Subject: Issues Points--Nicaraguan Military Reform Initiatives
Date: June 12, 1995

Please consider the following initiatives taken by Nicaraguan military chief, General Joaquin Cuadra. We are reporting from several sources, including official documents from General Cuadra and Nicaraguan and Miami media accounts. General Cuadra...

- Asked the President of the Nicaraguan Supreme Court to review all procedures and trials undertaken by the military Judge Advocate concerning military cases questioned by the International Tripartite Commission, a panel comprised of Nicaraguan government and church officials and the International Support and Verification Commission of the OAS to examine alleged improprieties and human rights abuses in Nicaragua. Cuadra offered the full support and cooperation of the military and National Police to effect investigations required by the Supreme Court review.
- Initiated a policy whereby senior members of the Nicaraguan armed forces must disclose their financial holdings and assets, including property, to the Controller General of Nicaragua, marking the first time in Nicaragua's history where military leaders are subject to this type of review by a civilian authority. The disclosures will be made on a periodic basis and apply to Cuadra himself as well as members of his general staff and other senior military officers.
- Re-assigned or dismissed several top Nicaraguan military officers, including controversial former Sandinista Military Intelligence and State Security leaders. Receiving significant demotions or dismissal were: Colonel Lenin Cerna, who was Chief of State Security under the Sandinistas; and Lt. Colonel Ricardo Wheelock, former Sandinista Director of Military Intelligence.
- Said in speeches and written communications surrounding his actions that, as chief of Nicaragua's military, he insists on respect for constitutional provisions and the judgments and resolutions of all courts in matters relating to civil review of military policy and practice.
- Included in a speech a veiled reference to the current constitutional tug-of-war between the Executive and Legislative branches of the Nicaraguan government by criticizing partisan and personal ambitions pursued at the expense of national interests, law and order, and peace.
