Got through to the CDC! Atlanta here we come!

Post

Kaelyn Webber

We got through to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta! Maybe there will be an end to this virus! Dr. Guzman took a little convincing, but now she's waiting for us to deliver the vaccine samples. I only wish we could be there already. The wardens are tracking us constantly, Gav is dead (I can hardly believe it!) and I'm tired of everyone being in danger. Just found another body in the house we are staying in- it's almost normal to me now.

All I can focus on is keeping the vaccine's cold box cold and my dad's gift to the world safe. Hang in there everyone! There's still hope for an end to this nightmare!

Dr. Sheryl Guzman

Your father was a great man and a wonderful scientist and doctor. I'm sorry for that he didn't make it, but his vaccine will make it so that all deserving people have a chance to make it. This city has been torn apart by the darkness that is a part of certain aspects of our society. Stay safe! Be careful on the approach to the city.

Michael Smith

We have helicopters, people on the ground searching, eyes everywhere, ears everywhere. It is hopeless to run. Just give up and hand over the vaccine. I will get it in the end anyway.

The Worlds We Make,
By Megan Crewe

It began with The Way We Fall- one of our White Pine selections from last year. Catch the gripping end to the trilogy with edge of your seat action as Kaelyn and her friends attempt to deliver a vaccine that might save the world. The question she faces however: is it even a world she recognizes anymore?
