RUSSIAN DOLL REPUBLICANS COMING TO CAPITOL HILL ON THURSDAY

The real winner of Congressional delays in supporting Ukraine will be on display on Capitol Hill on Thursday, outside the Cannon House Office Building.

Washington, DC - A series of Russian dolls on display on the lawn outside the Capitol will show how Vladimir Putin’s Russia and Xi Jinping’s China are the beneficiaries of any wavering in our aid to Ukraine.

The yard signs shaped like Russian matryoshka dolls depict Republican members of the House and Senate who have voiced opposition to aiding Ukraine in their struggle for freedom.

The installation at First Ave and Independence Ave SE is organized by Freedom at Home and Abroad, a new campaigning organization working to grow bipartisan support for Ukraine, and to keep Americans informed about the conflict as the need to keep standing with Ukraine.

Mikey Franklin of FAHA, who has several family members in Kyiv, said: “The infighting in the Republican conference is actively harming our ally Ukraine, and actively helping our adversaries China and Russia. Ukraine’s fight for freedom helps protect us against Russia and China. Republicans must put their differences aside and protect Americans by supporting Ukraine.”

FAHA is the first and only 501c4 organization actively making the case for aiding Ukraine to elected officials and their constituents as the country heads into an election year.
