Tournament History

1982 The first NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship was conducted with a field of 32 teams, 13 of which were champions of automatic-qualifying conferences.

Women's Final Four: Norfolk, Virginia. Teams: Louisiana Tech, Cheyney, Maryland and Tennessee. Louisiana Tech (35-1) defeated Cheyney, 76-62, to claim the first NCAA women's basketball championship in front a crowd of 9,531 and a national television audience on CBS.

1983 The championship bracket remained at 32 teams and automatic qualification was awarded to 14 conferences. However, on a one-year basis only, an additional eight conferences played opening-round games to determine the four additional conference representatives that would compete in the first-round games.

Women's Final Four: Norfolk, Virginia. Teams: Southern California, Louisiana Tech, Georgia and Old Dominion. Southern California (31-2) defeated Louisiana Tech, 69-67, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship.

1984 The championship format returned to the original format conducted in 1982, with a total of 17 automatic-qualifying conferences.

Women's Final Four: Los Angeles. Teams: Southern California, Tennessee, Cheyney and Louisiana Tech. Southern California (29-4) defeated Tennessee, 72-61, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.

1985 The bracket comprised 32 teams, with 17 automatic qualifiers. The Division I Women's Basketball Committee seeded teams No. 1 through 8 on a national basis, with No. 1 and 8 in one bracket, No. 2 and 7 in another, No. 3 and 6 in a third and No. 4 and 5 in the fourth. The remaining teams were seeded No. 1 through 8 within their respective regions; teams were moved outside their natural geographical region only as was necessary to balance the four regional brackets.

ESPN televised its first NCAA women's tournament games – the East Regional final in Norfolk, Virginia (Old Dominion 72, Ohio St. 68) the West Regional final in Los Angeles (Georgia 97, Long Beach State 82) and the national semifinals in Austin, Texas (Georgia 91, Western Kentucky 78 and Old Dominion 57, Louisiana-Monroe 47; the Old Dominion vs. Louisiana-Monroe game was shown on a tape-delayed basis).

Women's Final Four: Austin, Texas. Teams: Old Dominion, Georgia, Louisiana-Monroe and Western Kentucky. Old Dominion (31-3) defeated Georgia, 70-65, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship.

1986 ESPN televised all four regional finals and the national semifinals, while CBS continued to broadcast the national championship game.

The NCAA and Host Communications teamed to form the NCAA Radio Network to produce radio broadcasts of the Women's Final Four games. The network consisted of 26 affiliates.

The championship was expanded to 40 teams and the number of automatic qualifiers increased from 17 to 18.

Women's Final Four: Lexington, Kentucky. Teams: Texas, Southern California, Tennessee and Western Kentucky. Undefeated Texas (34-0) beat Southern California, 97-81, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. Rupp Arena became the first facility to host the Men's and Women's Final Fours in consecutive years.

1987 The tournament remained at 40 teams, with 19 automatic qualifiers. The tournament consisted of four regional brackets of 10 teams each. The Women's Basketball Committee seeded No. 1 through 8 on a national basis and placed them in the four brackets accordingly. The remaining 32 teams were seeded within their geographical regions. A team could be moved outside its region if necessary to balance the bracket numerically, or if the proximity of an opponent outside its region would be comparable and a better competitive match-up would result.

Women's Final Four: Austin, Texas. Teams: Tennessee, Louisiana Tech, Long Beach State and Texas. Tennessee (28-6) defeated Louisiana Tech, 67-44, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the first time with 15,615 in attendance for each session.

1988 The bracket remained at 40 teams, with 18 automatic qualifiers. The seeding policy was changed from seeding teams No. 1 through 8, to seeding two tiers of four teams each. Teams in the first tier were the No. 1-seeded teams in each of the four regions. Teams in the second tier were placed in the regional brackets to achieve competitive balance and, when possible, to preserve geographical identity.

Women's Final Four: Tacoma, Washington. Teams: Louisiana Tech, Auburn, Long Beach State and Tennessee. Louisiana Tech (32-2) defeated Auburn, 56-54, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.

1989 The championship bracket expanded from 40 to 48 teams with 19 automatic qualifiers.

Women's Final Four: Tacoma, Washington. Teams: Tennessee, Auburn, Louisiana Tech and Maryland. Tennessee (35-2) defeated Auburn, 76-60, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.

1990 The championship bracket remained at 48 teams, with 21 automatic qualifiers.

Women's Final Four: Knoxville, Tennessee. Teams: Stanford, Auburn, Louisiana Tech and Virginia. Stanford (32-1) defeated Auburn, 88-81, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship in front of the first 20,000-plus-person crowd (20,023) in Women's Final Four history.

1991 The championship bracket remained at 48 teams, with 22 automatic qualifiers.

Women's Final Four: New Orleans. Teams: Tennessee, Virginia, UConn and Stanford. The three Women's Final Four games were all televised on CBS for the first time in a Saturday/Sunday format. Tennessee (30-5) defeated Virginia, 70-67 in overtime, to win its third NCAA women's basketball championship.

1992 The championship bracket remained at 48 teams, with 23 automatic qualifiers.

Women's Final Four: Los Angeles. Teams: Stanford, Western Kentucky, Missouri State and Virginia. Stanford (30-3) defeated Western Kentucky, 78-62, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.

1993 The championship bracket remained at 48 teams, with 23 automatic qualifiers.

Women's Final Four: Atlanta. Teams: Texas Tech, Ohio St., Iowa and Vanderbilt. Texas Tech (31-3) defeated Ohio St., 84-82, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the second time with 16,141 in attendance for each session. It marked the first time the event was sold out in advance.

1994 The championship bracket was expanded from 48 to 64 teams, and all 32 eligible conferences were awarded automatic qualification. The Women's Basketball Committee seeded 16 teams nationally (i.e., four No. 1 seeds, four No. 2 seeds, four No. 3 seeds and four No. 4 seeds), and the remaining teams were placed in each regional bracket.

Women's Final Four: Richmond, Virginia. Teams: North Carolina, Louisiana Tech, Alabama and Purdue. North Carolina (33-2) hit a 3-Pointer at the buzzer to defeat Louisiana Tech, 60-59, and win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the third (second consecutive) time with 11,966 in attendance for each session.

In December, the NCAA announced a seven-year agreement with ESPN Inc. to become the exclusive television home of the Division I Women's Basketball Championship and 18 other NCAA championships, beginning with the 1995-96 season. As part of the agreement, the Women's Final Four moved to a Friday-Sunday format, effective with the 1996 championship.

1995 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, and all 32 eligible conferences were awarded automatic qualification. First- and second-round sessions were conducted at the sites of the 16 highest-seeded teams; four teams, including the host institution, were assigned to each site. The Women's Basketball Committee seeded 16 teams nationally (i.e., four No. 1 seeds, four No. 2 seeds, four No. 3 seeds and four No. 4 seeds), and the remaining teams were placed in each regional bracket.

Women's Final Four: Minneapolis. Teams: UConn, Tennessee, Georgia and Stanford. UConn (35-0) defeated Tennessee, 70-64, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the fourth (third consecutive) time with 18,038 in attendance for each session.

In July, the Women's Basketball Committee selected the Women's Final Four sites for 1999 and 2000: San Jose, California (San Jose Arena) in 1999 and Philadelphia (First Union Center) in 2000. The committee also awarded the 1998 and 1999 regional sites: 1998 - East (Dayton, Ohio); Mideast (Nashville, Tennessee); Midwest (Lubbock, Texas) and West (Oakland, California). 1999 - East (Greensboro, North Carolina); Mideast (Cincinnati); Midwest (Normal, Illinois) and West (Los Angeles).

1996 ESPN purchased the exclusive broadcasting rights to the women's championship and televised 24 championship games (15 on ESPN; 9 on ESPN2).

For the first time, all 64 teams were seeded nationally. Each region in the bracket included 16 teams, and each team was placed in the bracket in order of the following seeds: No. 1 vs. No. 16; No. 8 vs. No. 9; No. 5 vs. No. 12; and No. 4 vs. No. 13 in the top half of each bracket; No. 6 vs. No. 11; No. 3 vs. No. 14; No. 7 vs. No. 10; and No. 2 vs. No. 15 in the lower half of each bracket.

