INTRODUCTION

HISTORICAL INFORMATION

The Free Church of Scotland is a Presbyterian Church adhering in its worship and doctrine to the position adopted by the Church of Scotland at the Reformation. Its divergence from the Church of Scotland dates from the Disruption of 1843 when, under the leadership of Dr Thomas Chalmers, the Evangelical Party in the Church of Scotland as by Law Established, withdrew from the Establishment to form the Church of Scotland, Free.

Disruption. The immediate cause of the Disruption was the insistence by the civil courts that the Established Church had to ordain men to the parish ministry irrespective of their acceptability to the parishioners. The Evangelical Party regarded this as an intolerable interference in the spiritual liberties of the church and so they withdrew from the Established Church to form the Free Church. The Disruption was not intended to be a disruption, or division, of the Church. Rather it was to be a severing of the link that bound the Church to the State. However since the Church was not of one mind regarding the proposed action, the Church itself was split. The Established Church remained; and the Free Church, claiming to be the same church as that which it had left, a church adhering to the same Confession of Faith, loyal to the same principles and differing only inasmuch as in the discharge of its spiritual functions it was to be subservient to no other authority than the will of God as understood by the collective mind of the Church, came into being.

Declension. The Established Church and the Free Church were not the only Presbyterian Churches in nineteenth century Scotland. In the eighteenth century there had been more than one secession from the Church of Scotland giving rise to the formation of several groupings with distinctive confessional standpoints. In the late nineteenth century a movement to unite the splintered Presbyterian Churches in Scotland was begun. Not surprisingly, given the different, not to say opposing, nature of the confessional formularies of the various churches, union was found to be possible only on the basis of compromise – an agreement to adopt a confession of faith sufficiently vague and elastic as to allow those holding different views to subscribe it with good conscience. When the Free Church was confronted with this dilemma, a minority took the view that the doctrines which were being treated as open questions were so vital to the faith that the duty of Christian unity had to yield to the higher duty of fidelity to the truth. The consequence was that when the great majority of the Free Church entered the Union of 1900 to form the United Free Church of Scotland (and, in 1929, to reunite with the Church of Scotland) a small minority elected to continue the Free Church of Scotland. The adherents of this 'constitutionalist' party, as it was termed, were to be found mainly, although not exclusively, in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland.

Today the Free Church of Scotland although much reduced in size maintains in continuity with the Church of 1843 the system of doctrine and the form of worship adopted by the Church of Scotland at the Reformation. The singing of the Scottish Metrical Psalms unaccompanied by instrumental music is, perhaps, the most distinctive feature of its liturgy, but the chief emphasis of its worship is still to be found in the centrality of the pulpit and the proclamation of a free and sovereign salvation.

Division. The Free Church has continued down until the present day. At the Commission of Assembly in January 2000 a division occurred because a majority was determined to act in a way that was against the constitution or 'rule book' of the church, which all office-bearers must uphold. A number of ministers and elders signed a 'Declaration of Reconstitution' in which they pledged themselves to continue the Free Church in a constitutional manner. They are the Free Church of Scotland (Continuing). We use this title to distinguish, solely for purposes of administration, the reconstituted Free Church of Scotland from any residual body claiming that title. We remain the Free Church of Scotland.

FINANCE

Cheques for the Church should be made payable to “The Free Church of Scotland (Continuing)” and should be sent to the Financial Administrator

(contact details on p.3). The following is a form of words which could be incorporated into a Will when a person wishes to leave money to the Church:

‘I hereby leave and bequeath to the Free Church of Scotland (Continuing) for behoof of (here name the particular Committee, Fund or Object), the sum of.....Pounds Sterling (the amount to be stated in words, not in figures), which legacy shall be payable upon the receipt of the General Treasurer of the said Church for the time being, whose receipt shall be a valid and sufficient discharge’.

The words ‘for behoof of (named Committee, Fund or Object)’ can be omitted, in which case the money will be available for the whole Church.

CHURCH COURTS

One of the essential features of the Reformed Church of Scotland as the fruit of the Reformation was ‘the government of the Church by presbyters alone’. The Free Church of Scotland is Presbyterian in Church government and is ruled by presbyters (ministers and elders) meeting in a series of church courts:

Kirk Session:- The Kirk Session is the local court, consisting of the minister and elders of a congregation and having the oversight of that congregation.

