Meet Anna Bauer

Bauer's CANDIES

Not only is Anna president of Bauer's Candies, she is also maker of their famous Modjeska, named after Madame Helena Modjeska, famed queen of the European stage.

Visit their business at 1108 Dylan Drive, Lawrenceburg, KY or shop online at www.bauerscandy.com and taste what perfection is!

Bauer's Candies in Lawrenceburg is a bit off the beaten track, but once you've eaten one of their signature Modjeskas, a heavenly combination of marshmallow and caramel, you'll forever remember this delicious delicacy. Now under the operation of president Anna Bauer, who is the first female to run the company in its four generations of existence, Bauer's was founded by her great-grandfather in 1889. Anna is proud to carry on the name, the tradition and the quality of the product they have and under her stewardship, Bauer's Candies is a thriving, growing business, experiencing another cycle in its long history.

The Modjeska, originally called the Caramel Biscuit, is a creamy marshmallow center, hand-dipped in a rich handcrafted caramel. Using the best ingredients available, the Modjeskas are still made the old fashioned way to ensure the taste and quality that has continued since the company began. You are encouraged to go to their website, www.bauerscandy.com and learn more about the Modjeska and its intriguing history.

Someone who loves you may have given you a box of Modjeskas as a gift or you may have seen them at many retail outlets who carry their products not only in Kentucky, but also around the country and the world – to Canada, Budapest, China and even to a Lord and Lady every year in England.

The Bauer family has a tradition of passing down the mastery of candy making over the years, generation after generation. Modjeskas are made the old fashioned way with pure ingredients. No shortcuts are taken. Anna says, "I wish I could hear what my father would say about the new factory and the direction we are taking. I know he would be proud."
