Swire Pacific's Sustainable Development (SD) Fund seeks primarily to fund proof of concept pilots of innovative technologies and approaches that, when scaled up more widely within the group's various operations, have the potential to significantly positively impact environmental performance of operating companies within Swire Pacific's portfolio.

The innovator chosen for a pilot project aimed at solving the challenge presented here, will be awarded full funding for that pilot. If results are successful, this partner may have the opportunity to scale their solution across the operating company's operations and, where applicable, across Swire's portfolio of companies in Property, Aviation, Beverages, Marine Services and Trading & Industrial.

Proposal evaluation criteria

- Applicability of proposed solution to stated problem and aims.
- Potential impact against the stated problem
- Risk profile of tenderer - Commercially ready technologies are preferred. Tenderer must be able to confirm full participation in the trial as described in the brief, and is also expected to indicate how soon the technology could scale to move beyond a trial to an adoption by some or all of Swire Pacific's operating companies (as relevant to the problem statement and solution proposed)
- Pricing (the scale and duration of the trial will be fine-tuned during the detailed proposal development stage, so the initial pricing proposal should be an indication of price but may be adjusted after discussions with the Swire Pacific and the operating company at a later stage).
- Solutions that have already been applied in the same geography and/or industry will also be rated higher

About Swire Pacific SD Fund

This problem statement is issued as part of the Swire Pacific SD Fund Challenge Process. Swire Pacific is working together with The Cleantech Group to identify commercially ready new technologies that could be applied in its portfolio to help accelerate the group's efforts to minimise its environmental impacts in carbon emissions, water and waste to landfill. Wherever possible, it seeks to support efforts to transition to a circular economy.

The Swire Pacific SD Fund works as follows:

- Swire Pacific operating company issues problem statement to Cleantech Group
- Cleantech Group sources appropriate potential solutions in a long list of relevant, interested companies
- Swire Pacific, operating company and Cleantech Group partner collectively to review long list and create shortlist
- Shortlisted companies will be invited to pitch to Swire Pacific and the operating company either remotely or in person in Hong Kong (transportation and accommodation in Hong Kong at tenderer's expense)
- Operating company will choose up to two potential solution providers from those pitching
- Operating company will simplify the selected tender's pitch into a concept note to be presented to the SD Fund Committee
- SD Fund Committee will select one concept note to proceed with
- Selected concept note will be re-written as a full project plan application by operating company and chosen innovator, and presented to the SD Fund Committee for approval
- Approved project will receive full funding for the trial

- Data will be collected during and after the trial to create the business case necessary for further adoption of the selected solution across the operating company or other similar Swire Pacific operating company operations, where relevant

Frequently Asked Questions

What is the aim of the Swire Pacific SD Fund?

- To fund innovative pilot projects for its operating companies with the intention of solving the largest sustainability problems of those operating companies.

Would you consider the possibility of investing in an innovator?

- SD Fund will not be making equity investments into innovators. Where deemed appropriate, relevant investment groups associated with Swire Pacific will be brought into the process to make their own independent evaluation, based on SD Fund recommendations.

Will Swire Pacific share joint patents with innovators?

- All patents developed through the pilot will be the intellectual property of the innovator.

Do I have to travel to Swire Pacific's operations during the process?

- All pitches during the evaluation stage will be made by video
- Given the current COVID-19 global pandemic, travel is quite restricted. Decisions on travel requirements will be made with innovators once chosen, based on an evaluation of the current state of travel restrictions.

How many companies will you accept as solutions to the problem?

- Only one innovator will be chosen per challenge statement.

Do you take responsibility for travel or housing expenses if required?

- Travel and housing will be covered by the SD Fund if deemed required.

Will I need to sign a non-disclosure agreement?

- The Applicant and Swire Pacific will sign a non-disclosure agreement. Applications are reviewed by a selection committee. The information on your application remains absolutely confidential and is restricted to the selection committee.
