upon lunar cycles. Thus, the year is 354 days long. Friday is the weekly day for rest and worship.

Government: King Fahd Bin Abdul Aziz is the Head of State and Prime Minister and Crown Prince Abdullah Bin Abdul Aziz is Deputy Prime Minister. They are assisted by an appointed Council of Ministers. All Saudi Arabians have access to the monarch, the regional governors or other government officials during regular public audiences (majlis).

- Economy: The Saudi Arabian economy has shown unprecedented growth during the past two decades. The fiscal 1987 Gross National Product (GNP) reached SR267,997 million ($71,466 million).
- Education: Education is free for boys and girls from the elementary through university levels. There are 15,000 schools and educational institutions with over 2.5 million students in Saudi Arabia. Institutions of higher learning include seven universities as well as teachers', vocational and technical institutes.
- Sports: Saudis enjoy sports ranging from the traditional contests such as horse and camel races, which have been practiced on the Arabian peninsula for centuries, to more contemporary games such as soccer, basketball, and volleyball. Saudi athletes participate in many regional and international competitions including the Olympic games. Numerous sports clubs and youth leagues, as well as many modern athletic facilities, support the Kingdom's enthusiasm for sports of all kinds. Soccer is considered the national sport.
- Agriculture: Having transformed vast expanse of desert into fertile farmland, Saudi Arabia has become self-sufficient in most basic foods, and an exporter of wheat, dates, dairy products, vegetables, eggs, fish, poultry and cut flowers. The Kingdom is dedicated to using its precious water resources wisely, so that today's agricultural successes will continue to secure the food supply for future generations.
- Housing: The government of Saudi Arabia provides interest-free loans for first-time homeowners. About $1 billion has been spent on housing development during the last five years to provide housing for the country's young and fast-growing population.
- Medicine: Saudi Arabia provides comprehensive free medical and dental treatment and social services to all citizens. Extending care to even the most remote communities in the country, the Saudi health care network includes health centers, hospitals, highly specialized treatment facilities and centers for advanced medical research.
- World Role: Saudi Arabia is a founding member of the United Nations, the Organization of Petroleum exporting Countries (OPEC), The Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries, the Organization of the Islamic Conference, the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) and the League of Arab States, and is a member of numerous other international and regional organizations. The Kingdom is a substantial contributor to the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and to developing nations.

Where The Oils...

This map illustrates the proportional distribution of the world's oil reserves. Saudi Arabia's 25.4 per cent of these reserves amounts to 257.5 billion barrels of oil as of January 1990, compared to a mere 2.6 per cent of oil reserves in the United States.

... And U.S. Oil Production, Exploration and Consumption Levels

As the graphs above show, U.S. production of oil has steadily decreased since 1970; reliable estimates prior to the invasion of Kuwait indicated that this trend would continue. Likewise, U.S. oil exploration, as measured by active oil rigs in thousands, has decreased markedly since the peak years of 1979-80. The recent growth of U.S. oil consumption has been satisfied by oil imports rather than domestic production.

With two-thirds of the world's oil reserves in the Middle East—63.7 per cent in Arabian Gulf countries alone—the importance of reliable supplies cannot be overemphasized.

Saudi Arabia possesses one-fourth of the world's proven oil reserves, the largest export capability and the lowest cost of production. The country has long advocated adequate international oil supplies at moderate, predictable prices, taking into consideration the interests of both producers and consumers.