Presbytery:- The Presbytery is the radical or fundamental court and consists of the ministers within a designated area and one representative elder from each congregation within that area.

Synod:- The Synod comprises the ministers and elders of, if possible, at least three Presbyteries. It is a court of review and appeal which normally meets once a year, prior to the General Assembly.

General Assembly:- The General Assembly is the highest court of the Church and meets annually in May. It is made up of all the ministers of the Church, with a corresponding number of elders, appointed as commissioners to the Assembly by their local Presbyteries.

Following a reorganisation of boundaries in 2008 the Free Church of Scotland (Continuing) has five Presbyteries arranged into two Synods in Scotland and one active Presbytery in North America. Each Presbytery and Synod has a Clerk who is responsible for the maintenance of records and correspondence. The General Assembly has a Principal Clerk and an Assistant Clerk.

By an Act of the 2015 General Assembly Synods are no longer required to meet on the stated dates of their Ordinary Meetings, although they continue to maintain their functions as courts to hear and dispose of Complaints, Appeals, References, Petitions and Overtures from the inferior courts.

TRAINING OF MINISTERS

The denomination provides its own training for men who will enter its ministry. In October 2002 the Commission of Assembly appointed a co-ordinator and lecturers and in September 2003 the first students began their studies in the 'Free Church Seminary'. Since 2008 the Seminary has been able to use the premises of the Inverness-Greyfriars congregation.

The course includes both distance learning and lectures and tutorials at a location in Inverness. The complete course normally requires three years of full time study and a Diploma is awarded by the Seminary upon successful completion. Private students may enrol on the full course or study specific sections of the course if they prefer. There are fees for registration and for the course itself. Applications from private students should be made to the Principal.

There are also General Assessors appointed annually by the General Assembly.

ASSYNT & EDDRACHILLIS Email: assynt@fccontinuing.org

In Assynt (Lochinver and Elphin) the minister of the parish, Rev Charles Gordon and almost the whole congregation 'came out' at the Disruption in 1843. The Duke of Sutherland refused to give a site for a church or a manse but eventually buildings were erected 14 miles from the old church. In 1878 a church was built in Elphin and in 1893 a church and a manse were built in Lochinver. The minister in 1900, Rev Norman MacKay, entered the Union and the congregation had no settled pastor until 1942.

In Stoer (Stoer and Drumbeg) Rev Peter Davidson and a large number of people joined the Free Church at the Disruption. A church and a manse were built. In 1900 Rev Donald Finlayson entered the Union and the congregation was dependent on supply preachers until 1920 when Rev Farquhar Matheson was inducted.

In 1962 Assynt and Stoer were consolidated into one charge. The minister in 2000 did not associate himself with the Reconstitution of the Free Church.

In Eddrachillis (Scourie) only four families out of a population of about 800 refused to enter the Free Church with Mr Tulloch, their minister at the time. As elsewhere, the Duke of Sutherland refused to grant a site for a church and for some months the congregation worshipped in a tent sent from Edinburgh. This was torn to shreds in a gale not long afterwards and the people gathered in the open air at a spot still known locally as the 'Worship Stones' near the site of the present Free Church which was built in 1846. A remnant of the Eddrachillis congregation adhered to the Free Church after the events of 1900.

The congregation was linked with the congregation of Rogart in 1981 and Rev Allan Murray was inducted to the joint charge in 1988.

The congregations of Assynt and Eddrachillis were consolidated by Act of Assembly in 2007. Mr Donald Robertson, Lay Agent, conducts services and provides pastoral contact on a two weeks on, two weeks off regular basis. In his absence the local elder conducts services.

Places of Worship:- Scourie: Community Hall, Scourie, Lairg, Sutherland, IV27 4TE (on main road just south of the Church of Scotland and near the fire station). Lochinver: Assynt Centre, Main Street, Lochinver, Sutherland, IV27 4LX (follow signposts to Assynt Centre From Inver Bridge near the Lochinver Free Church).

BRORA Email: brora@fcccontinuing.org

The minister in Brora (Clyne) in 1843, Rev George MacKay, came out with a large congregation. They worshipped for a time in a wooden building. A church and manse were built in 1849. In 1900 the minister, Rev John Murray, died and the congregation was vacant until 1902 when Rev Kenneth Cameron was inducted. The minister in 2000 did not associate himself with the Reconstitution of the Free Church.

