

Raymond T. Perkins III

Princeton University

Predicting and Classifying Wine Type and Quality

raymondp@princeton.edu

We demonstrate differences in predictive and exploratory analysis algorithms when the data is binary, polytomous, categorical and ordinal. We consider generalized linear models like logistic regression, linear regression and ordinal logistic regression. Clustering and classification is done by k-means and naive Bayes algorithm respectively.