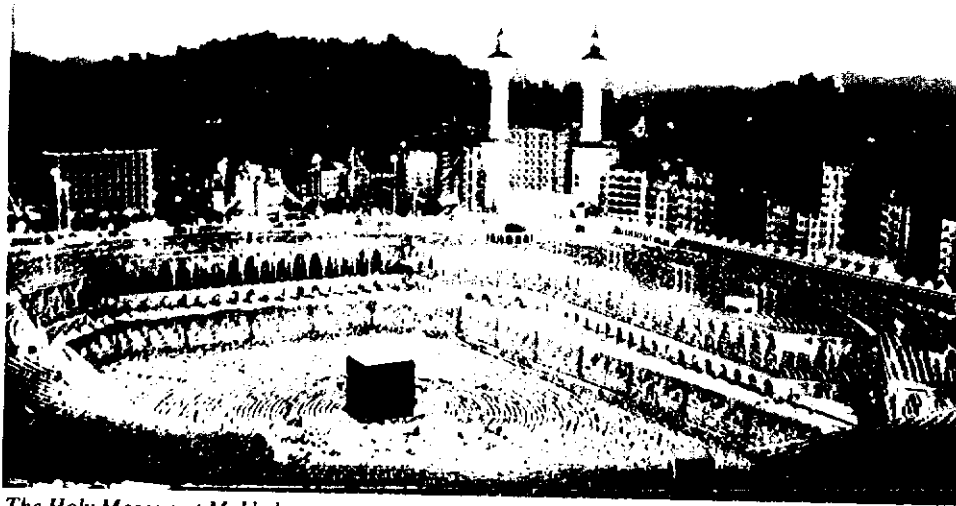

FAHD BIN ABDUL AZIZ, KING OF SAUDI ARABIA

King Fahd Bin Abdul Aziz of Saudi Arabia is a unique head of state and a leader of extraordinary stature, who values tradition and takes great pride in his Arabic heritage. He rules a rapidly developing country with one of the world's most modern infrastructures. TIME magazine just this year referred to Saudi Arabia as "one of the most spectacular reconstructions that the world has ever known," a virtual showcase for the developing world.

CUSTODIAN OF THE TWO HOLY MOSQUES

But Fahd is not just King of Saudi Arabia. The huge Arabian peninsula, home to some 12 million Saudis, is also the birthplace of Islam and the site of two of Islam's most holy cities, Makkah and Madinah. Recognizing the significance of his stewardship, Fahd has eschewed the salutation "His Majesty," replacing it with

The Holy Mosque at Makkah.

“Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques.” So one billion Muslims throughout the world look to Fahd as a protector of their faith and primary custodian of these sacred sites.

RESPECTED FRIEND OF THE U.S.

Fahd is a long-time, respected friend of the United States. The 68-year-old king came to the U.S. as early as 1945, serving as a member of the Saudi delegation charting post-World War II Saudi-American relations. Later that year he was a representative of the Kingdom at the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco. His last visit was in 1985, when, as King, he paid a state visit and had extended meetings with President Ronald Reagan and other senior U.S. officials. Each time the warmth of his friendship and his willingness to work vigorously and unselfishly toward mutual objectives have won for him and the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia new friends in this country.

DEDICATED PUBLIC SERVANT

For four decades Fahd prepared himself for his present service to the Kingdom. His first major public role was as Minister of Education in 1953. During his seven-year tenure, he launched the educational initiatives that have raised the country's literacy rate from 30 per cent to more than 90 per cent. The first modern university was opened in Riyadh, paving the way for the establishment of seven others and a network of technical, vocational and special training institutions throughout the Kingdom.

The educational initiatives by Fahd have benefited both men and women. College education is free and tens of thousands of young Saudis are being educated throughout the world at Saudi government expense. An increasing number are choosing to study in the Kingdom's own modern universities. Facilities for women offer excellent instruction and the latest technology. Women are moving into a broadening range of occupations and opportunities while holding firmly to cultural and religious precepts.

The late King Faisal, after working closely with Fahd on many projects, reportedly stated, “Fahd has an appetite for administration.” Fahd quickly assumed a major role in decisions affecting every area of the Kingdom's development.

From 1963-1968, he served as Minister of the Interior. Then he was tapped as Second Deputy Prime Minister. In 1974, he became Crown Prince. Throughout, Fahd played a key role in planning the country's vast modern infrastructure, communications systems, water projects, and other internal improvements.