In 2007 the following congregations were consolidated into one congregation by Act of Assembly under the name Brora: Clyne; Dornoch; Lairg & Rosehall; Lybster, Bruan, Latheron & Berriedale; Rogart.

Place of Worship:- Scout Hall, Gower Street, Brora, Sutherland, KW9 6NL.

ABERDEEN Email: aberdeen@fcccontinuing.org

The congregation is directly descended from the Highland Congregation formed in 1785 by Gaelic-speaking Highlanders meeting in St Nicholas Kirk, Union Street. In 1795 the congregation moved to the Gaelic Chapel which they had built in Gaelic Lane. In 1843 they joined the Free Church and retained their building. In 1882 the Free Gaelic Church moved from Gaelic Lane to a redundant Congregational building in Dee Street and took the name St Columba Free Church. In 1900 the majority of the congregation followed their minister into the United Free Church but in 1907 the Dee Street property was allocated to the minority. The reconstituted Free Church congregation continued to worship in Dee Street until 1977 when the opportunity arose to acquire the Bon Accord Church on Rosemount Viaduct which had been erected in 1897 by the then Bon Accord Free Church.

The minister in 2000 did not associate himself with the Reconstitution of the Free Church.

The congregation has purchased a new place of worship which was opened in September 2017.

DUTHIL-DORES Email: duthil-dores@fccontinuing.org

In Duthil a Free Church congregation was formed in 1843 and a minister called. The congregation had to worship for the first winter in the open air and the minister's health broke down. Although a church was built in 1851 it was 1859 before another minister was settled. The charge was vacant in 1900 but the people who remained in the Free Church were able to call Rev Duncan MacDonald in 1910.

In Moy the minister and the people came out in 1843. Rev (later Dr) Donald MacLean, minister from 1897 to 1905, was one of the 26 ministers who continued in the Free Church after the Union of 1900.

Duthil and Moy were consolidated into one charge in 1951.

In Dores almost the entire population adhered to the Free Church in 1843 and the charge was sanctioned in 1845, a church and manse built and a minister settled in 1847. A second church (Bona) was built on the north side of the Ness.

In Stratherrick practically all the people joined the Free Church in 1843 and a minister was settled and a church erected in 1844. In 1900 the minister entered the Union.

In Daviot a church was built for accommodating the adherents of the Free Church and Rev Archibald Cook (brother of Finlay) was settled there in 1844. The minister in 1900, Rev Roderick Finlayson was one of the 26 who continued the Free Church. Stratherrick and Daviot were joined in 1932.

Duthil & Moy was consolidated with Stratherrick & Daviot and Dores in 1972 and became known as Duthil-Dores.

EDINBURGH-ST COLUMBA'S Email: edinburgh@fccontinuing.org

The congregation originates from the efforts to bring the Gospel to the Gaelicspeaking Highlanders in Edinburgh in the 18th century. The congregation in the Gaelic Chapel came out with the Free Church at the Disruption and built a church in Cambridge Street. In 1864 the name was changed to St Columba's. Only a tiny minority of that congregation remained out of the Union of 1900. When the Free Church was allocated St John's church (built for the congregation of the Disruption minister, Dr Thomas Guthrie) in 1907 for their Assembly Hall, that building also became the home of the St Columba's congregation.

In 2011 a new place of worship, a building belonging to the City Mission, was purchased by the congregation.

GLASGOW-KNIGHTSWOOD Email: knightswood@fcccontinuing.org

The Knightswood congregation (then known as Thornwood) was formed by Act of Assembly in 2001 by a union of four congregations, namely Glasgow-Briton Street, Glasgow-Partick Highland, Paisley and East Kilbride. Briton Street was itself a united charge, rooted in two Gaelic-speaking churches formed to serve the Highlanders who had come to Glasgow to work. These were Duke Street Gaelic Church, founded in 1798 within the Church of Scotland, and St Columba Free Church, Govan, sanctioned as a pastoral charge in 1874. Partick Highland served a similar purpose in the West End and was sanctioned by the Free Church in 1924.

East Kilbride was formed as a mission outreach from Govanhill Free Church in 1956 and Paisley as an outreach from Govan Free Church in 1961. The Dumbarton congregation was united with Thornwood by Act of Assembly in 2008.

