The Asian Pacific Institute on Gender-Based Violence is a national resource center on domestic violence, sexual violence, trafficking, and other forms of gender-based violence in Asian and Pacific Islander (API) communities. We analyze critical issues affecting API victims/survivors; provide training, technical assistance, and policy analysis; and maintain a clearinghouse of information on gender violence, current research, and culturally-specific models of intervention and community engagement. The Institute serves a national network of advocates, community-based service programs, federal agencies, national and state organizations, legal, health, and mental health professionals, researchers, policy advocates, and activists from social justice organizations working to eliminate violence against women. Our vision of gender democracy drives our goals to strengthen culturally-relevant advocacy, promote prevention and community engagement, and influence public policy and systems change.

API-GBV offers a rich working environment that includes connecting with powerful, inspiring advocates; being exposed to the cultural and linguistic diversity of Asian and Pacific Islander communities; learning about federal, national, state and local networks addressing gender-based violence; understanding the strengths and struggles of survivors; and how all these forces contribute to social change.
