Steam in Northern Ontario is a 192-page hardcover that documents railway operations on the CNR mainline from the Don Valley in Toronto to Lake Superior

Behold Mikados and F-units hauling manifest freights through remote territory patrolled by school cars. Watch bullet-nosed Mountains with heavyweight cars of the Continental wend their way across a landscape of lakes, streams and evergreens as far as the eye can see.

The narrative of Steam in Northern Ontario documents operations on the CNR Northern Ontario District mainline circa June 25, 1954

Explore Consolidations switching carloads of pulpwood, lumber, coal and paper against a backdrop of log booms and mills. Travel behind a Pacific aboard an all-night local passenger train, an express extra or weekly mixed. Observe the connections with the Ontario Northland at North Bay and the Algoma Central at Oba.

Accompanying the narrative are 238 photos (eight in colour), 124 track maps, ten timetables, and locomotive rosters and train profiles

From section houses and water tanks at remote sidings to the coal docks, roundhouses, icing platforms and division point stations at South Parry, Capreol, Foleyet, Hornepayne, Jellicoe, Nakina and Armstrong, this is single track mainline operation at its finest.

Don't forget!