Following the division in January 2000 the congregation worshipped in Thornwood Primary School. In October 2008 the congregation was given the use of the Knightswood Gospel Hall, erected by an Assembly of Christian Brethren in 1932 and vacated some weeks previously. In recognition of the new location the 2009 General Assembly agreed to change the name of the charge to Glasgow-Knightswood.

Although the huge council estate of Knightswood was only built from the late 1920s onwards the witness of the Free Church in the area extends much further back. An outreach was commenced in 1854 by Renfrew Free Church in what was then the countryside to the north-west of Glasgow, initially known as Hillhead and later as Jordanhill Free Church. The charge was sanctioned in 1855 and a church building erected in 1858, on the opposite side of Knightswood Road to the School, where the Academy Park estate now stands. Following the unions of 1900 and 1929 that congregation became Jordanhill Church of Scotland and now worships in a church on Woodend Drive.

Although many Free Church families were re-housed in Knightswood, most continued worshipping either in the relatively convenient Partick churches or those in the city centre, and until the present development no move had been made to plant a new Free Church in the area.

GLASGOW-PARTICK Email: partick@fcccontinuing.org

Following the Disruption a congregation was organised in Partick (then a village of 3,000). Its first minister, Rev Harry Anderson, was inducted in 1844 and remained (with the same precentor) for over 50 years (Partick grew to a population of 44,000). He opposed the Declaratory Act yet most of the people joined the United Free Church. The remnant, faithful to the Free Church, began meeting in 1905 and built the church in 1910. Rev William S Heron was admitted from the Presbyterian Church of Ireland and inducted in June 1906. He was translated to Saltcoats in 1909. In September 1913 Rev Alexander Ross was ordained and inducted. In 1922 he accepted a call to Burghead. Rev Peter W Millar was translated from Campbeltown in 1923 and remained at Partick until his appointment as Professor of Old Testament in 1936. Rev Alex Macleod came from Lochgilphead in 1937 and was translated to Nairn in 1955. Rev Neil A Macleod served from 1956 to 1963, in which year Rev Hugh Ferrier arrived from Knockbain. In 1975 Mr Ferrier was translated to Inverness Free North and the following year Rev William Macleod was ordained and inducted. Following the translation of Mr Macleod to Portree Rev Iain Smith was ordained in 1994 and identified with the Free Church (Continuing) in February 2000. Mr Smith accepted a call to Tasmania in 2003. He was succeeded by Rev Murdo A N Macleod who was minister from 2004 to 2010. By a ruling of the Court of Session in October 2012 the congregation lost possession of the church and halls as well as the manse.

GLASGOW-SHETTLESTON Email: shettleston@fccontinuing.org

There is a long history of witness to the Reformed Faith in this part of the West of Scotland east of Glasgow. The covenanting movement had many supporters in the district, and after 1690 a Cameronian congregation was organized with its western end at 'Sandhills near Glasgow'. This body used a meeting-house in Sandyhills Road until 1819. Rev John McMillan, organiser of the Cameronians is buried in the old parish churchyard. Rev John Thomson was parish minister of Shettleston, and resigned from the establishment at the Disruption of 1843. After worshipping in a barn and a temporary building, the congregation built a new Free Church at Sandyhills in 1850. The Carntyne Mission became in 1890 the second Free Church charge in Shettleston. In 1900, both ministers joined the Union, together with most of the people. A remnant from Carntyne persisted in loyalty to the Free Church, and built the present building in 1909.

ROTHESAY Email: rothesay@fccontinuing.org

When the Declaratory Act was first brought to the General Assembly in May 1891 a number of opponents of the Act withdrew from various Free Church Congregations on Bute and began meeting in a hall. They asked Rev A M Bannatyne, who had demitted his charge in Aberdeen, to be their pastor. In 1905 the Free Presbytery of Glasgow appointed a delegation to meet with this group and take the necessary steps to regularise matters and establish the Free Church of Rothesay continuing. On 27th December 1905 Rev Alex Stirling was inducted. Services ceased in 1997.

At the Reconstitution of the Free Church in 2000 the congregation was vacant. Services were resumed in 2001.

CROSS Email: cross@fcccontinuing.org

The first evangelical minister in Ness was Rev Finlay Cook who came in 1829. At the Disruption in 1843 the minister, Rev John Finlayson, and the congregation came out and for three years worshipped in the open air. A church and a manse were built in South Dell in 1846. A church was then built in 1892 at Cross. In 1900 the minister, Rev Donald MacDonald, entered the Union but in 1909 the remaining Free Church congregation were able to call Rev Duncan MacDougall.