The NCAA went to three-person officiating crews for all tournament games for the first time.

Women's Final Four: Charlotte, North Carolina. Teams: Tennessee, Georgia, UConn and Stanford. Tennessee (32-4) defeated Georgia, 83-65, to win its fourth NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the fifth (fourth consecutive) time with 23,291 in attendance for each session. This marked the highest Women's Final Four attendance in the history of the tournament.

The championship game earned a 3.7 rating (or 2.52 million households) on ESPN, the network's fourth-highest-rated college basketball game (men's or women's) in the previous five years.

The Women's Basketball Committee began initial discussions about the concept of predetermined sites for the first and second rounds of the championship.

1997 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 30 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

ESPN televised 26 championship games (15 on ESPN; 11 on ESPN2). The national championship game attracted a 4.0 rating (2.85 million homes) on ESPN, which was the highest rating for any game on ESPN (men's or women's) since 1990.

Women's Final Four: Cincinnati. Teams: Tennessee, Old Dominion, Notre Dame and Stanford. Tennessee (29-10) defeated Old Dominion, 68-59, to win its fifth NCAA women's basketball championship. Women's Final Four tickets sold out in four hours. That marked the sixth (fifth consecutive) sellout with 16,714 in attendance for each session.

In February, the Women's Basketball Committee sent a survey to all Division I directors of athletics and commissioners asking for input on the predetermined-sites concept.

In June, the Women's Basketball Committee reviewed results of the surveys received from the Division I directors of athletics and commissioners.

In July and August, the NCAA used a general public ticket drawing for the first time to allot tickets for the 1998 Women's Final Four.

ESPN televised 27 tournament games (14 on ESPN, 13 on ESPN2).

Women's Final Four: Kansas City, Missouri. Teams: Tennessee, Louisiana Tech, Arkansas and North Carolina State. Tennessee (39-0) defeated Louisiana Tech, 93-75, to win its record third consecutive and sixth overall NCAA championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the seventh (sixth consecutive) time with 17,976 in attendance for each session.

In June, the Women's Basketball Committee voted to forward a proposal for first- and second-round sessions to be conducted at predetermined sites. The committee also awarded the 2000 and 2001 regionals to the following sites: 2000 - East (Richmond, Virginia); Mideast (Memphis, Tennessee); Midwest (Kansas City, Missouri) and West (Portland, Oregon). 2001 - East (Pittsburgh); Mideast (Birmingham, Alabama); Midwest (Denver) and West (Spokane, Washington).

1999 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 30 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

For the second year, ESPN televised 27 tournament games (14 on ESPN, 13 on ESPN2). The national championship game recorded the highest household rating (4.3) on ESPN.

Women's Final Four: San Jose, California. Teams: Purdue, Duke, Georgia and Louisiana Tech. Purdue (34-1) defeated Duke, 62-45, to win its first NCAA championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the eighth (seventh consecutive) time with 17,773 in attendance for each session.

In March, the Division I Women's Basketball Committee shared the initial proposal with the Division I coaches at the Women's Basketball Coaches Association convention during the Women's Final Four in San Jose.

2000 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 30 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

For the third year, ESPN televised 27 tournament games (14 on ESPN, 13 on ESPN2).

Women's Final Four: Philadelphia. Teams: UConn, Tennessee, Penn State and Rutgers. UConn (36-1) defeated Tennessee, 71-52, to win its second NCAA championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the ninth (eighth consecutive) time with 20,060 in attendance for each session. A record 692 media credentials were issued to media representatives covering the Women's Final Four.

In January, the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet reviewed the proposal from the Division I Women's Basketball Committee to implement predetermined first- and second-round sites for the 2001 championship. The cabinet approved the proposal, but it was given a low priority in the budget process.

In April, the Division I Management Council reviewed the predetermined sites proposal and denied the request for implementation in 2001, but asked for additional financial information for future consideration.

In June, the Women's Basketball Committee agreed to resubmit the predetermined sites proposal to the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet for implementation for the 2002 championship.

2001 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 31 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

ESPN increased its tournament coverage to 30 games (16 on ESPN, 14 on ESPN2). The national semifinals achieved their highest household rating (2.3) in the six years the tournament had been on ESPN.

The Women's Final Four received coverage on "ABC's Good Morning America" the morning of the national semifinals, featuring ESPN studio host Robin Roberts and Missouri State's Jackie Stiles. The national semifinals and championship game were shown live on the Jumbotron at Times Square in New York.

Women's Final Four: St. Louis. Teams: UConn, Notre Dame, Purdue and Missouri State. Notre Dame (36-2) defeated Purdue, 68-66, to capture its first NCAA championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the 10th (ninth consecutive) time with 20,551 in attendance for each session.

For the first time, the national championship team was presented its trophy in a live-for-television ceremony on ESPN.

In January, the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet reviewed the revised predetermined-sites proposal. The recommendation was approved in concept, but not given a high priority in the 2001-02 NCAA budget. The recommendation was moved to the agenda for the September 2001 meeting for consideration for inclusion in the 2002-03 budget.

In July, the NCAA signed a new 11-year agreement with ESPN, granting television rights for 21 NCAA championships, including all 63 games of the Division I Women's Basketball Championship, beginning with the 2003 championship. The Women's Basketball Committee awarded the Women's Final Four sites for 2005-07: Indianapolis (Conseco Fieldhouse or RCA Dome) in 2005, Boston (FleetCenter) in 2006 and Cleveland (Gund Arena) in 2007.

In August, a record number of over 14,000 tickets was allotted to the general public in the 2002 Women's Final Four random computerized ticket drawing.

In September, the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet approved a format change to move the women's basketball tournament to a Saturday-Monday and Sunday-Tuesday format, beginning in 2003. However, the cabinet tabled review of all budgetary agenda items to its February 2002 meeting because a large portion of its meeting was canceled because of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

In October, the Women's Basketball Committee decided that the 2003 regionals would be conducted on the following days: Mideast (Knoxville, Tennessee) and Midwest (Albuquerque, New Mexico) on Saturday and Monday; East (Dayton, Ohio) and West (Stanford, California) on Sunday and Tuesday.

2002 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 31 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

ESPN increased its tournament coverage to 31 games (15 on ESPN, 16 on ESPN2). The Women's Final Four attracted its highest number of television viewers, over 18 million, in its seven-year history on ESPN. The national championship game attained its highest household rating with a 4.1, which represented 3.49 million households.

The Women's Final Four again received coverage on ABC's "Good Morning America" and was also featured on ABC's "World News Tonight" with a piece on UConn's bid for an undefeated season. For the second year in a row, the national semifinals and championship game were shown live on the Jumbotron at Times Square in New York.

Women's Final Four: San Antonio. Teams: UConn, Duke, Oklahoma and Tennessee. UConn (39-0) defeated Oklahoma, 82-70, to capture its third NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. With the win, UConn became the first women's team to achieve multiple undefeated seasons (two), the second women's team to accomplish a 39-0 record (Tennessee also went 39-0 in 1998), the fourth women's team to go undefeated and the 10th Division I men's or women's basketball squad to record a perfect season. The Women's Final Four set its all-time attendance mark of 29,619 in the Alamodome, the first 20,000-plus-seat domed facility to host the event. The Women's Final Four sold out for the 11th (10th consecutive) time with 29,619 in attendance for each session.

In February, the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet forwarded the proposal for predetermined sites for the first and second rounds of the 2003 championship to the Division I Management Council and Board of Directors for budgetary consideration.

In April, the Division I Management Council and Board of Directors approved the predetermined first- and second-round sites proposal. Shortly after approval, bid specifications were sent to every Division I school and conference to submit to the committee for review.

In June, the Women's Basketball Committee selected the following institutions to serve as the 16 first- and second-round host sites for the 2003 championship: Cincinnati; Colorado; Georgia; Kansas State; Louisiana Tech; NC State; Old Dominion; Oklahoma; Oregon; Penn State; Purdue; New Mexico; Stanford; Tennessee; Texas Tech; and UConn.

