

1. What do you feel like you learned this unit that you didn't know before?

Some things that I learned this unit that I didn't know before was being able to write reviews/criticisms of a piece of media and eventually expanding them turning them into academic humanities criticisms/ and analysis.

2. What did you already know , but now understand better or learned more about?

I already knew how to write an analysis since I have done those for my papers before, however, I did learn more on how to further improve my analysis or close reading on a certain piece, because we have been doing more of it, and this made it easier for me to write future papers that involves academic writing.

3. What (if anything) do you feel like I wanted you to learn, but you still aren't sure about?

I feel like you wanted us to learn more about the academic writings, but I am still a little bit unsure about the process of making my piece a little bit more formal from just a piece of media.

4. What are the strengths of your final project articles? What are you most proud of?

The strengths of my final project is that I think I chose the topic of a movie that's been having many opinions on it lately, whether it's good or bad, and I just feel proud of being able to talk about the movie from my perspective on it. I am most proud of writing an academic piece that resonates with me quite alot and actually being able to talk about something that represents my actual cultures.

5. If you were to revise your final project articles, what would you want to do differently?

If I were to revise my final project articles, I would probably change more of the way it was written. Because I was still a bit confused about academic criticism/writing, I mainly only made it “formal” by changing the grammar and fixing the sentences so that it made sense. I am in between the idea that this is both an academic writing as well as it is not one.

6. How would you describe or rate your participation/engagement in this unit?

I would rate my participation a little bit better than last time, however, I did say that I was going to be more engaging in class discussions this time as I said on the reflection of Unit 1. But, because I have been somewhat getting more work lately in my other classes, causing me to sleep a little bit later and missing this class sometimes, I have not been participating as much as I thought I would have since I have only attended one class session out of three throughout this unit.

7. What did you do this unit that helped make you successful?

In this unit, I have been marking down all my important dates, such as tests, projects, zoom sessions, etc in my timetable so I could stay organized and aware of what times and dates are coming up.

8. What (if anything) do you want to do differently in the next unit?

In the next unit, I want to start being more efficient with my time and do the assignments I have in advance rather than waiting a few days into the week and then starting the assignments.

9. What additional things (resources, support, information, etc.) do you wish you had had for this unit?

I don't think any additional topics should be added to this unit.

10. Is there anything you would like me to change (in the structure of our course, in how I'm presenting information, etc.) going forward?

There is not anything I would like for you to change going forward. You have explained everything thoroughly and I like the structure of the course as it is. Thank you.

11. For you, how did this unit compare to the News Unit?

I honestly liked this unit more than the News Unit, because this one allows me to write freely about whatever is on my mind of the piece of media, while the News Unit was a little bit harder for me, because I had to create a news article based on the structures of how news articles are already in and working more from there.

12. What (if anything) from this unit would you like to discuss/think about/explore further? (either this semester or just in your life)

I would like to learn more about academic writings and humanities criticism, so that it can help me improve in stronger analysis writing skills and academic humanities if I ever need to do a paper similar to the academic humanities criticism again.
