September 25, 2014—Halloween will be a bit spookier at the HeroBox warehouse this year. Every weekend during the month of October, HeroBox will be hosting a zombie experience like no other. “We wanted to host a fundraiser that was actually fun,” Program Director Tiffany Dillard laughed. “We decided that the best way to do that was to turn our warehouse into a big game of zombie tag.”

The idea is simple; Warehouse 237 is a secret abandoned military testing facility. The facility was quarantined and destroyed, or so they thought. Now the warehouse is open to the select few brave enough to enter. “Our idea is similar to laser tag; don’t get touched by the zombies and you survive,” states Dillard. “Our warehouse is the perfect place, since it is already maze-like with pallets that are perfect to hide behind.”

Warehouse 237 will be open Friday and Saturday nights during the month of October from 7: to 11:00 pm. The cost is $10 online and $15 at the door. Everyone will receive a free t-shirt with registration. For more information, visit <http://warehouse237.com/> or the Facebook page, <https://www.facebook.com/warehouse237>.

Herobox is a nonprofit organization with a mission to provide the physical and moral support our heroes need while they are away from home. We are able to achieve this mission through programs that are designed to engage America’s greatest resource—the people.
