Kelly calls on Blair to intervene to end dirty tricks campaign

Sinn Féin North Belfast Assembly member Gerry Kelly has called on the British Prime Minister Tony Blair to 'directly and immediately intervene with his securocrats and order a halt to the dirty-tricks campaign of arrests, raids and intimidation against republicans.' Mr Kelly said:

"The Castlereagh raid was an inside job. Whatever the purpose behind it, the attacks on Republicans by the Special Branch, the spooks, and their uniformed agencies, are both part of a smokescreen to divert attention away from the real culprits, and a means of attacking and undermining the peace process.

This is a very serious situation. The securocrats must not be allowed to succeed in their aim of subverting the peace process. The British Prime Minister cannot sit back and allow those agencies that he has responsibility for to continue with this strategy. He must call a halt now.'

'If anyone wants to understand why the PSNI is unacceptable to nationalists and republicans they need look no further than the events of recent days in North Belfast and the raids and arrests of republicans.

For almost 2 years there has been a planned and directed pogrom against Catholics in north Belfast and elsewhere from the UDA, an organisation riddled with Special Branch agents.

At the weekend and since the UDA attacked Catholic homes on North Queen St and the Limestone Road in North Belfast. The UDA it is alleged has threatened 'war or peace' on the back of 30 bomb and gun attacks in the 24 hour period. Where are the arrests? What has the police force done about all of this? Where are the convictions? Where is their video evidence against the bombers, the gunmen and those orchestrating this very public campaign on the streets of North Belfast?

The reality is that the police force has instead chosen to target and attack the Catholic community of north Belfast. It is Catholics who have been batoned and brutalised, and all of this against the backdrop of raids and arrests of republicans.

On the experience to date; the Special Branch frustration of the Ombudsman's report in to the Omagh bombing, the failure to take on the UDA, the role of Special branch agents within the UDA in the pogrom against Catholics and in the killing of William Stobie before Christmas, and now the targeting of republicans and our families; nationalists and republicans can with justification assert that there is no difference between the RUC and the PSNI.

Sinn Féin Vice President Pat Doherty to march in Rockland County St. Patrick's Day Parade in support of Grand Marshall Brian Pearson

Sinn Féin Vice President Pat Doherty, MP for West Tyrone, will march Sunday, March 17th in the Rockland County St. Patrick's Day Parade. Mr. Doherty said, "I am proud to march with the people of Rockland County. There has been huge support from the people here for peace and justice in Ireland. Brian Pearson, has been chosen as the parade's Grand Marshall. He is a member of this community and has strongly supported Sinn Féin's peace strategy. He is a fitting Grand Marshall and I am proud to see the esteem which he is held in Rockland".

I understand and deeply appreciate the grief of people who lost loved ones on September 11. However, I must utterly refute any equivalence between September 11 and the struggle for Irish Freedom.

Pat Doherty will also appear at the Friends of Sinn Fein Breakfast on March 16, 2002 at O'Neill's Restaurant.

Place: O'Neill's Restaurant
729 3rd Avenue
New York City

Date: March 16, 2002

Time: 10:00 AM - 12:00 PM

Pat Doherty will be available for interviews.

Speaking on the theme Religion and Politics at the Cathedral Basilica in Covington, Kentucky, Gerry Adams said:

“I urge Unionists to commit themselves to the full separation of Church and State and therefore of religion and politics.”

Mr. Adams pointed to religion's bigotry as the historic source of conflict in Ireland and many other countries. He reaffirmed that Sinn Fein is and always has been a non-sectarian political party that does not either promote or denigrate any religions, Catholic or Protestant.

Mr. Adam's in particular called on the largest Unionist party, the Ulster Unionist Party, to break its longstanding institutional link with the anti-Catholic Orange Order. He acknowledged that the UUP leader David Trimble's efforts to achieve this. Mr. Adams also urged the Reverend Ian Paisley to join in an effort to separate religion from politics in the North of Ireland.

Mr. Adams said Sinn Fein's vision was for an Irish society that embraced and upheld the right to any religious belief and practice, and none, but emphasized that religious belief must not be the basis of a political party or government. He pointed to the current debates in England, Scotland and Wales on the necessity to break the link between Monarchy, Church and State.

Mr. Adams said that Sinn Fein wanted a constitution and bill of rights in the new Ireland that protects the rights of all people to freedom and religious belief and practice and a fair and independent judiciary to guarantee that those rights are upheld.

Corrigan Named IBO Person of the Year

THE Irish Business Organization of New York (IBO) has named John Corrigan, former CEO Americas of Enterprise Ireland, the Irish government trade and technology agency, as Business Person of the Year 2001. The award will be presented at a black-tie gala dinner -- one of the highlights of New York's business social calendar -- on Saturday, March 16 at the Grand Hyatt Hotel in New York.

Corrigan was CEO-Americas of Enterprise Ireland from January 1997 until December 2001. He was responsible for boosting sales of Irish-owned companies, particularly in the high technology sectors, in the U.S., Canada and South America. During his tenure, exports to the US leaped from $5.08 billion ($4.45 billion) in 1997 to an estimated $19.05 billion ($16.7 billion) in 2001 -- an astounding almost fourfold increase.

"John Corrigan has played a pivotal role in the truly dramatic expansion of trade and relationships between U.S. and Irish business, which helped create the Celtic Tiger," said Jim Doran, president of Irish Business Organization. "He has vigorously supported innovative, beneficial partnerships between Irish and American entrepreneurs. The IBO is proud to recognize his huge contribution to Irish business relations in the New York tri-state area and indeed the entire U.S."

Under John Corrigan's guidance, Enterprise Ireland opened offices in Silicon Valley, California; Santa

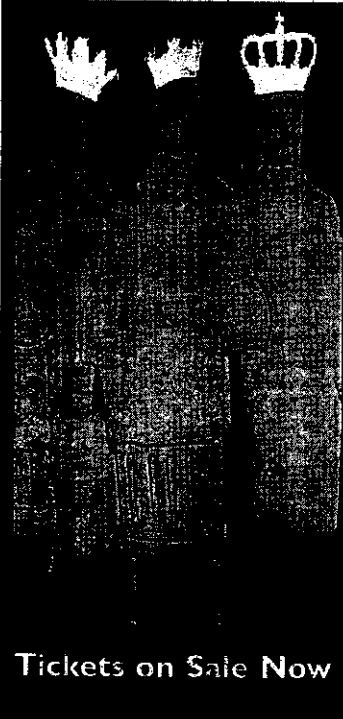

Monica, California; Boston, Massachusetts; Washington, D.C. and Sao Paulo, Brazil. The semi-state organization has helped scores of Irish entrepreneurs to establish themselves in the U.S. market; Irish companies invested $250 million to open more than 200 businesses throughout the country. Corrigan and his wife, Dorothy, have two children Séan, 27, and Doireann, 22. Hailing from a family with roots in Northern Ireland, he spent his childhood on a small family farm in Co. Kildare and later moved to Dublin. He completed his education with a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Ulster.

Founded in 1973, the IBO has more than 400 prominent corporate and individual members. Interaction between members generates an estimated business of over $5 million a year.

For information on the ball and tickets, which are $175 each, call the IBO office at 212-750-8118.
