Name:

Randy Nunez

What is the name of the performance event? Include a URL if available.

The name is called The Moth

<https://themoth.org/>

Who hosts this performance event? What is the performance event's focus area and target audience? Get into specifics (demographic, age, location, etc.) How do you know?

The moth gets hosted by multiple storytellers and staff who want to engage with an audience, celebrate diversity and share their experiences. Its audience target is everyone. Except for the age part, the youngest age you can be to go there is 16.

Who normally performs at these events? What genres are featured at these events?

People who just wanna share their stories are usually here and there is a wide range of genres. The main ones are personal stories and realistic, non fiction, etc.

What are the performance guidelines for this event? (Does it cost anything? Are there time requirements? Is there a theme? Do you have to submit a written version for review beforehand?)

You have to have a true story ready and have to submit your pitch online. You give a short summary that focuses on your experience and people who work at moth will review your submission. It does cost money, $15-$50

Why is your Telling a good fit for this performance event?

I think this place would be great because this place mainly focuses on people sharing personal experiences rather than other places I searched up that were mainly about music and comedy. It's a good spot for storytellers and I would be able to share my struggles that some may even relate to.
