History:
Roger Kahn, born in 1927, grew up in Brooklyn where he attended prep school and, like most of his fellow Brooklynites, rooted enthusiastically for the Dodgers. He joined the New York Herald Tribune as a copy boy in 1948 and rose quickly to become a baseball writer. He began to cover the Dodgers in 1952, and also traveled with the other New York teams, the Giants and the Yankees. At the age of 26, he was the newspaper's "star" sports reporter, making a salary of $10,000.

In 1956, Mr. Kahn was named sports editor of Newsweek magazine and then from 1963 to 1969 became editor at large of The Saturday Evening Post. For a decade he wrote a monthly column for Esquire magazine. Five times his articles were voted the best in the country and awarded the E.P. Dutton prize.

In 1972, he published The Boys of Summer, which became the country's number-one best seller and a phrase that is now used hundreds of times by writers and fans during the baseball season. Mr. Kahn's other books include a biography of Jack Dempsey, a memoir of the season in which he owned a minor league baseball team, a history of a student uprising at Columbia University and a recollection of the era when the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants ruled the world. Three anthologies are entirely devoted to some of the best of Mr. Kahn's writing.

In 2006 he was inducted into the National Jewish Sports Hall of Fame. On that occasion, Baseball Commissioner Bud Selig called Mr. Kahn "an icon of our game." He lives in Stony Ridge with his wife and has two grown children; Alissa Keenan, a ceramist, and Gordon J. Kahn, A.I.A., a prominent architect.

Scope and Content:
This collection contains the personal and professional papers of Roger Kahn. The majority of these papers deal with his research, interviews and correspondence relating to his articles, stories and books. Items include litigation documents, contracts, financial statements, manuscripts, photos, audio and video tapes.

System of Arrangement:
This collection is organized into five series with the provenance kept where possible. Series I contains files such as correspondence, fan mail, litigations, contracts, research files on individuals, Kahn articles by publication, public appearances and book tours. Series II is organized by book title. Each title may include research notes, newspaper clippings, manuscript, interviews, correspondence and fan mail. Series III is two oversize boxes of photos, organized by book; promotional shots of Kahn, his family and miscellaneous. Series IV is an oversize box containing awards, citations, posters received by Kahn. Series V is one oversize box and one smaller box containing audio and video tapes of interviews, book promotions and personal appearances.
