City of God

1. No where can rival the city of God, love li est, ho li est place in His sight: there as on moun tains of splendor it stands;
there are His people, His last ing delight.

2. Once we were strangers, but now we draw near, sum moned to faith from the ends of the earth; now in the city of God we belong: He has declared it the place of our birth.

3. Now we are citizens, children and heirs; now in His presence our hearts are at home;
our names are even recorded in heaven—Lord, with the music of worship we come!
