Rationale

The composition's I created was a speech and a piece of art, I have created these two for a set of different reasons. I created the speech about human cloning to address the fact that human cloning was immoral to a group of politicians and scientists in a committee. This is significant to my audience because these are highly educated individuals that will only be persuaded by evidence and a well-organized speech. The overall goal of this speech was to make politicians and scientists aware of the consequences of human cloning and the implications that come with it.

As for the artwork it was created for the genral public to understand that human cloning isn't right. I had tried to make it as simple as possible and drew stick figures in hopes that even small children would be able to understand the message. I drew the figures in bright colors to grab people's attention and had the stick figures appear all identical and sad because of the harsh treatment they were receiving.
