

Young Israel of Bal Harbour

The Dose

Monday November 24, 2015, Kislev 12 , 5776

Sponsored by: Susan and Aaron Weinberg

in honor of our Rav, Rabbi Moshe Gruenstein for his teaching and spiritual leadership.

A fundamental principle of a good marriage is the belief that your spouse is the most important person in your life. When a woman walks around her husband seven times under the Chupah, she is proclaiming that from then on he is the center of her universe. The Torah also states that upon marriage the husband leaves his mother and father, until then his most important allegiances in order to cleave to his wife. This commitment to make your spouse #1 manifests itself in many ways. It means that upon hearing good news we will not share it with someone else before telling our spouse. It also means we must not make the mistake of declining our spouse's advice on a given issue, and then take it to heart when someone else gives us the same advice.

(Sefer: Meaningful Living, Rav Moshe Weiss)

Wishing you an inspiring day!

Rabbi Moshe Gruenstein