

Writing this letter of introduction helped me appreciate the obstacles that I had to overcome in life. Before I wrote my letter of instruction I organized an outline with bullet points of things I have accomplished. Creating this outline helped me realize that through failure, repetition and commitment, I was able to grow not only in a professional setting but also as a human. Through my professional experiences and balancing school, I learned important skills such as time management, working under pressure and other hard skills such as the usage of microsoft suites, softwares like Tableau, Alteryx etc.

Writing this letter of introduction also made me feel grateful. I am grateful for the amazing people I meet along the way, I am grateful for the great opportunities that came my way and I am especially grateful for my bad days for teaching me that through hard work and restlessness anything is possible.

The letter of introduction and the visual element assignment were both very helpful tools for helping me visualize my next steps for my career. For example, I need to make sure I pass my core classes for my major such as Calculus, joining a club, applying for internships that are specific to my major etc.
