

TSA Sexual Assault

David Zokaites

July 14, 2020

Scene One

- Sioux Falls airport December 10, 2018, 2:45 PM
- Brown-skinned man felt by TSA from waist to ankles
- Undesired sexual contact is sexual assault, even when committed by government in the name of security
- Most likely racist
- No contraband found
- What's the real point? Public safety? Climate of fear? Subservience? Distraction from corruption?

Scene Two

- Reported incident to nearby officer, no action
- Homeland Security agent gave me grief

Scene Three

- Adults should be able to talk about anything
- Pittsburgh airport, guard station
- “Hey how often does the TSA commit sexual assault?”
- TSA man threatened to find me on the outside
- “That's not a threat it's a promise!”
- Nearby police officer protected him

Scene Four

- Pittsburgh airport parking lot
- I reported TSA threat
- Cop 1: “You already filed a report, I will not take another one”
- Cop 2: "I smell alcohol" and "You have to show me your ID per the Supreme Court" and "I want you to take a sobriety test"
- Cop 3 was there for intimidation
- I quoted Terry vs Ohio and then was free to go

Scene Five

- At home, reported incidents to TSA, Pittsburgh police
- No response

Observations

- TSA commits sexual assault, probably on a racist basis
- Sioux Falls police protect TSA
- Pittsburgh police lie and intimidate innocent people
- Filing a complaint against government is risky
- Thin blue line is a concrete wall
- Most oaths to uphold Constitution are pretense
- People get angry when you question dogma
- Government protects itself, not us

A Famous Quote

- "Until this moment, Senator, I think I have never really gauged your cruelty or your recklessness. ... Have you no sense of decency, sir? At long last, have you left no sense of decency?"
- Whatever happened to decency in American government?
- We have work to do
