

This portrait is enchanting fair

Larghetto

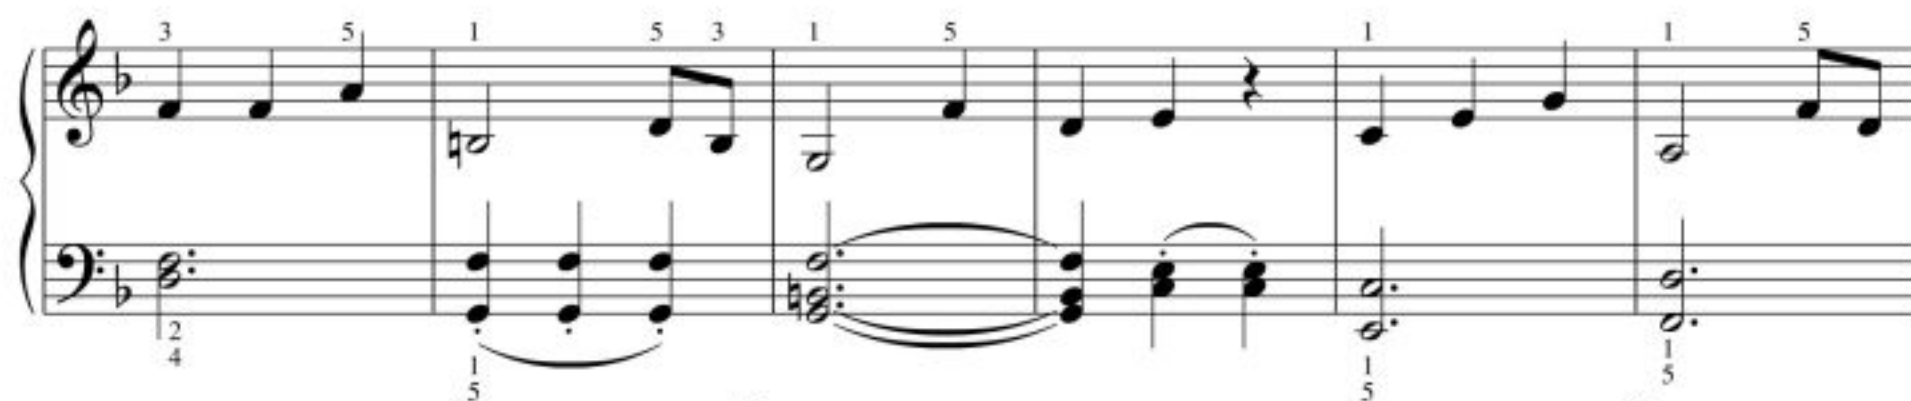

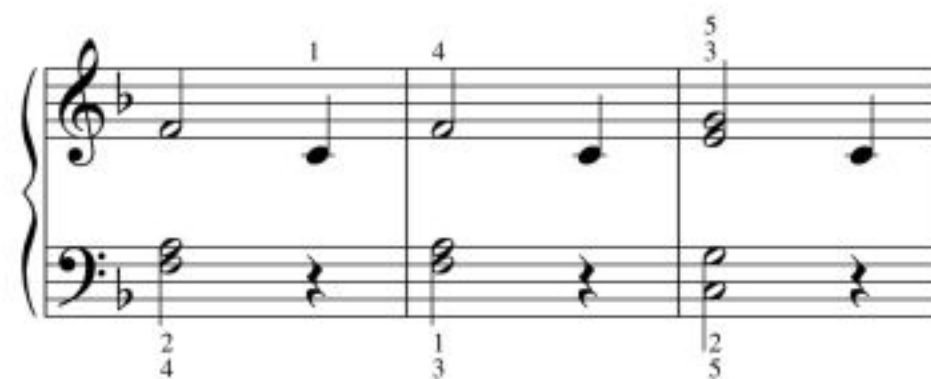

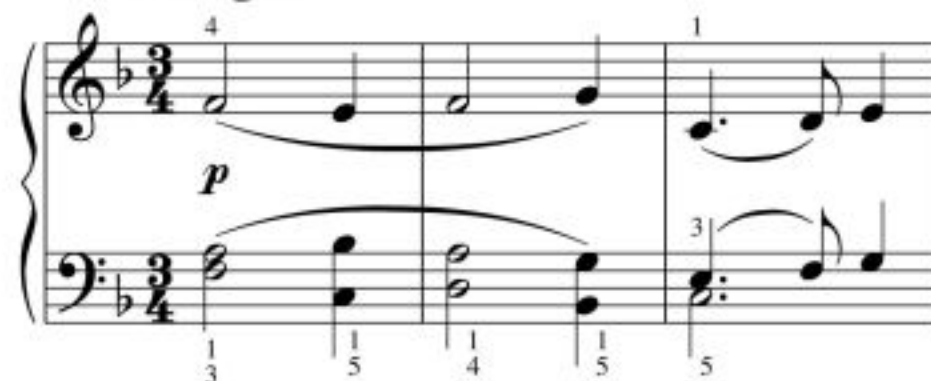

Words: This portrait is enchanting fair: I've never seen its like before. Such feeling; as pure passion for this image fills my heart with new delight. I can't quite say what has inspired me, and yet I feel it burn inside me. Can this sensation be true love? What else could make my soul to move? And oh, if only I could find her! If only I could see and meet her! I'd greet her with such warmth and care – what would I do? With expression of delight I'd gently kiss and hold her tight, and she'd be mine for evermore!

Words: O Isis and Osiris, grant to this couple your wisdom's grace. O you who offer the traveller guidance, shield them from danger in this place. O let them overcome their trials – if you ordain that they should fail, then recognize their virtuous wish and let them be with you in bliss!

The rage of hell it boils within my bosom

Allegro assai

Words: The rage of hell it boils within my bosom, death and destruction, burning all around! It is through you Sarastro now must perish – or else, my daughter, now goodbye! Oh leave me now forever, depart from me forever. Let bonds of Nature break and never bring you back to me unless you kill Sarastro on my order! Now Gods of vengeance, hear a mother's cry!
