

Self-Assessment 3

Overall, what stands out as the most meaningful learning you experienced during this assignment?

- A number of factors, both outside and inside, contributed to it, but I found that I generally need to manage my time more efficiently between the coursework of my different classes. From homework from Algebra to an exam from Microeconomics, it has been somewhat of a rough ride trying to juggle all of them and this assignment while still trying to find some time for leisure. That's how I figured it would be as my first taste of college so far.

How well do you feel you achieved your instructor's learning goals?

- There are no specific goals outlined for this assignment, so I am not sure, but I do believe that I almost met them if anything. My topic conformed just barely to the topics focused on in plenary, and the general structure of the essay seemed to be more on the fence than non-biased and argumentative. That may have just been due to the topic chosen at hand being hard to debate.

How well do you feel you achieved your learning goals?

- I hit the mark about as well as I could have personally. I applied what I already knew in my essay along with newer information I had just attained to put together my final product, and that may very well have to count towards something.

What went particularly well and/or what was particularly challenging? Please describe in detail.

- The writing of the essay felt smooth. Although the draft was rather hard to read at times, it was easy to reconstruct for the final draft. Even if it did exceed the word limit in the end and I failed to rectify that, I feel as though the final product punched far above its weight in both detail and thought. Every other mark should have been hit as it stands.

What else, if anything, do you want your instructor to know?

- I feel that the ceiling of the word limit should have been increased to at most 2000. Topics like this aren't often easy to condense down, and even if a number of extra words and options were removed I'd likely still have gone above what I needed to.
