

HCLS PROJECT LITERACY

Earn a High School Diploma

Project Literacy, the adult education initiative of HCLS, provides instruction for the National External Diploma Program (NEDP), a flexible, self-directed program for adults to earn a high school diploma.

Project Literacy tutors help you improve your skills in reading, math, and writing to meet the entry requirements.

With personal support from a tutor, you work your way through 8 life skills-based assessment packets. Upon completion, you are awarded a Maryland High School Diploma! You are then in a better position for a job or to enter college or a certification program.

Improve Your English Skills

Project Literacy also offers English classes in a supportive environment for English Language Learners of all levels. You can learn how to read, write, pronounce, and have conversations in English.

Become a U.S. Citizen

Additionally, Project Literacy can help you with requirements to become a U.S. citizen. You can also take advantage of workforce preparation classes to build vocabulary, learn soft skills, explore career pathways, and promote cultural awareness.
