One of the greatest acts in life is to give in (obviously when it's permitted according to Jewish law). If people would know what they stand to gain both in this world and the next they would fight over who should be the one to concede. People are afraid that if they back down at certain times others will start taking advantage of them and expect them to yield on everything. This is a huge mistake, for being mevater (giving in) is one of the keys to success and happiness in life.
