

I'm just a simple girl on a simple farm living with my aunt. The way things seemed I really believed that would just be it for me. Marry a farmer, have kids and keep the farm going. Boy was I wrong. I went with my gut and it backfired hard. There was a new employee on the farm who seemed to always want to talk with me. His daily tasks had him all over the farm but somehow he was running into me very frequently. I didn't think much of it. Maybe he was just being friendly or wanted to get on my good side.

As the time passed he started giving me dandelions and dropping lots of hints. I can't even lie, whatever he was doing worked. He was a hard worker so naturally my aunt liked him as well. She doesn't play around but he managed to build a strong relationship with her. His name was John but she called him Johnny. She'd joke "One day you and Johnny are gonna get married and have a bunch of little kids running around like headless chickens." I replied back "you're looking a bit too far ahead. He's cool and all but I've only known him for a few months. "

As time passed we only got closer. It got to the point where he asked me out. There was no way I could say no. Everything seemed so perfect. Or so I thought. Until a family friend came over and immediately recognized John. "He isn't who you think he is. He goes around farm to farm scamming the owners. His method was pretty simple: He starts as an employee and builds relationships with the owners. Once the trust is set he slowly starts trying to take charge. He tries to sway the owners into giving him more responsibility. It gets to the point where he tries to take ownership of the farm and tries to scam the owners." I was in awe. I told her "I let my guard down one time and this is what happens." At least it didn't get too far just yet. I had to tell my aunt immediately. "He's a fraud. He's snooping his way in for his own gain." At first she thought people were jealous and trying to ruin what we had. She made a call to other farms and asked if they heard anything about this. Sure enough everything was true. The betrayal was next level.

She had no choice but to fire him and never let him return. I was so disappointed. My trust issues were through the roof. I don't think I can fall in love again.