

One fine glorious summer day
I wandered the beach, much like a stray
I had with me no company
But I made friends that day.

Come on little lobsters,
You can crawl with me.
We'll find buried treasure then we'll sail the seven seas.

The sands were hot, the sun shone bright
The waves crashed on the shore.
We searched that beach for hours,
But never were we bored.

Come on crawling crabs,
No need to hide from me.
We'll find buried treasure then we'll sail the seven seas.

We came across a hidden cave,
Amongst the burning sands.
No treasure there, but a ship to sail,
And a map to distant lands!

Come on merry dolphins,
Swim along with me.
We'll find buried treasure then we'll sail the seven seas
