Bau cua ca cop game

Vietnamese gambling cubes Bau Cua Tom Ca B! cua tôm cá (b bom cua tôm cá gourd-crab- shrimp-fish) is a Vietnamese gamble using three cubes. [1] The six sides of the cubes, instead of showing one to six pips, have pictures of fish, shrimp, shrimp, heel, kalabash and stag. Players place bets on a board that has six pictures, bets on which the pictures will appear. If one dies corresponding to the bet, the bets will receive the same amount as their bet. If two stakes match the bet, the bookmaker receives twice as much money. If the three cubes match the bet, the bookmaker receives three times as much money. For example, if one made $3 per fish, and a seller rolls 1 fish, 1 crab and 1 stag, then the bookmaker would receive $3 while keeping the $3 they bet. Any money not rewarded for the round is kept in a central pool operated by a dealer who spins the dice. B-u Cua Tôm Cá is basically the Vietnamese version of Hoo Hey How (Fish-Prawn-Crab) plays in China, a cube game of The Crown and an anchor played by British sailors, or chuck-a-luck played in America. Bau cua tom ca is often played on Tot (Vietnamese New Year). References ^ Robert B.
