Women's Navi Shiur

B'ezras Hashem, Rabbi Goldberger will be resuming his Navi shiur for women on Sunday night, November 8. The shiur will be every Sunday night from 8:00-9:00 pm in the Nancy Taffel Annex. We will be continuing from Shmuel Aleph, Perek Chaf. All women are invited and encouraged to attend; please bring a sefer if you have one.

Father/Son Learning

Starting next motsei Shabbos, and running through the rest of the winter, the shul will be hosting Father/Son Learning in the upstairs Beis Medrash from 7:30 to 8:30 pm.

Bring your son. Bring your son's son. Bring your nephew. Bring the boy next-door. Everyone is welcome to come and learn. Pizza and refreshments will be provided. Weekly sponsorship is appreciated.

For any questions regarding the program, or for sponsorship, please contact Dov Pear at president@tiferesyisroel.org.

Set Your Clocks BACK

Please do not forget to set your clocks back one hour tonight to Eastern Standard Time this motsei Shabbos.

Want to Be a "Minyanaire"?!

Want to impress your Creator? Looking for a way to increase your "spiritual equity"?

Come join the TY minyan. Now that we are davening early Mincha/Maariv, we are looking for a few (10+) good men ages 13-120 to join our early minyan. To become a Mincha/Maariv Minyanaire please contact Mordechai Beleck at 410-764-3325, and he will add you to the list. Shacharis is at 6:30 am during the week, 8:30 am on Shabbos, and 8 am on Sundays. Early Mincha/Maariv begins 10 minutes before shkia; please check the seasonal davening schedule or the Lev Echad for exact times.

Remember, here at TY we are a family, and "a family that prays together, stays together"! Extra credit if you are one of the first ten in shul to daven.

Taking Action

Are you frustrated with the senseless violence in Eretz Yisroel and looking for a way to help? There is a way! The entire kehilla is encouraged to call the White House comment line and urge President Obama to cut funding to the PA as long as they continue to support incitement and terrorism. The phone number for the comment line is 202-456-1111. They count the calls and every call counts.

Shul Pushka Challenge

Now that we are in the middle of Cheshvan, we are embarking on our new shul pushka challenge for 5776 and invite everyone to join in; you can follow our progress on the shul website. The suggested "challenge amount" is 36 cents a day, but any amount, more or less, into your shul pushka is just as nice. Once your pushka is full, you can deliver your money to the secure mailbox at Shlomo Goldberger's home, or donate online on the shul website, designating "Pushka."

Thank You

A special thank you and yasher koach goes out to Yehudah Weisbord for his presentation "Boys to Mentchen" here in the shul last Tuesday night. We wish him much success with this program, and hope that it inspires fathers and sons throughout the community.

TY Sisterhood 5776 Kick Off Event

Please join the women of the TY Sisterhood for a Melava Malka on November 28, motsei Shabbos, from 7:45- 10:00 pm. The program will feature original singer/songwriter/guitar player Chani Levy, and will include a special "Shalom Aleichem" to our new TY neighbors, the Kollel Le'Horoah wives, and writing letters of love and support to our brothers and sisters in Eretz Yisroel to give them chizuk. The event will be in the downstairs Simcha Hall at TY, and the admission is free. Light refreshments will be served.

We are looking for volunteers to make a delicious parve soup, and to help with the set up and clean up. To volunteer or to RSVP, please contact Elka Rottman at 410-358-5427 or elkarottman@gmail.com, or you may register on the shul website Events page.

The Weekly Parsha

Parshas Vayera
By Rabbi Ozer Alport

“For I have loved him, because he commands his children and his household after him that they keep the way of Hashem...” (18:19)

Avraham merited Hashem’s love as a result of his dedication to commanding his children and his household to follow in his ways of Divine service. Rav Yitzchok Zilberstein notes that given Avraham’s reputation as an educator par excellence, it is curious that the Torah relates practically no actual conversations with his son and spiritual inheritor Yitzchok. In fact, the only recorded interactions between them are on the way to the Akeidah, in which the Torah mentions (22:7-8) a total of two lines, a mere eight seemingly trivial words, which Avraham spoke to Yitzchok, and those were only in response to a discussion initiated by Yitzchok. If we are to learn from Avraham’s techniques in giving over our values and priorities to the next generation, shouldn’t we be given more examples?

Rav Zilberstein answers that in intentionally limiting the recorded words of Avraham to his son, the Torah is teaching us a tremendous lesson regarding the education of our children. Many Americans mistakenly believe that raising children is as simple as constantly instructing and commanding them what they should and shouldn’t do. The fact that the parents themselves may not follow this advice is believed to be irrelevant, as “Do as I say, not as I do” seems to be the popular attitude.

In reality, of course, nothing could be farther from the truth. Our children are much smarter than we give them credit for, and they see right through our double standards, recognizing that our actions reflect our true beliefs, which they in turn absorb. The Torah tells us precious little of Avraham’s words to Yitzchok to teach us that the most effective form of education came through serving as a personal example of all that he valued and wished to transmit to his son. This form of instruction was stronger than any words and couldn’t be explicitly expressed by the Torah.

Know Your Shul Members-

Ari and Caryn Blum

Ari Blum’s parents told him he should be a social worker, because of the way he interacted with his grandmother and other residents of the Hebrew Home. Ari had his doubts—social workers were women, for one thing—but when he got to UMBC, he signed up for an introductory course that would change his mind entirely. The instructor, Dr. James Bembry, was a young and highly engaging professor who also played football. Students would be excused from writing two papers if they volunteered with a program that Dr. Bembry was evaluating as part of his doctoral thesis. Thus did Ari find himself a facilitator in Magic Me!, which brought middle school students into nursing homes for intergenerational activities. Ari picked up the kids in a 15-passenger van, drove to the nursing home, led the kids and seniors in activities he designed, and then drove the kids back to school. He stayed with Magic Me! throughout his four years in college.

