Hubzu Enhances Investor Experience by Adding RentRange Rental Income Estimates

Investors now have easy access to forecasted rents for every auction property

LUXEMBOURG, October 10, 2016 – Hubzu, a leading real estate auction marketplace, has launched a new feature to support investors seeking to purchase rental properties. The Hubzu® Real Estate Marketplace now displays low, median and high estimates of potential rental income through its integration with RentRange, one of the premier providers of market data and analytics for the single-family rental industry.

Using RentRange® rental data for comparable properties within a one- to two-mile radius, Hubzu now provides estimated potential rents on each property display page for properties marketed on Hubzu. Investors can use these estimates of potential rental income as additional data points to assist them in determining appropriate bid amounts based on their target returns.

“With interest rates at historic lows, single-family rental properties have become a popular asset class for investors seeking higher yields,” said Steve Udelson, president of Hubzu. “Hubzu makes it easier for investors to discover and purchase investment real estate through a streamlined and transparent process.”