AMERICANS AIDED SAUDI DEVELOPMENT

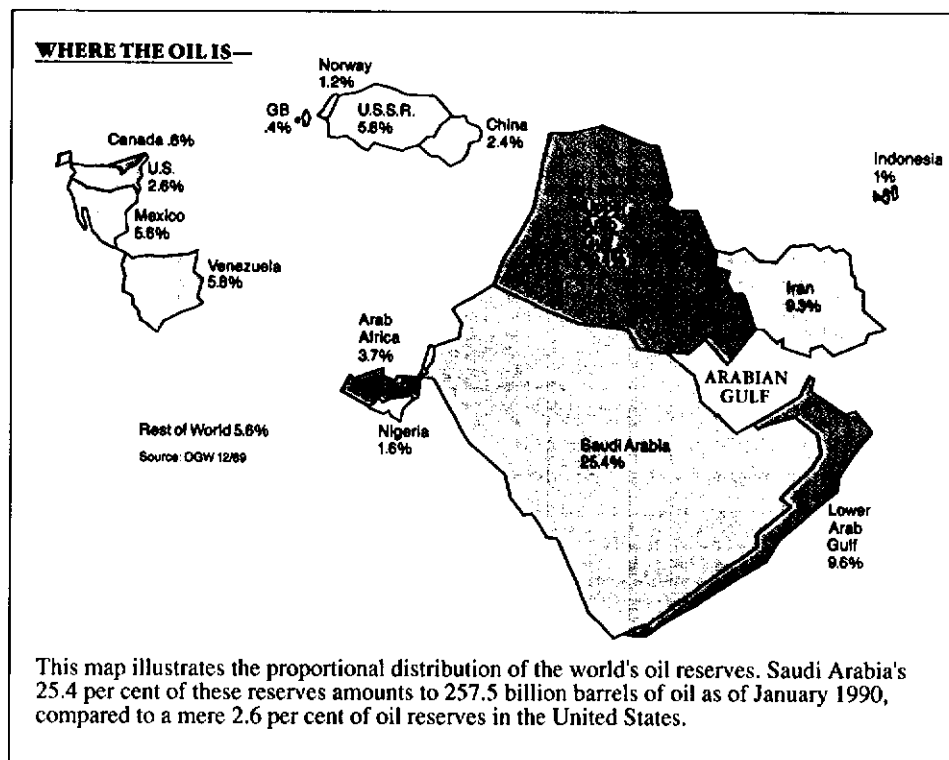

Fahd knows Americans well, and he appreciates the contributions which American technology and skills have made to the modernization of Saudi Arabia. Each step of the way, he has worked closely with hundreds of American companies and thousands of U.S. specialists who have aided the Kingdom in its development.

Commerce between the United States and Saudi Arabia is brisk. Today there are more than 186 joint ventures between Saudi and U.S. firms with a total invested capital of $3.28 billion. The U.S. is Saudi Arabia's largest trading partner. The Kingdom buys goods and services from all 50 U.S. states.

Fahd has insisted upon expansion of the private sector and diversification of the Saudi economy to eliminate dependency on crude oil exports. In two decades, the private sector has increased from 30 per cent of the economy to 60 per cent, with the expectation that it will reach 75 per cent by the year 2000.

FAHD PRESERVED TRADITIONS

Tradition, like the water beneath the land, runs deep in Saudi Arabia. Rapid changes and modernization have not been disruptive to the Saudi society. Fahd has insisted that the Kingdom's development be consistent with Islamic principles and the country's traditions. Saudi Arabia, under Fahd's leadership, has taken the best the world has to offer to improve the standard of living of its people, to afford them new opportunities and to make them key players in the international economic community. At the same time, it has avoided superficial changes which often in the course of rapid development shred the fabric of a society.