In addition, the Women's Basketball Committee awarded the 2004, 2005 and 2006 regionals to the following sites: 2004 - East (Hartford, Connecticut); Mideast (Norfolk, Virginia); Midwest (Norman, Oklahoma) and West (Tempe, Arizona). 2005 - East (Philadelphia); Mideast (Chattanooga, Tennessee); Midwest (Kansas City, Missouri) and West (Seattle). 2006 - (Fairfield, Connecticut); Mideast (Cleveland); Midwest (San Antonio) and West (Albuquerque).

The Women's Basketball Committee also determined the RCA Dome would be the competition venue for the 2005 Women's Final Four.

In October, the Women's Basketball Committee distributed the bid specifications for the 2008-10 Women's Final Fours. For the first time, the Women's Final Four bid specifications were sent in a coordinated, joint effort with the Division I Men's Basketball Committee and its Men's Final Four bid specifications.

In December, the Women's Basketball Committee identified the following seven cities as potential sites for the 2008-10 Women's Final Fours: Denver (Pepsi Center), Minneapolis (Hubert Humphrey Metrodome), Philadelphia (First Union Center), San Antonio (Alamodome), St. Louis (Edward Jones Dome or Savvis Center), San Jose, California (HP Pavilion at San Jose), and Tampa, Florida (St. Pete Times Forum or Tropicana Field).

2003 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 31 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

All 63 games, played under the new Saturday-Monday and Sunday-Tuesday format, were televised live on ESPN and ESPN2 for the first time in the championship's history. ESPN offered whiparound-styled coverage of the first- and second-round games to most of the nation with regionalized/protected coverage in the home markets of the competing teams. All first- and second-round games were available in their entirety on ESPN's FullCourt pay-per-view package. Beginning with the regional semifinals, the remaining 15 games were televised nationally on ESPN and ESPN2. The overall tournament (55.4 million viewers) and the Women's Final Four (19.7 million viewers) were the most viewed in eight years on ESPN. The Texas-UConn national semifinal game was the most-viewed national semifinal game in ESPN history. The Tennessee-UConn national championship game was the fourth most-viewed basketball game (men's or women's) ever on ESPN or ESPN2.

The Women's Final Four again received coverage on ABC's "Good Morning America," and for the third consecutive year, the national semifinals and championship game were shown live on the Jumbotron at Times Square in New York.

Women's Final Four: Atlanta. Teams: UConn, Duke, Tennessee and Texas. UConn (37-1) defeated Tennessee, 73-68, to capture its second straight and fourth overall NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. UConn became the first team to repeat as champion since Tennessee won three in a row from 1996-98. The Georgia Dome completed the unique double dip, becoming the second facility to host the Men's and Women's Final Fours in back-to-back years. The Women's Final Four sold out for the 12th (11th consecutive) time with 28,210 in attendance for each session.

In May, the Women's Basketball Committee narrowed the pool to the following four cities to host the 2008-10 Women's Final Fours: Denver (Pepsi Center), St. Louis (Edward Jones Dome or Savvis Center), San Antonio (Alamodome), and Tampa, Florida (St. Pete Times Forum).

In June, the Women's Basketball Committee voted to submit a revised predetermined sites proposal to the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet that would allow the first- and second-round sessions to be conducted at eight, rather than 16, predetermined sites, beginning with the 2005 championship. The committee also selected the following institutions to serve as the 16 first- and second-round hosts for the 2004 championship: Arizona State; Chattanooga; Duke; Fairfield; Florida State; Iowa State; LSU; Minnesota; Montana; New Mexico; Notre Dame; Ohio State; Temple; Texas; UC Santa Barbara; and Virginia Tech.

In July, the Women's Basketball Committee awarded the Women's Final Four sites for 2008-10: Tampa, Florida (St. Pete Times Forum) in 2008, St. Louis (Edward Jones Dome) in 2009 and San Antonio (Alamodome) in 2010.

In September, the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet approved that effective with the 2005 championship, the format for first- and second-round sessions be revised to conduct the sessions at eight, rather than 16, predetermined sites.

2004 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 31 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

For the second consecutive year, all 63 games in 31 broadcast windows were televised live on ESPN and ESPNz2. Overall, the tournament was the most-viewed (estimated 72.1 million viewers) and highest-rated (1.47 on ESPN and 0.51 on ESPN2) ever. The games on ESPN averaged 1.3 million households while the games on ESPN2 averaged 445,000 households.

Women's Final Four: New Orleans. Teams: UConn, LSU, Minnesota and Tennessee. UConn (31-4) defeated Tennessee, 70-61, to capture its third straight and fifth overall NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. UConn became the first team to capture three consecutive national titles since Tennessee won three straight from 1996-98. New Orleans became the third city to host the Men's and Women's Final Fours in back-to-back years (Lexington, Kentucky: 1985 men's, 1986 women's, and Atlanta: 2002 men's, 2003 women's). The Women's Final Four sold out for the 13th (12th consecutive) time with 18,211 in attendance for each session.

The three games of the Women's Final Four averaged the most viewers (3.8 million households) and the highest rating (3.4) ever on ESPN. The number of households was a 16% increase from 2.6 million, and the rating was a 13% increase from 3.0 in 2003. The two national semifinal games averaged 2.5 million households and a 2.9 rating, to break the highs set in 2003 as ESPN's most-viewed and highest-rated Women's Final Four semifinals. The UConn-Tennessee national championship game was ESPN's second most-viewed basketball game – men's or women's, college or professional – in the network's 25-year history, averaging 3.8 million households. This mark surpassed the previous high of nearly 3.5 million households for UConn's victory over Oklahoma in the 2002 national championship game. The game also marked ESPN's highest-rated women's basketball telecast with a 4.3 average rating.

In June, the Women's Basketball Committee selected the following first- and second-round sites for the 2005 and 2006 championships: 2005 – Reunion Arena, Dallas (Texas and Texas Tech, hosts); Dean E. Smith Center, Chapel Hill, North Carolina (North Carolina, host); Comcast Center, College Park, Maryland (Maryland, host); Save Mart Center, Fresno, California (Fresno State, host); Thompson-Boling Arena, Knoxville, Tennessee (Tennessee, host); Williams Arena, Minneapolis (Minnesota, host); Bank of America Arena, Seattle (Washington, host); and Harry A. Gampel Pavilion, Storrs, Connecticut (UConn, host). 2006 - Allstate Arena, Chicago (DePaul, host); Pepsi Center, Denver (Colorado, host); Memorial Gymnasium, Nashville, Tennessee (Vanderbilt, host); Ted Constant Convocation Center, Norfolk, Virginia (Old Dominion, host); Sovereign Bank Arena, Trenton, New Jersey (Rider and Metro Conference Athletic Conference, hosts); McKale Center, Tucson, Arizona (Arizona, host); Bryce Jordan Center, University Park, Pennsylvania (Penn State, host); and Mackey Arena, West Lafayette, Indiana (Purdue, host).

The Women's Basketball Committee voted to change the names for the first- and second-round and regional sites from region designations (East, Mideast, Midwest and West) to city-name designations (i.e., Dallas First and Second Rounds, Philadelphia Regional).

The committee designated the competition dates for the 2005 regional sites: games at the Chattanooga and Tempe regionals will be Saturday, March 26, and Monday, March 28; games at the Kansas City and Philadelphia regionals will be Sunday, March 27, and Tuesday, March 29.

Effective with the 2005 championship, the committee established the format for the first and second rounds to be four games (two two-game sessions) on one day for the first round and two games (one two-game session) for the second round, and increased the minimum ticket prices for first and second rounds and regionals to $35 for adults, $20 for all children, high school and college students for all-session tickets, and $20 for adults, $25 for all children, high school and college students, for single-session tickets.

In September, the Division I Championships/Competition Cabinet approved the Women's Basketball Committee's proposals to conduct regional sessions of the tournament at neutral sites and for regional bid specifications to include the opportunity for a host to bid for one year or two consecutive years, beginning with the 2007 championship.

In October, the Women's Basketball Committee designated the competition dates for the 2006 regional sites: games at the Albuquerque and San Antonio regionals will be Saturday, March 25, and Monday, March 27; games at the Bridgeport and Cleveland regionals will be Sunday, March 26, and Tuesday, March 28.