In Ari’s senior year he was given a field placement for his social work major at the Park Heights JCC. There he met Caryn Berger, who was studying business administration at Towson State and working at the J to pay for car insurance and gas. Both worked in the Kids Center afterschool enrichment program, but for Caryn, a Bais Yaakov alumna, this fact did not imply friendship with her “very Jewish-aware but not observant whatsoever” coworker.

“She would barely say hello,” Ari recalls. “Then, when it became clear I was going to be around for a while, she would say hello, but that was it.”

“In December, I started applying to graduate school, and we were friendly enough that she asked me about it; there was social interaction. Around mid-February she accepted a job at Levindale. It was her last day at the JCC. I figured: She’s leaving. If I ask her out and she says no, I’ll never see her again.”

“She said, ‘Why not?’ I think her friends and parents thought she had lost her marbles.”

Caryn is a first-generation American on her father’s side. Her grandparents were holocaust survivors and instilled strong Jewish values in the family. Caryn’s grandparents left Eastern Europe with their days-old son, Caryn’s father, just days before the iron curtain fell, and traveled across Europe until they reached Holland. Holland was encouraging Jewish refugees to settle in the Dutch Caribbean. They lived in Aruba for sixteen years before immigrating to Baltimore and joining other members of their family.

Caryn introduced Ari to Rabbi Goldberger. The Rabbi had been her long-term substitute teacher at Bais Yaakov, and she had begun attending davening at Tiferes Yisroel with friends, trekking over on Shabbos from her parents’ home in Mount Washington.

Ari and Caryn were married in Beth Jacob, the shul Caryn grew up in, but they made Tiferes Yisroel their shul from the outset.

Asked why, Ari asks back, “Is that really a question?”

He elaborates: “Because the Rabbi and Rebbetzin are the Torah version of the dynamic duo, excellent role models, and mentors. It’s a wonderfully welcoming shul that allows people to grow at their own pace and maintains a judgment-free zone. It’s a truly special kehilla.”

Caryn says, “Definitely the Rabbi and Rebbetzin were the draw, and now it’s the whole kehilla. We’ve grown up there as a family.”

The Blums’ family includes Chaya, Asher, Reuven, and Dovid. Chaya, 20, is a student at UMBC and plans to attend nursing school next semester. Asher, 17, who in his younger years was known to bring a book when he played hide-and-seek, graduated TA last year and is learning in Israel at Yeshivas Toras Moshe in Sanhedrya Murchevet, Yerushalaim. Reuven, 15, in tenth grade at TA, likes photography, walks to Levindale on Shabbos to help with leyning, and mentors a child with siblings with disabilities. Dovid, 13, an eighth grader at TA, likes football and baseball and is described by his father as “lebedich” and “effervescent.” Both younger boys rode in the Biker Cholim bike race with Ari a couple of weeks ago.

Teaming up for a mitzvah is Blum style, as the Rabbi noted in his remarks at the shul banquet in their honor in 2012. The family can often be seen cleaning up after shul events in the social hall, putting their height to good use in stowing folding chairs on the upper racks.

As the shul’s bookkeeper, Caryn brings to bear financial acumen, patience, and persistence forged by more than two decades in medical billing consulting, or helping medical providers get reimbursed by insurance companies. She likes what she does, and says her success consists in “being organized and staying on top of them. They're happy not to pay if you don't remind them." Caryn has been active in many shul events and fundraisers, most recently chairing the women's coffee house concert for four years and the banquet for three.

Ari works at the University of Maryland School of Social Work in training and teaching; his private practice is focused on children and adolescents. Ari specializes in anxiety, depression, trauma, and behavior problems. He has been shul president twice, most recently completing his term Chanukah 2014, a board member since 1998, chair of Yom Tov seating since 2003, and Candy Man since 2008.

Undoubtedly some of Ari's professional training has contributed to his mild, even-keeled management style in the shul. At the time of our interview, he was in New York City, training mental health and child welfare professionals in the basics of Cognitive Behavioral Therapy. His summary of the approach could describe the Blums' influence in the shul: "It's goal-oriented and short-term: What's the problem and how can we fix it?"

Avraham's Eshel

In this week's parsha, the Torah states, "He (Avraham) planted an 'eshel' in Beer-sheva, and there he proclaimed the Name of Hashem" G-D of the Universe." (Bereishis 21:33) According to Rashi, an 'eshel' is either "an orchard or an inn for lodging," which Avraham, through his chesed and hospitality, used to serve wayfarers and bring them closer to Hashem.

In his sefer "The Wisdom in the Aleph-Beis," Rabbi Michael Munk tells the following story: A rich man known for his hospitality once approached the Vilna Gaon. His house had burned down, and he asked why all his good deeds had not prevented the tragedy. The Gaon recited to him our pasuk, and pointed out that the word 'eshel' (aleph-shin-lamed) is an acrostic of 'achilas' (food), 'shih-seeyah' (drink) and 'lih-vahyah' (escort), the three elements that made Avraham's mitzvah of hospitality complete. Although the man did give his guests food and drink, he failed to escort them on their way, so the mitzvah was incomplete and could not protect him. Without the lamed (escort), all that was left was the aleph and the shin, which spells 'aish' (fire)..
