Shabbos Parshas Vayikra-Zachor Child Safety Shabbos

Among the different Korbanos (sacrifices) mentioned in Parshas Vayikra is the Korban Oleh Ve'Yored, (the variable offering). A unique aspect of this Korban is that it varies based on the financial status of the sinner. If he is rich, he brings a sheep or goat for his atonement. If he can't afford this, he can then bring two turtledoves or young doves. If he can't afford even this, then he offers a Tenth – Ephah of fine flour which is enough for an atonement. The Sefer Hachinuch in Mitzvah 123 mentions an interesting Halacha in regards to this Korban. That if a poor man brings a rich man's korban, he does not fulfill his obligation. The reason is that since G-d had pity on the poor man that he could fulfill his obligation even with a tenth-Ephah flour, it is not proper that he should strain himself to bring more than he can afford. This teaches us a practical lesson that a person should not live above his means and purchase items he cannot really afford, for by doing so will eventually lead a person to theft. In the past number of decades, the Jewish community has enjoyed much greater prosperity and a higher standard of living more so than any generation since King Solomon. Yet many Jews struggle desperately to make ends meet.

Parshas Vayikra -Zachor March 19, 2016

Their problems are compounded by the affluence around them which pressures them to try to keep up with the “Cohens”. Many people put themselves deeply in debt in order to purchase luxury items that they could do without. This places great stress on the family and leads to a serious breakdown in Shalom Bayis. From the Korban Oleh Ve’Yored we learn the lesson that if G-d does not want a person to overextend himself in his quest for forgiveness, he certainly does not want him to spend money he doesn’t have on items which will not bring any Menuchas Hanefesh (tranquility) into his life. By spending within one’s financial means a person’s Shalom Bayis will be strong and his life happy and healthy.

(Sefer - Ateres Avraham)

Wishing you an inspiring Shabbos!
