

My True Vision of Fame

On July 18, 2025, I was in Hollywood walking around Universal Studios. As Hollywood was sunny under the clear blue sky and bright sun, I felt a unique sunny vibe that I can only access once in my life. Being under the sunny weather allowed me to develop my own energy in the Hollywood tour, tan under the golden sun, and enjoy the highly relaxed social vibe where people relax under shades when it is so warm outside.

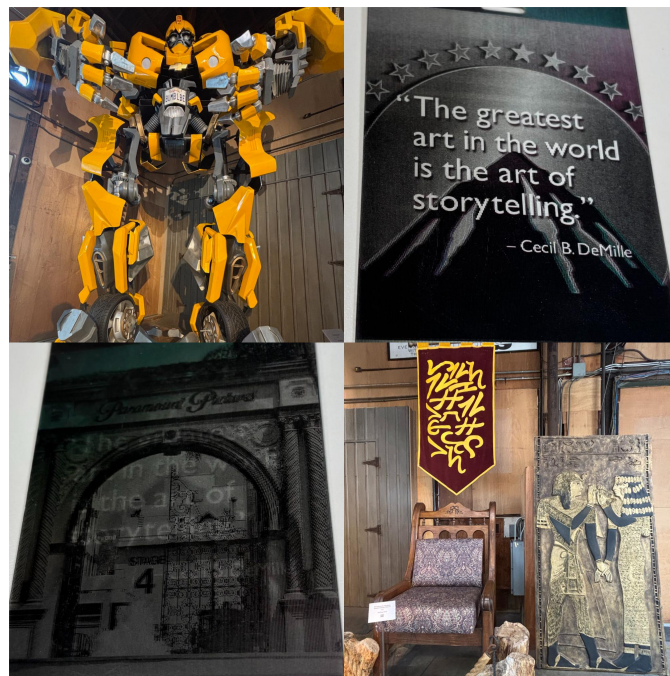

Wearing my Guest Pass was something that I could earn once in my life. It portrays the Paramount Logo—the Ben Lomond Peak Mountain in Utah. While the mountain originated from Utah in order to represent aspiration, I visualized the logo as a symbol for movie production in Hollywood. Standing in front of the logo makes me see myself in a true movie being produced by Paramount Plus.

The most unforgettable experience in my life was standing in front of Front Gate Plaza. As I tilted my own pass, I could see the transparency of the Plaza and watch celebrities, actors, and actresses walking on the Red Carpet in order to enter the Plaza and attract the world through entertainment. Being in front of the Plaza puts me in a place where I can physically meet huge figures walking on the Red Carpet, entering the gate, and preparing for their own fame creation.

Although I was strictly prohibited from photographing and filming production stations due to copyright policies, I can still imagine my own experience in spaces where movies are produced in real life. I could feel my own body tanning as I continued to ride the trailer outdoors and stopped at every production station. I saw myself being present where scenes of fire, police raids, superheroes, and all other movie actions occur while tanning myself under the unique sunshine whenever I stop at any production station.

I noticed a huge pool and a tank on top of the Universal Studios building. I even caught pipes connecting the tank to the building. Other tourists only heard from the tour guide that the pool is used as a pool or body of water during movie scenes. That said, I was the first guest to make a prediction that the tank holds the water as the pipes transfer the water from the tank into the pool in order to create a body of water. While my tour guide was not sure if my claims were true, I believe that water transfers like that if I were to ever be part of a movie production scene.

I concluded my tour learning how movie productions are made and took away a smart guest of how the tank and the pool are related with each other in production setups. As I exited the Studios, I took one last look at the robot and Egyptian sculpture. Looking at the robot makes me dream of being in a superhero movie where I see a robot fighting in an acting scene. Seeing this special chair and sculpture made me feel that I am in a movie which is based on Ancient Egypt. Overall, I already have a clear imagination of being in an actual movie making process in real life.
