

Kujs on Mission!

We are a traveling family! It is our calling and it requires a lot from us, especially from the kids. It's important to us to not just drag the kids around but to teach them about this world and the part our family plays in the lives of the people we serve. We constantly remind 'our three' how blessed we are to be in this position!! Our recent travels took us to the beautiful neighboring country of Kenya; our goal was to fill a truck of medicine and get it on the road before the end of March. But the work aspect of this trip could not dampen the excitement and anticipation to spend a week at the coast... dipping our toes in the warm Indian Ocean and dreaming of delicious seafood. The kids were ecstatic of course and worked hard to get all school work done so they could truly relax.

Agum, Jed and Hannah

It's critical we have these 'fun' moments together to alleviate the stresses of living in South Sudan. There's so much joy to be experienced in this amazing continent, and 'our three' have experienced the outstanding beauty and the overwhelming despair. Perhaps they understand this world better than most? They've certainly seen more than most their age.

But can anyone really understand why girls, instead of going to school, spend hours every day carrying heavy jerrycans of water for their family? Why children die from malaria when it's preventable and treatable? Why mothers die in child birth? Why people go to bed hungry? I'm so thankful for children who see their simple lives as privileged and choose to live it with compassion, love, courage, hope and thankfulness. Hannah, Agum and Jed are very much a part of our family's calling.

As we enter this Easter season it is a reminder of the hope we have in Jesus and part of our calling is to share that hope with those around us. We always tell our children, "God can use anyone and He is using YOU!"

"For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." – Philippians 2:13

South Sudan Famine!

You've probably seen in the news that parts of South Sudan have been experiencing a famine. This has mostly been due to war and drought. This is the first time since 2011 that famine has been declared. We've been seeing quite a few malnourished children in our clinic and we're now helping to provide a service to monitor and feed these precious ones.

Amou is 18 months old and weighs only 5 kgs. She doesn't walk or crawl. Her weight is less than half of what it should be.

Prayer Request!

We have two trucks on their way to us through Kenya and Uganda. We need prayer for safe passage and favor at the borders. They are carrying food and medicine for the entire year. The light rains have already started and will become heavier, so we want to avoid any delays. There are so many unstable areas right now that road travel can be quite unsafe. Please continue to pray for our teams safety as well. Our area has experienced some tribal conflicts.

Praising Him,

Sabet and Suzy