In November, the Women's Basketball Committee and ESPN announced that the bracket announcement for the Division I Women's Basketball Championship will be moved from Sunday to the Monday before the start of competition at 7 p.m. Eastern time, beginning in 2006.

2005 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 31 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

For the third consecutive year, all 63 games in 29 broadcast windows were televised live on ESPN and ESPN2. Overall, the tournament was viewed by an estimated 60.4 million viewers and rated 1.27 on ESPN and 0.56 on ESPN2. The games on ESPN2 averaged 491,000 households for the most-viewed tournament games in ESPN2 history, while the games on ESPN averaged 1,.1 million households, the second most-viewed tournament games in ESPN history.

In an ESPN first, Tennessee head coach Pat Summitt's record-breaking 880th win in the Lady Vols' second-round game versus Purdue was captured live on six domestic ESPN television networks -- ESPN, ESPN2, ESPNU, ESPNEWS, ESPN Classic and ESPN Deportes. The entire game was carried on ESPNU and ESPN2, while the other networks joined live with less than two minutes to go and stayed through Summitt's postgame interview.

Women's Final Four: Indianapolis. Teams: Baylor, LSU, Michigan and Tennessee. Baylor (33-3) defeated Michigan State, 84-62, to capture its first NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. The 22-Point winning margin was the second-highest in a national championship game, behind Tennessee's 23-Point (67-44) victory over Louisiana Tech in 1987. Baylor head coach Kim Mulkey-Robertson became the first woman to win a Division I basketball championship as a player (Louisiana Tech in 1982) and a coach. She also won the NCAA title as assistant coach at Louisiana Tech in 1988.

The national semifinals featured two of the most exciting back-to-back, come-from-behind games in tournament history. In the first semifinal, Baylor came from 15 points down to beat LSU, 68-57. Michigan State followed in the second semifinal with a comeback of its own, rallying from a 16-Point deficit to defeat Tennessee, 68-64. The Women's Final Four sold out for the 14th (13th consecutive) time with 28,937 in attendance for each session.

The three games of the Women's Final Four averaged the most viewers (2.5 million households) and a rating of 2.5 on ESPN. The two national semifinal games averaged 2.2 million households and a 2.45 rating. The Baylor-Michigan State national championship game carried a 2.6 rating for 2.3 million households.

In July, the Women's Basketball Committee selected the following first- and second-round sites for the 2007 and 2008 championships: 2007

First and Second Rounds - Frank Erwin Center, Austin, Texas (Texas, host); Breslin Student Events Center, East Lansing, Michigan (Michigan State, host); Hartford Civic Center, Hartford, Connecticut (UConn, host); Galen Center, Los Angeles (Southern California, host); Williams Arena, Minneapolis (Minnesota, host); Petersen Events Center, Pittsburgh (Pittsburgh, host); RBC Center, Raleigh, North Carolina (NC State, host); and Maples Pavilion, Stanford, California (Stanford, host). 2007 Regionals - Reunion Arena, Dallas (Conference USA and SMU, hosts); University of Dayton Arena, Dayton, Ohio (Dayton, host); Greensboro Coliseum, Greensboro, North Carolina (Atlantic Coast Conference, host); and Save Mart Center, Fresno, California (Fresno State, host). 2008 First and Second Rounds - The Pit/Bob King Court, Albuquerque, New Mexico (New Mexico, host); Pete Maravich Assembly Center, Baton Rouge, Louisiana (LSU, host); Bridgeport Arena at Harbor Yard, Bridgeport, Connecticut (Fairfield, host); Comcast Center, College Park, Maryland (Maryland, host); Wells Fargo Arena at the Iowa Events Center, Des Moines, Iowa (Iowa State, host); Ted Constant Convocation Center, Norfolk, Virginia (Old Dominion University, host); Maples Pavilion, Stanford, California (Stanford University, host); and Mackey Arena, West Lafayette, Indiana (Purdue, host). 2008 Regionals - Greensboro Coliseum, Greensboro, North Carolina (Atlantic Coast Conference, host); New Orleans Arena, New Orleans (New Orleans, host); Ford Center, Oklahoma City (Oklahoma, host); and Spokane Veterans Memorial Arena, Spokane, Washington (Washington State, host).

Women's Final Four: Boston. Teams: Duke, LSU, Maryland and North Carolina. Maryland (34-4) defeated Duke (31-4), 78-75 in overtime, to capture its first NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. Arguably one of the most exciting championship games in the history of the event, Maryland came from 13 points down in the second half and sent the game to overtime on a 3-Point field goal by freshman Kristi Toliver with six seconds to play in regulation. The Terrapins took over from there as Final Four Most Outstanding Player Laura Harper tied for team-high honors with 16 points. For the first time, the national semifinals featured three schools from the same conference, as Duke, Maryland and North Carolina all arrived from the Atlantic Coast Conference. In the first semifinal, Harper led Maryland with 24 points as the Terrapins scored an 81-70 victory over North Carolina. Duke followed in the second semifinal with a resounding 64-45 win over LSU as the Blue Devils held the Tigers to 29.0% shooting from the field. The Women's Final Four sold out for the 15th time (14th consecutive) with 18,642 in attendance for each session.

For the fourth consecutive year, all 63 games were televised live on ESPN and ESPN2. The 2006 championship earned record numbers on ESPN. The national championship game overtime thriller between Maryland and Duke averaged a 3.1 household rating on ESPN, up 19% over last year's 2.6 rating for Baylor-Michigan State. That closed out the most-watched women's NCAA tournament ever on ESPN, which averaged a 1.4 rating to match the 2004 tournament. It also averaged 1.32 million total households, 31% better than 2005 and best in tournament history..

In July, the Women's Basketball Committee selected the following first- and second-round sites for the 2009 and 2010 championships: 2009 First and Second Rounds - The Pit/Bob King Court, Albuquerque, New Mexico (New Mexico, host); Pete Maravich Assembly Center, Baton Rouge, Louisiana (LSU, host); Comcast Center, College Park, Maryland (Maryland, host); Nationwide Arena, Columbus, Ohio (Ohio State, host); Arena at Gwinnett, Duluth, Georgia (Georgia, host); United Spirit Arena, Lubbock, Texas (Texas Tech, host); Galen Center, Los Angeles (Southern California, host); and Louis Brown Athletic Center, Piscataway, New Jersey (Rutgers, host). 2009 Regionals - Haas Pavilion, Berkeley, California (California, host); Ford Center, Oklahoma City (Big 12 Conference, host); RBC Center, Raleigh, North Carolina (NC State, host); and Sovereign Bank Arena, Trenton, New Jersey (Rider, host). The 2009 Women's Final Four will be played at the Scottrade Center (20,551) in St. Louis. 2010 First and Second Rounds - Frank Erwin Center, Austin, Texas (Texas, host); Haas Pavilion, Berkeley, California (California, host); Thompson-Boling Arena, Knoxville, Tennessee (Tennessee, host); Williams Arena, Minneapolis (Minnesota, host); Ted Constant Convocation Center, Norfolk, Virginia (Old Dominion, host); Joyce Center, Notre Dame, Indiana (Notre Dame, host); Wells Fargo Arena, Tempe, Arizona (Arizona State, host); and Sovereign Bank Arena, Trenton, New Jersey (Rider, host). 2010 Regionals - University of Dayton Arena, Dayton, Ohio (Dayton, host); Sprint Center, Kansas City, Missouri (Big 12 Conference, host); FedEx Forum, Memphis, Tennessee (Memphis, host); and ARCO Arena, Sacramento, California (Pacific, host). The 2010 Women's Final Four will be played at the Alamodome (30,000) in San Antonio.

