

Readers matter to the Free Press, now more than ever.

Our readers are who we serve every day with the strong and independent journalism that our reporters and photographers produce. And increasingly, our readers are the ones funding that journalism by their willingness to pay for what we produce.

Over the past 145 years, the Free Press has frequently had to change to keep up with the times and to meet the needs of Manitobans. But since 1872, the core mission of journalism that matters hasn't changed.

In 2018 we are committed to growing our audience, while continuing to bring you the award-winning coverage you know and love in our daily printed paper and on our digital platforms. You can support our digital efforts by activating your free digital subscription at winnipegfreepress.com/connect. At the same time, please encourage your family and friends to join you in becoming a paid subscriber like you.

Thank you for your continued support,
