It's Time to Set Your International Goals!

Dear Diego,

The new school term is right around the corner. What steps will you be taking to build international experience this year? Now is the time to commit to developing the Global You, which is an exciting and rewarding process – both personally and professionally. Be sure to explore the important links in this issue!

So, what can you do right now?

- Make the decision to go global. The coming year is the perfect time to change your life by heading abroad to study, volunteer, intern, work – or participate in a virtual international program. Commit to developing the Global You. This simple step is more important than you think!
- Check out language learning and internationally-focused courses at your school. Choose one or more to include in your course load.
- Find out what international and cross-cultural clubs and events take place on your campus. Choose one and plan to join.
- Research which professors at your school know about the international aspects of your field of study. Could you pick up a part-time job as a research assistant? Attend or volunteer at a conference?
- Don't have a passport yet? Set the wheels in motion to get one!

Ready to learn?