Women's Final Four: Cleveland. Teams: LSU, North Carolina, Rutgers and Tennessee. Tennessee (34-3) defeated Rutgers (27-9), 59-46, to capture its seventh NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. Leading from nearly start to finish, Tennessee jumped out to a 29-18 halftime lead. Rutgers could get no closer than 7 points during the final 20 minutes as the Lady Volunteers cruised to the title. Final Four Most Outstanding Player Candace Parker led the way with 17 points, while Shannon Bobbitt added 13 points and connected on four 3-Point field goals. Center Nicky Anosike pulled down 16 rebounds to lead a Tennessee team that grabbed 24 offensive rebounds and earned a 42-34 advantage on the boards. Joining Parker, Bobbitt and Anosike on the All-Tournament Team were Matee Ajavon and Kia Vaughn of Rutgers. In the first semifinal, Rutgers connected on 10 3-Point field goals and held LSU (30-8) to 26.4% Field Goal shooting in scoring a 59-35 victory over the Tigers. Tennessee followed in the second semifinal with a come-from-behind 56-50 victory over North Carolina (34-4). The Lady Volunteers trailed by 12 points, 48-36, with 8:02 to play before rallying for the win.. The Women's Final Four sold out for the 16th time (15th consecutive) with 20,704 in attendance for each session.

For the fifth consecutive year, all 63 games were televised live on ESPN and ESPN2. All regional and Women's Final Four games were presented in high-definition television on ESPN HD. For the first time in women's sports history, the 2007 national championship game received Full Circle Coverage on ESPN. The national championship game between Tennessee and Rutgers averaged a 2.30 household rating on ESPN. ESPN2's Full Circle Coverage delivered a 0.21 rating. In September, the Women's Basketball Committee announced that beginning in 2009, the championship will feature 16 predetermined first- and second-round sites with four teams assigned to each.

Women's Final Four: Tampa, Florida. Teams: UConn, LSU, Stanford and Tennessee. Tennessee (36-2) defeated Stanford (35-4), 64-48, to capture its second consecutive and tournament-record eighth NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. The Lady Volunteers grabbed a 10-7 lead on a Shannon Bobbitt 3-Point field goal with 16:35 remaining in the first half and never relinquished the advantage A stong defensive effort by Tennessee limited Stanford to a 38.8% shooting effort from the field and the Cardinal could get no closer than 4 points in the second half. Women's Final Most Outstanding Player Candace Parker led the way with 17 points for Tennessee, while Bobbitt added 13 points. Center Nicky Anosike contributed 12 points and eight rebounds for Tennessee. Jayne Appel led Stanford with 16 points and Candice Wiggins scored 14. In the first semifinal, Wiggins scored 25 points to lead Stanford to an 82-73 win over UConn (36-2), which was held to 38.8% shooting from the field. Freshman sensation Maya Moore scored 20 points to lead the Huskies. Tennessee followed in the second semifinal with a heart-pounding 47-46 victory over LSU (31-6). Alexis Hornbuckle of the Lady Volunteers tipped in a miss by Anosike with one second remaining for the game-winning points. Parker led Tennessee with 13 points, while LSU senior center Sylvia Fowles racked up 24 points and 20 rebounds. Joining Parker, Bobbitt and Anosike on the All-Tournament Team were Wiggins and Fowles.

The Women's Final Four sold out for the 17th time (16th consecutive) with 21,655 in attendance for each session. The attendance for all rounds (236,464) during the 2008 championship was the best since 2004, the last time that 16 predetermined sites were used for first- and second-round games, a format that will be implemented for the 2009 championship. The overall average per session (6,955) ranks sixth all-time in the 27-year history of the championship, while the total attendance was the 10th-largest all-time.

The 2008 championship marked ESPN's sixth consecutive year of televising all 63 games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship and the 13th year overall of exclusive coverage. During the first two rounds, ESPN and ESPN2 presented 48 games within 13 telecast windows in a whip-around format with home market protection. ESPN FULL COURT -- ESPN's out-of-market pay-per-view package -- and ESPN360.com, its signature live broadband sports network, offered complete game telecasts of all 48 games. In addition, ESPNU provided full national telecasts of eight early round games.

Women's Final Four: Indianapolis. Teams: UConn, Oregon State, Syracuse and Washington. UConn (38-0) won a fourth consecutive national championship – a first-time occurrence in Division I women's basketball. With an 82-51 defeat of Syracuse in the national championship game, UConn earned its 11th title, tying the UCLA men's basketball team's all-time mark for Division I championships. The UConn title also made Geno Auriemma the only Division I basketball coach in history with 11 championships, passing UCLA men's coach John Wooden. UConn's Breanna Stewart also set a collegiate basketball record by being named the Women's Final Four Most Outstanding Player for the fourth consecutive year.

The event featured three teams (Oregon State, Syracuse and Washington) making their first Women's Final Four appearance. No. 4 seed Syracuse had advanced to the title game to play UConn by virtue of its 80-59 victory over Washington in the first national semifinal game. UConn defeated Oregon State, 80-51, to advance to the title game.

For the first time in the 35 years of NCAA women's basketball, all three divisions played their championship game in the same location during a two-day period. In Division II, Lubbock Christian (35-0) defeated Alaska Anchorage, 78-73. In Division III, Thomas More (33-0) defeated Tufts University, 63-51. This was another landmark event with all three women's basketball champions finishing their seasons undefeated for only the third time in the sport's history.

It was a record-setting weekend, both on and off the court, at the 2016 Women's Final Four hosted in Indianapolis, as well as for the entire NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship.

Women's Final Four: Dallas. Teams: South Carolina, Mississippi State, UConn and Stanford. In a Women's Final Four that witnessed UConn's record 111-game winning streak come to an end, South Carolina (33-4) emerged to win its first national championship. In an all-Southeastern Conference national championship game, South Carolina outlasted Mississippi State 67-55. The Gamecocks were led offensively by a pair of double-doubles from junior guard Allisha Gray (18 points, 10 rebounds) and junior forward A'ja Wilson (23 points, 10 rebounds). Beyond being named to the all-tournament team, Gray and Wilson were the only two players on the South Carolina roster to tally double figures in the scoring department in each of the team's six NCAA tournament games. Wilson was named the Women's Final Four Most Outstanding Player.

The women's basketball world was turned upside down in the national semifinals when Mississippi State ended UConn's historic winning streak, as Bulldogs junior guard Morgan William's jumper at the overtime buzzer gave the Bulldogs a 66-64 win in perhaps the biggest upset in women's basketball history. The loss also ended a 28-game NCAA tournament winning streak by UConn. South Carolina advanced to the title game after defeating Stanford, 62-53.

For the first time since 2002, the Women's Final Four games were played Friday and Sunday. The shift from the Sunday-Tuesday format used in past years was made to allow fans to attend all games without compromising work obligations. Both semifinal games and the national championship game were sold out before the weekend.

The Women's Final Four attendance totaled 38,431, and the national championship game attracted 19,229 fans at the American Airlines Center. This was the first sellout of the national championship game since 2014 at Bridgestone Arena in Nashville, Tennessee.

The overall 2017 Division I women's basketball tournament hosted 225,402 fans. The first- and second-round attendance increased by 4% from 2016, and the regional sites totaled 37,759 fans.

The national championship game between Mississippi State and South Carolina delivered a 2.4 overnight rating on ESPN, which is 20% higher

2018 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Columbus, Ohio. Teams: Notre Dame, Mississippi State, UConn and Louisville. In a Women's Final Four that featured two overtime national semifinal games for the first time and a national championship game decided on a buzzer-beater, the Notre Dame Fighting Irish captured their second national title. Irish junior guard Arike Ogunbowale was named Most Outstanding Player after etching her name into Women's Final Four lore with game-winning shots in both games played at Nationwide Arena.

In the national semifinal game against previously undefeated UConn on March 30, Ogunbowale connected on a game-winning jump shot just inside the 3-Point line with one second to play in overtime to give Notre Dame the dramatic 91-89 win. That placed Notre Dame in the national championship game against Mississippi State, which had prevailed earlier in the evening behind a late 3-Point field goal with seven seconds to play in regulation by Roshunda Johnson that enabled Mississippi State to tie Louisville and send the game to overtime, where the Bulldogs eventually pulled away to win, 73-63.

The 2014 national championship game featured two undefeated teams in UConn and Notre Dame.