SAUDI ARABIA A MAJOR OIL SOURCE

Saudi Arabia is blessed with 25 per cent of the world's known oil reserves. King Fahd has worked diligently to assure adequate international oil supplies and moderate, predictable prices in response to market demand. He believes that the interest of suppliers and consumers are interdependent and, accordingly, has stated, "Saudi Arabia works for a balanced oil market and takes into consideration the interests of producers and consumers."

Oil is certain to remain the main source of energy for the United States into the twenty-first century. With his record of moderation and balance on producer-consumer matters, Fahd could well be the single most influential leader in the world on energy matters and how they affect economic prosperity and development worldwide.

PEACEMAKER

Eight years into his reign, he has repeatedly demonstrated his ability to serve as a moderating force in the region and to build two-way bridges between opposing factions. In the traditional Saudi style, he has practiced quiet, behind-the-scenes diplomacy which has won the admiration and gratitude of those in this country and abroad who seek a lasting and just peace in the Middle East.

A matter of overriding importance to Fahd is finding a lasting settlement of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. He has been creative in his approaches and persistent even in the face of rejection. In 1980, he proposed an eight-point program for resolving the impasse which became known internationally as "The Fahd Plan." It is still considered the first major step toward a solution which takes into account the needs of both sides.

Fahd also convened leaders of the Arab world in Taif, Saudi Arabia to try to find a solution to the violence which has devastated Lebanon. While some have merely wrung their hands, he has persevered and used his influence to bring opposing forces to the table.

King Fahd worked tirelessly to try to avoid a military confrontation between Iraq and Kuwait. He used every available diplomatic channel and shortly before the Iraqi invasion, arranged negotiations between the two countries in Saudi Arabia.

PEACE AND STABILITY MAJOR GOALS

For Fahd, peace in the Middle East and stability in the region are major goals. The United States, of course, shares these goals and often has worked hand in hand with Saudi Arabia to achieve them. For example, close military cooperation and intelligence coordination between the two countries helped keep the Iran-Iraq war from spilling over to other countries in the Middle East.

Saudi Arabia is nonaggressive. The record proves that. But it lives in a turbulent and dangerous area and has tried to provide for its own legitimate defense requirements. Historically, it has turned first to the United States to meet its needs, paying cash, boosting the U.S. economy, reducing the U.S. trade deficit and creating thousands of jobs for U.S. workers. Occasional obstructionism on the part of some has not weakened Saudi Arabia's resolve to keep vital and healthy the important U.S.-Saudi relationship. It is natural that in a time of crisis—especially when its sovereignty is threatened by a hostile military force—it would turn to the United States, as well as other friendly nations, for assistance.

GOVERNMENT STABLE AND RESPONSIVE

Saudi Arabia has devoted attention to matters at home as well as in the region and the world. Analysts repeatedly declare the Kingdom one of the most stable societies and governments in the developing world—and more so than a number of developed nations. The government operates with a broad-based consensus. A Council of Ministers helps govern the country. Religious leaders are consulted on a regular basis. The King holds court each week to receive petitions from citizens, and public servants up and down the administrative ladder do the same. Fahd goes to the desert to meet with traditional tribal leaders and moves constantly from one end of the Kingdom to the other meeting and conferring. He is in touch with the people of the Kingdom, and the government responds in a direct way to their needs.

The Kingdom provides free education; free state-of-the-art hospitals and dental treatment; interest-free loans for first-time homeowners; the world's most modern transportation and communications systems; subsidized water and utilities, and many other services. In this way, each citizen shares in the natural wealth of the country—the petroleum reserves beneath it.

Then-Vice President George Bush with King Fahd in Saudi Arabia in 1986.

FAHD RESPECTED AND REVERED

Fahd Bin Abdul Aziz is an old friend of the United States and a popular and respected leader in his own country. Four decades of service are evidence of his devotion to the people of Saudi Arabia and the development of the Kingdom. At the same time, he stands tall among world leaders who look to him for leadership in his region and, indeed, in matters affecting the entire world economy.