At the Reconstitution of the Free Church in 2000 the congregation was vacant.

The congregation has built a new place of worship which was opened in December 2003 and a new manse which was completed in 2009.

KNOCK & POINT Email: knock@fcccontinuing.org

The Knock congregation began with the Parliamentary Church built at Knock in 1829, with the charge being declared quoad sacra in 1833. After the Disruption the centre of worship of the newly-formed Free Church congregation was established at Garrabost, but the congregation retained the name of 'Knock' Free Church.

A new church building was completed in 1886, and the congregation worshipped there until deprived of the building in 1900 after the Union Controversy. The congregation built another church in 1902, made up mostly of corrugated iron, and called by the locals 'The Iron Church'. The original stone church had fallen into disrepair when it was returned to the congregation and as a result the congregation continued to worship in the Iron Church until 1924, when it was decided that rather than repair the Iron Church, the stone church would be restored.

The Point congregation was disjoined from Knock and established as a separate charge in 1963. The first minister, Rev John MacSween, was inducted in 1966.

The ministers of both the Knock and Point congregations in 2000 did not associate themselves with the Reconstitution of the Free Church.

At the October 2000 Commission of Assembly the congregations of Knock and Point were consolidated into a single charge.

The congregation has built a new place of worship which was opened in April 2012.

BRACADEALE & DUIRINISH Email: bracadale@fcccontinuing.org

In Bracadale the minister, Rev J R Glass, with his congregation came out in 1843 but he was immediately translated to Musselburgh. A successor, Rev John Finlayson, was inducted in December of that year but, unable to find accommodation in the district, had to walk or ride the 14 miles from Portree throughout the winter. He died as a result of a fall from a gig in September 1844. Finlayson was a brother-in-law of 'Maighstir Ruairidh' (Rev Roderick Macleod) who had moved from Bracadale to Snizort before the Disruption of 1843. Both men were interred in the old Struan cemetery. A church was first built in 1854 and in Carbost around the same time. The minister in 1900 entered the Union and the congregation remained vacant until 1930.

In Duirinish a catechist was appointed to the district after the Disruption to care for the people who adhered to the Free Church. The charge was sanctioned in 1850 and Rev Alexander McColl was settled in 1852. The minister in 1900 died before the Union took place and the congregation was vacant until the induction of Rev Kenneth Cameron in 1909.

The minister in 2000 did not associate himself with the Reconstitution of the Free Church.

In 2012 the congregations of Bracadale and Duirinish were linked by Act of the Commission of Assembly, with two Kirk Sessions and two Deacons' Courts.

LOCHALSH & STRATH Email: lochalsh@fccontinuing.org

In Lochalsh the church was erected shortly after the Disruption by Issac W Lillingston, a local proprietor and benefactor and nephew of William Wilberforce. In 1900 the minister, Rev Angus Galbraith and his congregation adhered to the Free Church.

In Glenshiel a church was built in 1864 and a minister settled. The minister in 1900 Rev Kenneth Macrae and his congregation adhered to the Free Church.

Lochalsh and Glenshiel were consolidated into one charge in 1968.

In Glenelg although a large number in the district came out with the Free Church in 1843, it was not until 1859 that the charge was sanctioned and in 1861 the first minister was settled. The first post-1900 Kirk Session met in 1910 when 19 communicants were on the roll. In 1922 Rev Alex MacLeod became the first ordained minister of the congregation since 1900. His translation to North Uist in 1926 left a long vacancy of 54 years until the induction of the next minister in 1980.

Glenelg was disjoined from Glenshiel in 1944.

In Strath following the Disruption the parish described as '27 miles long and 7 miles broad and with seven separate groups of population' was served by catechists. It was then established as a preaching station before being sanctioned as a charge in 1857. Church buildings were erected in Strathaird, Broadford and Kyleakin. The minister in 1900 went in with the Union and the congregation remained vacant until 1922.

In 2010 the congregations of Lochalsh & Glenshiel and Glenelg & Arnisdale were consolidated into one charge by Act of Assembly and the new congregation linked to the congregation of Strath, with two Kirk Sessions and two Deacons' Courts.