In the championship game April 1, Mississippi State dominated the first half, holding Notre Dame to only three points in the second period, and led by as many as 15 points in the third period before the Fighting Irish surged. Notre Dame won on a buzzer-beating 3-Point shot from Ogunbowale in front of the Notre Dame bench. The Notre Dame comeback was the largest in championship game history and earned Notre Dame head coach Muffet McGraw her 800th win and second national championship at the school, where she has been head coach for 31 years. Notre Dame's previous national title came in 2001.

Starting in 2017, Women's Final Four games shifted to a Friday-Sunday format from the Sunday-Tuesday format used in previous years. The change, which was intended to enable more fans to attend games, has resulted in sellout crowds both years. The 2018 Women's Final Four at Nationwide Arena saw a total attendance of 39,123, surpassing fan turnout from Dallas in 2017. The national championship game had 19,559 attendees, also up from the previous year.

Overall, the 2018 Division I Women's Basketball Championship attracted 252,110 fans, an increase of more than 25,000 from the previous year and marking the highest combined total attendance since 2004 and 10th-highest combined attendance in tournament history. The four regional sites hosted 50,848 fans, a 35% increase from the 2017 tournament.

The national championship game between Notre Dame and Mississippi State peaked at a 3.0 overnight rating, as Ogunbowale hit the game-winning shot. The championship game averaged a total of 3.5 million viewers across television and digital.

The semifinal overnight ratings peaked at 1.6 for the Louisville vs. Mississippi State semifinal (with an estimated average 1.52 million viewers) and 2.1 for the UConn vs. Notre Dame game, averaging a live audience of 2.31 million. Overall with digital streaming, the semifinals averaged 1.9 million viewers.

Ratings in local broadcast markets soared. Columbus averaged an 8.5 market rating for the championship game, the highest rating on record in that market for a women's basketball tournament game. Hartford-New Haven was the top local market for the UConn-Notre Dame semifinal, averaging a 16.7 rating, an increase from last year's Women's Final Four semifinal featuring UConn vs. Mississippi State.

The entire Women's Final Four averaged 2.54 million television and digital viewers over three games.

On social media, according to Nielsen Social Top Five ratings, the 2018 national championship game was the No. 1 sporting event during the broadcast window, garnering more than 1.1 million social interactions.

Total impressions on NCAA social media accounts increased 30% (to 11.6 million), likes increased by 41% (to 86,300), link clicks more than doubled (to 39,400) and retweets stayed the same. Video views skyrocketed nearly 1,900% to 3.4 million.

Live social media viewership soared on Periscope this year. With an increase in the frequency of live social media broadcasts in 2018, the NCAA saw an increase of nearly 500% in total viewership (up to 288,800), multiplying total hours of broadcast footage watched by nearly six times (to nearly 4,000 hours). Live social media broadcasts averaged 8,250 total viewers (up 292%), 4,114 live viewers (up 777%) and 4,136 replay viewers (up 153%).

The 2018 championship marked ESPN's 16th consecutive year of televising all 63 games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship and the 23rd year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ESPN HD and ESPN2 HD.

2019 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Tampa, Florida. Teams: Baylor, Notre Dame, Oregon and UConn. Featuring its highest attendance in over 15 years, the 2019 NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship culminated April 7 at the Women's Final Four in Tampa with the Baylor Lady Bears hoisting the national championship trophy for the third time over that same time span.

Tampa hosted the 2019 NCAA Women's Final Four, marking the third time the city has welcomed women's basketball student-athletes and fans. The weekend, marked by sellout crowds for the semifinals and championship games, featured well-attended fan and community events and another year of millions in broadcast viewership.

Intended to enable more fans to attend games, the Women's Final Four games moved to a Friday-Sunday format in 2017, a shift from the previous Sunday-Tuesday format. The change has proven successful, resulting in a third-straight year of sellout crowds.

Both sessions – the semifinals Friday and the championship game Sunday – had sellout crowds in Amalie Arena with a total of 40,189. The championship game was attended by 20,127 people. Both attendance counts mark increases from the previous year. With this year's attendance count, Tampa has welcomed more fans in Women's Final Four history than any other city, with 123,039 fans now having attended the 2008, 2015 and 2019 Women's Final Four held at Amalie Arena.

In the first semifinal game April 5, Baylor defeated first-time Women's Final Four participant Oregon 72-67. Baylor guard Chloe Jackson made a tie-breaking layup with 39 seconds left in the fourth quarter, and Baylor sealed the win with free throws made by Kalani Brown and Lauren Cox. In the second semifinal game, Notre Dame claimed its second-straight trip to the national championship with another victory over UConn, though the Huskies had led by 1 point at half and later extended their lead to 9 points. Irish stars Brianna Turner and Arike Ogunbowale led a late surge, bringing the score within 1 point with 90 seconds left in the game, before securing the win at the free throw line, ultimately winning the game 81-76.

In the national championship game, Baylor led by as many as 17 points before Notre Dame rallied in the third quarter and tied the game in the fourth quarter. With 3.9 seconds left and the game tied at 80, Baylor guard and tournament Most Outstanding Player Jackson hit a crucial layup to put Baylor ahead, ultimately winning the game for the Lady Bears and giving Baylor its third national championship.

Overall, the 2019 Division I women's basketball tournament attracted 274,507 fans, an increase of approximately 22,000 from the previous year. This marks the highest combined total attendance since 2004 and ninth-highest combined attendance in tournament history. The four regional sites hosted a total of 64,723 fans, a 21% increase from the 2018 tournament.

The national championship game between Notre Dame and Baylor peaked at a 3.4 overnight rating and averaged a 2.2 overnight rating, up 11% from 2018. The championship averaged more than 3.6 million viewers and peaked at 5.6 million in the final minutes of the game.

The first semifinal Friday, featuring Baylor and Oregon, averaged 1.49 million viewers and the second semifinal, featuring Notre Dame and UConn, averaged 2.14 million based on overnight ratings.

Ratings in local broadcast markets soared. Hartford and New Haven averaged a 9.5 market rating for the semifinals and championship.

On social media, total impressions on NCAA social media accounts increased 40%, to 23.5 million. Social media viewership soared to 10.7 million across all platforms.

The 2019 championship marked ESPN's 16th consecutive year of televising all 63 games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship and the 23rd year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ESPN HD and ESPN2 HD.

The NCAA Radio Network (Westwood One Sports Radio) reached a record 237 stations nationwide with the broadcast of the Women's Final Four, with the games also broadcast live by SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

2020 Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the championship was canceled before teams were selected to the tournament.

2021 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: San Antonio, Texas. Teams: Arizona, South Carolina, Stanford, and UConn.

After a year without the NCAA women's basketball tournament, the No. 1 overall seed Stanford Cardinal capped a championship like no other by hoisting its third national title and first since 1992 at the Alamodome in San Antonio on April 4, 2021.

In the national championship game, Stanford defeated No. 3 Arizona, 54-53, after prevailing 66-65 over South Carolina in the national semifinals. Stanford made history by becoming the first team in tournament history on both the men's and women's side to win the semifinal and final games by one point. Haley Jones won the Most Outstanding Player after a dominant performance, finishing with 17 points and eight rebounds against Arizona. Lexie Hull and Cameron Brink combined for 20 points for the Cardinal.

Arizona, playing in its first Women's Final Four, had advanced to the national championship game with a 69-59 win over UConn in the national semifinals.

The title capped a season in which Stanford played through much adversity due to the COVID-19 pandemic, that included not having the luxury of playing on its home court for long stretches of the regular season. It also capped a championship that was played entirely in the San Antonio region due to the pandemic, with six championship rounds featuring 63 games played using five venues and six courts in and around San Antonio that included the Alamodome, Bill Greehey Arena on the campus of St. Mary's (Texas) and the UTSA Convocation Center in San Antonio, Texas' Frank Erwin Center in Austin, Texas, and Strahan Arena on the campus of Texas State.

Hosting in one geographic region allowed for the championship to be held in a manageable geographic area that limited travel and allowed the NCAA to focus on the potential benefits of conducting certain safety measures in a controlled environment with competition and practice venues, medical resources and lodging for teams and officials all within close proximity.

