Description

Alloxan is an oxygenated pyrimidine and toxic analog of glucose. Alloxan destroys β cells and is used in research models to induce diabetes. This compound does not affect human cells.

References

Caution: This product is intended for laboratory and research use only. It is not for human or drug use.