

I knew an exceptional amount about my choice in my topic but I knew almost nothing about the opposing choice.

I didn't know how to write an annotated bibliography at all, so this assignment was a struggle for me. I constantly felt like I was doing wrong and I had to refer to the samples repeatedly... however the samples and instructions after reading them over and over helped me form the layout and make the assignment easy to follow.

I feel like this piece revealed that I can be openminded, understanding, and not just objective to my beliefs/views.

I don't know but I know my work consisted of back and forth between the samples and my actual paper, I don't think this was the same for everyone. Our projects were similar in the way that we're all doing the same type of writing but, just choosing a topic that speaks to the individual.

I would research a little more about annotated bibliographies in general and dedicate a little more time knowing it was a little challenging.