Attendance for all rounds of the championship was severely limited, with a capacity of up to 17% from the Sweet Sixteen through the Women's Final Four. The decision to limit capacity while requiring masks and physical distancing was made in conjunction with local health authorities due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The 2021 NCAA Division I Women's College Basketball Championship game between Stanford and Arizona averaged 4,077,000 viewers and is the most-viewed women's championship game since 2014.

The 2021 championship marked ESPN's 18th consecutive year of televising all 63 games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship and the 26th year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2.

The NCAA Radio Network (Westwood One Sports Radio) also broadcast the regional rounds and Women's Final Four, with the games also broadcast live by SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

2022 The championship bracket was expanded to 68 teams for the first time, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Minneapolis, Minnesota. Teams: Louisville, South Carolina, Stanford, and UConn.

In a year marked by expansion of the bracket to 68 teams, First Four games and use of the moniker "March Madness" for the women's championship, South Carolina was the best team during the regular season and championship, with the Gamecocks claiming their second team title at the Target Center in Minneapolis. In the national championship game, South Carolina defeated UConn in convincing fashion, 64-49.

National player of the year, South Carolina junior forward Aliyah Boston was named Most Outstanding Player of the 2022 Women's Final Four. After a 23-Point, 18-rebound performance in the 72-59 national semifinal win against Louisville, Boston piled on an additional 11 points and 16 rebounds in the decisive championship game to help the Gamecocks take down UConn.

UConn, which suffered its first-ever loss in the national championship game after 11 straight wins in the big game, had advanced with a 63-58 win over defending national champion Stanford in the national semifinals.

Women's Final Four games at the Target Center were enjoyed by consecutive sellout crowds that totaled 36,572 on April 1 and 3. It culminated a well-attended championship that witnessed 317,456 fans attend games at 21 host sites (6,901 average). The first and second rounds of the championship were attended by 216,890 fans (6,778 average), the most-ever in the 40-year history of the NCAA tournament.

The championship marked ESPN's 19th consecutive year of televising all games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, which totaled 67 in 2022. It was the 27th year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2.

South Carolina's wire-to-wire victory in the national championship game scored 4.85 million viewers to become the most-watched women's title game since 2004, and the fourth largest audience to watch a women's championship game since ESPN began exclusively airing the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship in 1996.

The 4.85 million viewers tuning in across ESPN networks was the most-watched cable program of the day, an audience increase of 18 percent year-over-year and 30 percent from 2019. The matchup peaked from 10-10:15 p.m. ET with 5.91 million viewers across ESPN, ESPN2 and ESPNU, as South Carolina captured its second national title during ESPN's MegaCast presentation.

The 2022 Women's Final Four was the most-watched Final Four weekend since 2012, averaging 3.46 million viewers. The audience for the trio of games throughout the weekend was up 20 percent from 2021.

The national semifinals scored 2.7 million average viewers, up 21 percent year-over-year and the most-viewed semifinals in a decade. UConn and Stanford's showdown registered 3.23 million viewers, up 19 percent from 2021 and 49 percent from 2019 -- the most-watched women's semifinal game since 2012 (Stanford vs. Baylor). The matchup was the second-most-watched cable program of the day and most-watched overall among the coveted P18-49 demo. Louisville vs. South Carolina recorded 2.16 million viewers, up 27 percent and 43 percent from 2019, registering the most-watched audience of an early semifinal game since 2016 (UConn vs. Oregon State).

The full NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Tournament averaged 634,000 viewers per game, up 16 percent from 2021 coverage. The total hours of consumption were up six percent year-over-year, with viewers devouring 74.6 million hours of content across ESPN platforms, roughly 4.1 million more hours compared to 2021.

The 2022 NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Tournament experienced several additional viewership milestones throughout, including:

- The most-consumed early rounds on record
- The most-watched early round window in more than 10 years
- The most-watched Sweet 16 game on cable since 2017
- The most-watched Elite Eight round in more than 10 years
- The most-watched Elite Eight game in more than 10 years

The NCAA Radio Network (Westwood One Sports Radio) also broadcast the regional rounds and Women's Final Four, with the games also broadcast live by SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

2023 The championship bracket included 68 teams, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Dallas, Texas. Teams: Iowa, LSU, South Carolina and Virginia Tech.

After six previous attempts, No. 3 seed LSU captured the 2023 NCAA national championship, its first in program history. The Tigers outlasted No. 2 Iowa to win 102-85 in the national championship game at American Airlines Center in Dallas. The Tigers became just the third No. 3 seeded team to win the title and the first since 1997.

Iowa, playing in its first Women's Final Four, had advanced to the title game with 77-73 national semifinal win over undefeated defending champion South Carolina, while LSU had defeated Virginia Tech, 79-72 to advance to the title game.

In winning the championship game, LSU beat the best offense in the country at their own game and put up the most points ever in a championship game. The 102nd point came on — none other than — their 11th and final 3-Pointer of the game. Along with the most points in a title game, multiple records were shattered. LSU outscored Iowa 32-20 in the second quarter to lead 59-42 at the half. That is the most any team has scored in a Women's Final Four half since Georgia scored 57 in 1985.

Jasmine Carson topped the LSU in scoring with season-high 22 points including 7 of 8 shooting from the arc. Carson exploded after scoring just 13 points in the tournament leading up to the championship game. With a 15-Point, 10-rebound performance, LSU's Angel Reese notched the most double-doubles (34) in a single season and was named the Women's Final Four Most Outstanding Player.

Iowa's Caitlin Clark scored a game-high 30 points in the national championship game, setting a record for points scored in a single NCAA tournament (191). This was two days after she scored 41 points in the win over South Carolina in the national semifinals.

A sellout crowd of 19,482 was in attendance for the national championship game at the American Airlines Center to cap off a tournament record of 357,542 fans that attended games throughout March Madness. First- and second-round attendance of 231,677 set a new tournament record, while the two-site regional format was a resounding success, with 85,275 fans attending in Greenville, South Carolina, and Seattle.

The championship marked ESPN's 20th consecutive year of televising all games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, which totaled 67 in 2023. It was the 28th year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2.

ESPN's presentation of NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship scored double- to triple-digit increases during every stage of the 2022-23 season. The national championship game between LSU and Iowa drew 9.9 million viewers, making it the most-viewed women's college basketball game and ESPN platforms' most-viewed college basketball game (men's or women's) on record. The title game, which aired on ABC for the first time, spiked a remarkable 104 percent increase over last year's finale and was the most-viewed college event ever on ESPN+. The one-hour NCAA Women's Basketball Championship Special Presented by Capital One preceded the record-shattering showdown, averaging 1.7 million viewers.

The 2023 NCAA Women's Final Four in Dallas, Texas was ESPN's most-viewed Final Four weekend on record, averaging 6.5 million viewers. The three-game slate saw an 87 percent increase from 2022's event in Minneapolis.

The national semifinals averaged 4.5 million viewers, the most-viewed semifinal round on record on ESPN platforms. The Friday night doubleheader increased 68 percent versus 2022. The much-anticipated Iowa vs. South Carolina matchup attracted 5.6 million viewers, becoming ESPN's third most-viewed women's college basketball game on record, and drawing a 74 percent increase from 2022's late-night window. Eventual national champion LSU's game against Virginia Tech averaged 3.4 million viewers, ESPN's most-viewed early national semifinal on record, and an increase of 60 percent from the early window last year.

The Bird & Taurasi Show, one of multiple Women's Final Four MegaCast offerings, notched 742,000 viewers for Sunday's finale.

The 2023 championship across ESPN platforms averaged 983,000 viewers, up 55 percent over the 2022 tournament. Every round of the championship experienced viewership growth versus 2022, including double-digit increases for the first and second Rounds, the Sweet 16 and the Elite Eight. Viewers also consumed a record 7.4 billion minutes of women's college basketball content throughout the entire championship. Sponsors and advertisers came out in full force as well, with Disney Advertising selling out in-game sponsorship opportunities for the championship for the second year in a row with even more advertisers joining in 2023. In total, 15 sponsors and nearly 100 advertisers activated during the 2023 championship, up from 14 and 22, respectively, a year ago.