In 2017 the congregations of Lochalsh and Strath were consolidated into one charge by Act of Assembly.

PORTREE Email: portree@fcccontinuing.org

Although the minister remained in the Established Church at the Disruption almost the entire congregation came into the Church of Scotland, Free. In 1893 the majority of the congregation entered the Free Presbyterian Church. In 1900, most of the remainder along with the minister entered the United Free Church. The Free Church, continuing, was thus very small and had no premises. It slowly built up again and was recognised as a charge in 1919, with Rev Malcolm Galbraith appointed as interim moderator. The present church building was purchased in 1920, being the premises of the former United Presbyterian Church, vacated following the Union in 1900. The first minister was Rev Donald MacKinnon, inducted in 1923.

SNIZORT Email: snizort@fccontinuing.org

The two main church buildings in Snizort congregation were built under the supervision of Rev Roderick MacLeod (or 'Maighstir Ruairidh'). These were erected in 1847 (Skeabost Bridge) and 1860/1 (Uig). In the 19th century they were the scenes of great spiritual blessing and revival.

The minister in 1900 entered the United Free Church. The vacancy was filled with the ordination and induction of Rev Angus Mackay in 1906. In 1911 he accepted a call to Farr in north Sutherland. There then followed a vacancy of almost ten years which was ended with the ordination and induction of Rev Murdo Stewart in 1920. Mr Stewart demitted the charge in 1932. The congregation did not go very far afield for his successor, calling their former interim moderator, Rev Malcolm Macleod of Bracadale. Mr Macleod accepted the call and served at Snizort from 1934 until his retirement in 1956. A young probationer, Rev Angus Smith, was ordained and inducted in 1958. A decade later Mr Smith was translated to Cross in the Isle of Lewis. Rev Duncan MacLeay was translated from Fearn in 1969. Mr MacLeay retired in 1987 and Rev Iain D Campbell was ordained and inducted the following year. In 1995 he departed for Lewis having accepted a call to Back. His successor was Rev Kenneth M Macdonald who was settled in Snizort in the autumn of 1997. In 2008 Mr Macdonald accepted a call to Scalpay. The present minister was translated from Partick, Glasgow and inducted in August 2010.

CANADA

SMITHS FALLS Email: smithsfalls@fcccontinuing.org

Following the Disruption, the Free Church cause flourished in this part of Canada. In 1846 a Free Church congregation was formed in Smiths Falls under the name St Paul's Presbyterian Church with Rev William Aitken as minister. Included in the deputations sent by the Free Church in Scotland to North America was Rev William Chalmers Burns, who preached in Smiths Falls as well as many other places throughout Canada.

Although the congregation maintained a vibrant witness for several years, a series of church unions within Canada in the latter part of the nineteenth century resulted in the loss of a Free Church testimony. Under the leadership of Rev David Compton a new congregation was received into the Free Church of Scotland (Continuing) in 2002. The congregation is presently under the Home & Foreign Missions Committee.

METROPOLITAN WASHINGTON Email: washingtonondc@fccontinuing.org
In 1844, encouraged by sympathy in America for the birth of the Free Church of Scotland, and impelled by the Free Church's interest in learning about the American model for theological education, Professor William Cunningham travelled from Scotland to make a tour of the eastern seaboard of the United States. In Washington, D.C., he visited President John Tyler and his cabinet. A Free Church witness commenced with the admission of the Metropolitan Washington congregation in 2003. Offering Reformed preaching and worship near the capital city of the United States, the church is known locally as Westminster Presbyterian Church.

MISSIONS

NORTHERN IRELAND

BALLYCLARE & DOAGH Email: ballyclareandoagh@fcccontinuing.org

The congregation had its origins in a Baptist cause in Templepatrick, Co Antrim, which in due time became known as Templepatrick Reformed Church.

Following an agreement to separate a party withdrew from Templepatrick Reformed Church in November 2013 and voted to reconstitute. Consideration was given to the affiliation of the new congregation and it was unanimously agreed to seek admission to the Free Church of Scotland (Continuing).

The minister and congregation applied separately through the Southern Presbytery in December 2013 and both were received into the denomination by the General Assembly in May 2014. The congregation is under the Home & Foreign Missions Committee and the minister has been appointed a General Assessor to the Southern Presbytery.

The Southern Presbytery held a recognition service for the minister and congregation on 1st July 2014.
