Nicotinamide is an amide form of vitamin B3 that is incorporated into NAD and NADP as oxidation-reduction coenzymes. Nicotinamide exhibits anti-inflammatory and anxiolytic activities; it is clinically used to treat acne vulgaris and rosacea. Commercially, nicotinamide is used in skin whitening treatments as it decreases skin pigmentation. Nicotinamide also binds GABA receptors, decreasing aggressive behavior.

References

Caution: This product is intended for laboratory and research use only. It is not for human or drug use.