The NCAA Radio Network (Westwood One Sports Radio) also broadcast the regional rounds and Women's Final Four, with the games also broadcast live by SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

2024 The championship bracket included 68 teams, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Cleveland, Ohio. Teams: Iowa, NC State, South Carolina, and UConn.

South Carolina (38-0) became the 10th team to go undefeated while winning the national championship, defeating Iowa and Caitlin Clark, 87-75. The win over Iowa came in a Women's Final Four rematch between the two teams, with the Hawkeyes having ended the Gamecocks undefeated season at the national semifinals the year before in Dallas.

Iowa had advanced to the title game with 71-69 national semifinal win over UConn, while South Carolina had defeated NC State, 78-59.

In winning the championship game, South Carolina improved to a 109-3 record the past three seasons with the defeats by one, two and four points. Senior center Kamilla Cardoso dominated inside for the Gamecocks and was named the 2024 Women's Final Four Most Outstanding Player, totaling 15 points and 17 rebounds in the national championship game. Cardoso had 22 points and 11 rebounds in the national semifinal win over NC State. She shot 17-26 (65.4 percent) in the two Women's Final Four victories. Freshman Tessa Johnson came off the bench to back Cardoso with 19 points, earning All-Tournament honors.

Clark, the NCAA all-time leader in scoring, capped her remarkable collegiate career with a game-high 30 points in the national championship game for Iowa.

A sellout crowd of 18,300 was in attendance for the national championship game at the Rocket Mortgage FieldHouse to cap off a tournament record of 436,055 fans that attended games throughout March Madness, with records established for first- and second-round attendance (292,456), while the two-site regional format was a resounding success for the second straight year, with record 103,587 fans attending in Albany, New York and Portland. Oregon.

The championship marked ESPN's 21st consecutive year of televising all games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, which totaled 67 in 2024. It was the 29th year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2.

The three-game 2024 NCAA Women's Final Four in Cleveland was the most-viewed Women's Final Four on record, averaging 13.8 million viewers. The trio of games was up 114% year-over-year and 299% higher than 2022.

The epic title bout between No. 1 women's seeds South Carolina and Iowa scored 18.9 million viewers on ABC, becoming the most-viewed women's college basketball game ever and ESPN platforms' most-viewed college basketball game (men's or women's) on record. The showdown peaked at 24.1 million viewers in the game's final 15 minutes as South Carolina stormed to their second NCAA trophy in three years. For the first time in history, the Women's Final Four outrated the Men's Final Four national championship game between UConn and Purdue (14.82).

The 2024 national championship game established itself as the second most-watched non-Olympic women's sporting event ever on U.S. television behind the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup Final between the U.S. and Japan. The Hawkeyes and Gamecocks is the most-watched annual sporting event – excluding football – across all networks since 2019. The audience was up 90% year-over-year and 289% from 2022 and is the most-watched basketball game (college or pro, men's or women's) in five years.

The fan-favorite Bird & Taurasi Show recorded the largest championship game audience in its three-year history with 1.4 million viewers on ESPN. The offering is the second most-watched alternate telecast for a college event on ESPN platforms, just behind Field Pass with The Pat McAfee Show from the 2024 Rose Bowl Game.

The national semifinals notched 11 million viewers, the most watched on record. Friday's matchups were up 142% year-over-year and 307% from 2022. Iowa-UConn finished with 14.4 million viewers, the second most-watched women's college basketball game on record and ESPN's most-watched basketball game (college or pro, men's or women's) on record. The high-octane showdown between the Hawkeyes and Huskies peaked at 17.3 million viewers and is also the most-watched college event ever on ESPN+. The late semifinal was up 156% over 2023's late semifinal between Iowa and South Carolina. The early semifinal featuring NC State and South Carolina finished with 7.2 million viewers, the most-watched early National Semifinal on record and an increase of 108% year-over-year. The Clash of the Carolinas peaked with 9.1 million viewers.

The NCAA Radio Network (Westwood One Sports Radio) also broadcast the regional rounds and Women's Final Four, with the games also broadcast live by SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

2025 The championship bracket included 68 teams, with 31 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Tampa, Florida. Teams: South Carolina, Texas, UCLA and UConn.

UConn won a record 12th national championship, cruising to an 82-59 win over South Carolina in the title game at Amalie Arena. The victory capped a dominant March Madness performance for UConn, with Azzi Fudd, who was named the Most Outstanding Player of the Women's Final Four, scoring 24 points to lead the way. Sarah Strong had 24 points and 15 rebounds, and Paige Bueckers, 17 points for UConn (37-3). This win also marked a record for Geno Auriemma, who now has 12 national championships as head coach. The 2025 title ended a nine-year drought for the Huskies. That was the longest period for Auriemma and his program without a title since Rebecca Lobo and Jen Rizzotti led the Huskies to their first championship in 1995.

UConn was dominant in all six championship games in 2025, winning by an average margin of 32.8 points per game that included a 34-Point win over UCLA (85-51) in the national semifinal game. The closest game in the Huskies' national championship run was a 14-Point margin against Southern California in the regional final game in Spokane.

South Carolina, seeking its second consecutive national championship, had advanced to the title game with a 74-57 win over Texas.

Sellout crowds totaling 39,508 fans were in attendance for 2025 Women's Final Four games at Amalie Arena. Overall championship attendance totaled 351,777 (7,647 avg.) in 2025, the third most all-time. It ranked behind 436,055 in 2024 and 357,542 in 2023.

The championship marked ESPN's 22nd consecutive year of televising all games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. It was the 30th year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2.

ESPN coverage of the national title game between UConn and South Carolina scored 8.6 million viewers, the third most-viewed women's college basketball championship game on ESPN platforms and up 76% from the last time the teams played for the title in 2022. The showdown peaked with 9.9 million viewers.

The fan-favorite Bird & Taurasi Show was back for its fourth year and scored 716,000 viewers on ESPN during the Championship Sunday window.

The national semifinals delivered 3.9 million viewers to become the third most-watched since ESPN acquired the rights in 1996. UConn-UCLA sits as the fifth-best Women's Final Four game on ESPN platforms, averaging 4.2 million viewers. The late game peaked with 4.8 million viewers as the Huskies advanced to the national championship game. The early semifinal featuring Texas and South Carolina finished with 3.7 million viewers, the second most-watched early game of the national semifinal on record, peaking with 4.7 million viewers.

This year's NCAA March Madness (57 games) across ESPN platforms averaged 1.2 million viewers, up +22% from the 2023 tournament and a massive +89% from 2022. At the time 2023 was the most-watched NCAA tournament in over a decade. The 2025 tournament featured 41 games across ABC and ESPN, the most-ever on our platforms.

This year's run marks the third most-watched women's championship, behind only the recording-breaking 2024 season and 2004. Prior to the last three tournaments, no game on ESPN platforms topped the six million-viewer threshold – to date, there have now been eight games to perform above that mark, showcasing the continued growth of the sport.

Additionally, this year's tournament had 20 games with over 1 million viewers, which is more than any tournament pre-2024.

The NCAA Radio Network (Westwood One Sports Radio) also broadcast the regional rounds and Women's Final Four, with the games also broadcast live by SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

2026 The championship bracket included 68 teams, with 31 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Phoenix. Teams: South Carolina, Texas, UCLA and UConn.

In its second Women's Final Four appearance, UCLA won its first national championship with a 79-51 victory over South Carolina at Mortgage Matchup Center, the third-largest winning margin in championship game history. Gabriela Jaquez led all scorers with 21 points and added 10 rebounds, earning All-Tournament Team honors. Most Outstanding Player Lauren Betts finished with 14 points and 11 rebounds.

The Bruins dominated throughout the tournament, winning most games by double digits, including an 80-56 victory over Minnesota and an 87-68 win against Oklahoma State.

The overall No. 1 seed UConn returned to the Women's Final Four seeking a second consecutive championship but first had to face South Carolina in the semifinals. The Gamecocks held the Huskies to 48 points and advanced with a strong defensive performance.

Fans consumed the tournament at a higher rate than in previous years, whether in person or through broadcast coverage. Total attendance was the second highest all time at 363,677, trailing only 2024's 436,055.
