

Digging the Well

Once, a farmer needed a well to water his farm, so he began digging. But as soon as he dug a little deep and saw no water, he shook his head and left it halfway. Then, he dug another hole. Once again, he shook his head and left it halfway too.

His friend was watching him. he said,

Listen, do not dig so many holes,
instead dig one hole and dig it deeper.

The farmer accepted his friend's advice. He dug for a long time, and he discovered the water. He got his well just by digging one hole for a long time.

We must work on one thing for a long time to get results. We must not give up halfway.
