Food that is CRAFTED

Greensboro has been known as "tournament town" for decades but just recently the city has been getting major props for the up and coming culinary scene. Numerous restaurants have been popping up in and around downtown Greensboro. Owner/chef, Kris Fuller, has hit her concepts out of the park – Crafted the Art of a Taco and her new concept, Crafted the Art of Street Food. Both restaurants have a unique and urban feel. Since opening both restaurants Kris has received multiple awards and recognition acknowledging her innovative dishes and gastronomic mastery.

CRAFTED Spirits – Grass to Glass

Greensboro Distilling Co., (Fainting Goats Spirits – product line) is the first legal distillery in the Gate City since 1908. A family-owned and operated small batch, craft spirits distillery opened its doors in early summer 2016. Making the spirits from scratch is something that Fainting Goats Spirits takes pride in along with keeping all the production local even down to the grains – they are produced by local and/or North Carolina farmers.

Fabric CRAFTED in Greensboro

Greensboro was home to the textile industry for decades before production moved overseas. Civic Threads, a local retail shop carrying roughly 20-local vendors, including handmade apparel and Gate City Goods, another local shop focusing on handmade leather and denim goods joined forces in March of 2014 and created Hudson’s Hill. When you walk into Hudson’s Hill you are taking a walk back in time. When denim was worn by farmers and manufacturing was all done in the US. The shop pays homage to those years and takes pride in the way that their 100% handmade, small batch production operation runs. All equipment is original Singer machinery dating back to the 20’s.

CRAFTED for Kids

Family fun has been something that Greensboro prides itself on and takes to the next level. The Greensboro Children’s Museum is a staple to the area and well underway to an amazing transformation. With an indoor winding river feature that will include 10 experiential learning stations for toddlers up to teens and a one-of-a-kind outdoor play plaza that will feature two Neptune XXL Climbers, 30 feet tall connected by a suspended tunnel at a height of 25 feet (the only ones of their kind in the world) and capable of holding 200 children each. The museum is “reaching greater heights” and strives to be one of the best children’s museum in the country.
