Alexander Hutton Welcomes Sam Thompson Back to the Team

PRESS RELEASE | November 2026

Alexander Hutton is pleased to announce that Sam Thompson has rejoined the firm as an Analyst.

Previously an intern at Alexander Hutton, the firm is excited to invite Sam back to the team as an Analyst. Sam is a recent graduate of Seattle University's Albers School of Business, majoring in Finance. Before joining Alexander Hutton, Sam interned at Alexander Hutton and NAVEX. At NAVEX, he researched and analyzed the Environmental Health & Safety (EHS) market, created profiles that examined the top global providers (in the space) and the regulations they serve, and culminated actionable insights to inform M&A goals in the sector. Sam has a strong background in financial analysis and assisting clients to achieve their goals.

Chairman Scott Hardman expresses his gratitude to have Sam as an addition to the Alexander Hutton team, for he demonstrated impressive skills throughout his 2025 internship. "We are thrilled to have Sam join us full time. During his time with us as an intern, Sam demonstrated exceptional character and competence. He is an outstanding individual contributor and valued team player. His commitment to serving both clients and teammates makes him an ideal fit for our firm."

Regarding his decision to join the firm, Sam commented, "I am excited to be back at Alexander Hutton full-time. My summer here showed me how much care AH puts into every deal and every client, and how much the team invests in people's growth. I am looking forward to applying the finance background I built at Seattle University and to learning everything I can from such a talented group. Thank you for welcoming me back!"

Congratulations, Sam! The firm looks forward to supporting your growth and success in this new role as you continue to help clients achieve their transaction goals.
