Faculty

Joseph J. Dinardo is a partner in the Atlanta office of Smith, Currie & Hancock LLP. Mr. Dinardo's practice focuses mainly on construction disputes, lien prosecution and defense, contracts, commercial litigation, labor law, and collections. He currently serves on the Associated Builders and Contractors of Georgia's (ABC) Management Education Committee and is involved with the Construction Management Association of America (CMAA).

Christopher M. Horton is a partner in Smith Currie's Fort Lauderdale office and is a Board Certified Construction Attorney by the Florida Bar. Mr. Horton represents construction, design, and engineering clients in state and federal courts, litigation, arbitration, and mediation throughout the State of Florida. He is experienced in the preparation and negotiation of design and construction contracts. Mr. Horton advises clients regarding public and private procurement, alternative project delivery, construction licensing, and administrative matters.

Miles D. Jolley is an associate in the Fort Lauderdale office of Smith, Currie & Hancock LLP. Mr. Jolley concentrates his practice in the areas of construction law and litigation, including representation of construction project owners, contractors, construction managers, major trade contractors, sureties, architects, and engineers. His transactional work includes representation of construction project owners, general contractors, architects and engineers in the preparation and negotiation of design agreements and construction contracts utilizing traditional and non-traditional delivery systems (such as design-build, stipulated sum and cost of the work with a guaranteed maximum price).

Stephen M. Reams is a partner in the Atlanta office of Smith Currie. Mr. Reams concentrates his practice on construction law and commercial litigation. He represents owners, developers, general contractors, and subcontractors in state and federal court and in alternative dispute resolution processes throughout the United States. His practice includes drafting and negotiating construction and design contracts and advising parties during projects. He has counseled clients on numerous projects involving retail malls, professional sports stadiums, public housing, hotels, condominiums, medical facilities, government contracts, schools and Native American tribal lands. Mr. Reams has extensive knowledge of alternative project delivery methods such as design-build, P-3, and multi-party agreements.

Eugene Polyak is a partner in the Fort Lauderdale office of Smith, Currie & Hancock LLP. Mr. Polyak specializes in drafting and negotiating design and construction contracts on behalf of owners, general contractors, subcontractors, architects/engineers, and consultants. He provides advice during ongoing construction projects, and serves as counsel in the development, prosecution, and defense of construction-related claims. His extensive litigation experience includes mortgage repurchase litigation, commercial foreclosures, business torts, landlord-tenant disputes, employment disputes, and antitrust.

Madisyn M. Kellough is an associate in the Atlanta office of Smith Currie. Ms. Kellough concentrates her practice in the areas of construction law, litigation, and government contracts. Her practice includes the representation of general contractors, construction managers, subcontractors, material suppliers, design professionals, sureties, and owners.

S. Elysha Luken is a partner in the Fort Lauderdale office of Smith, Currie & Hancock LLP, and is a Board Certified Construction Attorney by the Florida Bar. Ms. Luken specializes in representing contractors, suppliers, owners, design professionals and sureties in public and private construction disputes, including bid protests, prosecuting and defending contractor claims, drafting and negotiating contracts, construction lien and bond claims, and contractor and professional licensing.
